

PRICE EXEMPTIONS TOLD

Phase 2 System Is Three-Tiered

... Says Cost Of Living Council

•The New York Times

Washington — The Cost of Living Council disclosed Wednesday its "three-tiered" system for monitoring post-freeze pay and price controls and, at the same time, announced its first exemptions from the controls.

Commercial rents, used cars, custom-made wigs, and stuffed animals are among the items that will be freed from restraints as soon as the freeze ends, at midnight Saturday.

Raw agricultural products, raw seafood, financial securities, exports and first import transactions will continue to be exempt from controls in Phase Two as they were exempt from the freeze.

It was also pointed out that transactions such as taxes, workmen's compensation, welfare payments, child support and alimony are not wages, prices or rents and are not included in the controls program.

First Tier

Under the enforcement machinery described by the council, all firms with sales of $100 million or more will be required to notify the Price Commission of proposed price increases and obtain approval from the commission before putting the increase into effect.

According to the council, 1,300 firms, accounting for 45% of total sales in the United States, fall into this first price tier.

On the wage side, all pay adjustments affecting 5,000 or more workers must be given advance approval from the Pay Board.

The first pay category includes 500 units accounting for 10% of all employees, or about 8 million people, the Cost of Living Council noted.

The second price tier includes the 1,100 firms, with sales of $50 million to $100 million, that account for about 5% of total sales. These companies need not obtain advance approval but must report quarterly to the Price Commission on its prices, costs and profits, as first tier companies must also do.

The third price tier includes all other firms—10 million in all—that account for 50% of all sales. These firms need not report to the Price Commission on a regular basis but will be subject to spot checks and will be bound by all regulations of the commission.

Most firms in this category will be required to maintain "adequate records of price, cost and profit changes." The records requirement will be less rigid for smaller concerns with gross sales of under $100,000.

No Advance Notice

The second tier of pay settlements that must be reported but which require no advance notification will involve raises affecting 1,000 to 5,000 workers in groups accounting for 7% of all employees in the country.

The last category, affecting pay adjustments for fewer than 1,000 employees, will be required to adhere to Pay Board standards and will be monitored on a spot check basis but need not be reported.

Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Cost of Living Council, said at a briefing that the procedures announced Wednesday "provide a flexible and suitable framework for arriving at equitable solutions to the complex issues of pay and prices."

He added that the monitoring policy "reduces red tape to a minimum and does not require great numbers of people for administration."

The council's list of items, in addition to agricultural products, that will be exempted from price controls were divided into the following 10 categories:

—All used products, including, Rumsfeld said, used cars.

—Disposal sales, such as sales of surplus U.S. government property.

—Custom-made goods such as wigs, made-to-order clothing, jewelry and taxidermy.

—A list of miscellaneous items including antiques, art objects, handicrafts and similar goods.

—Royalties and copyrights.

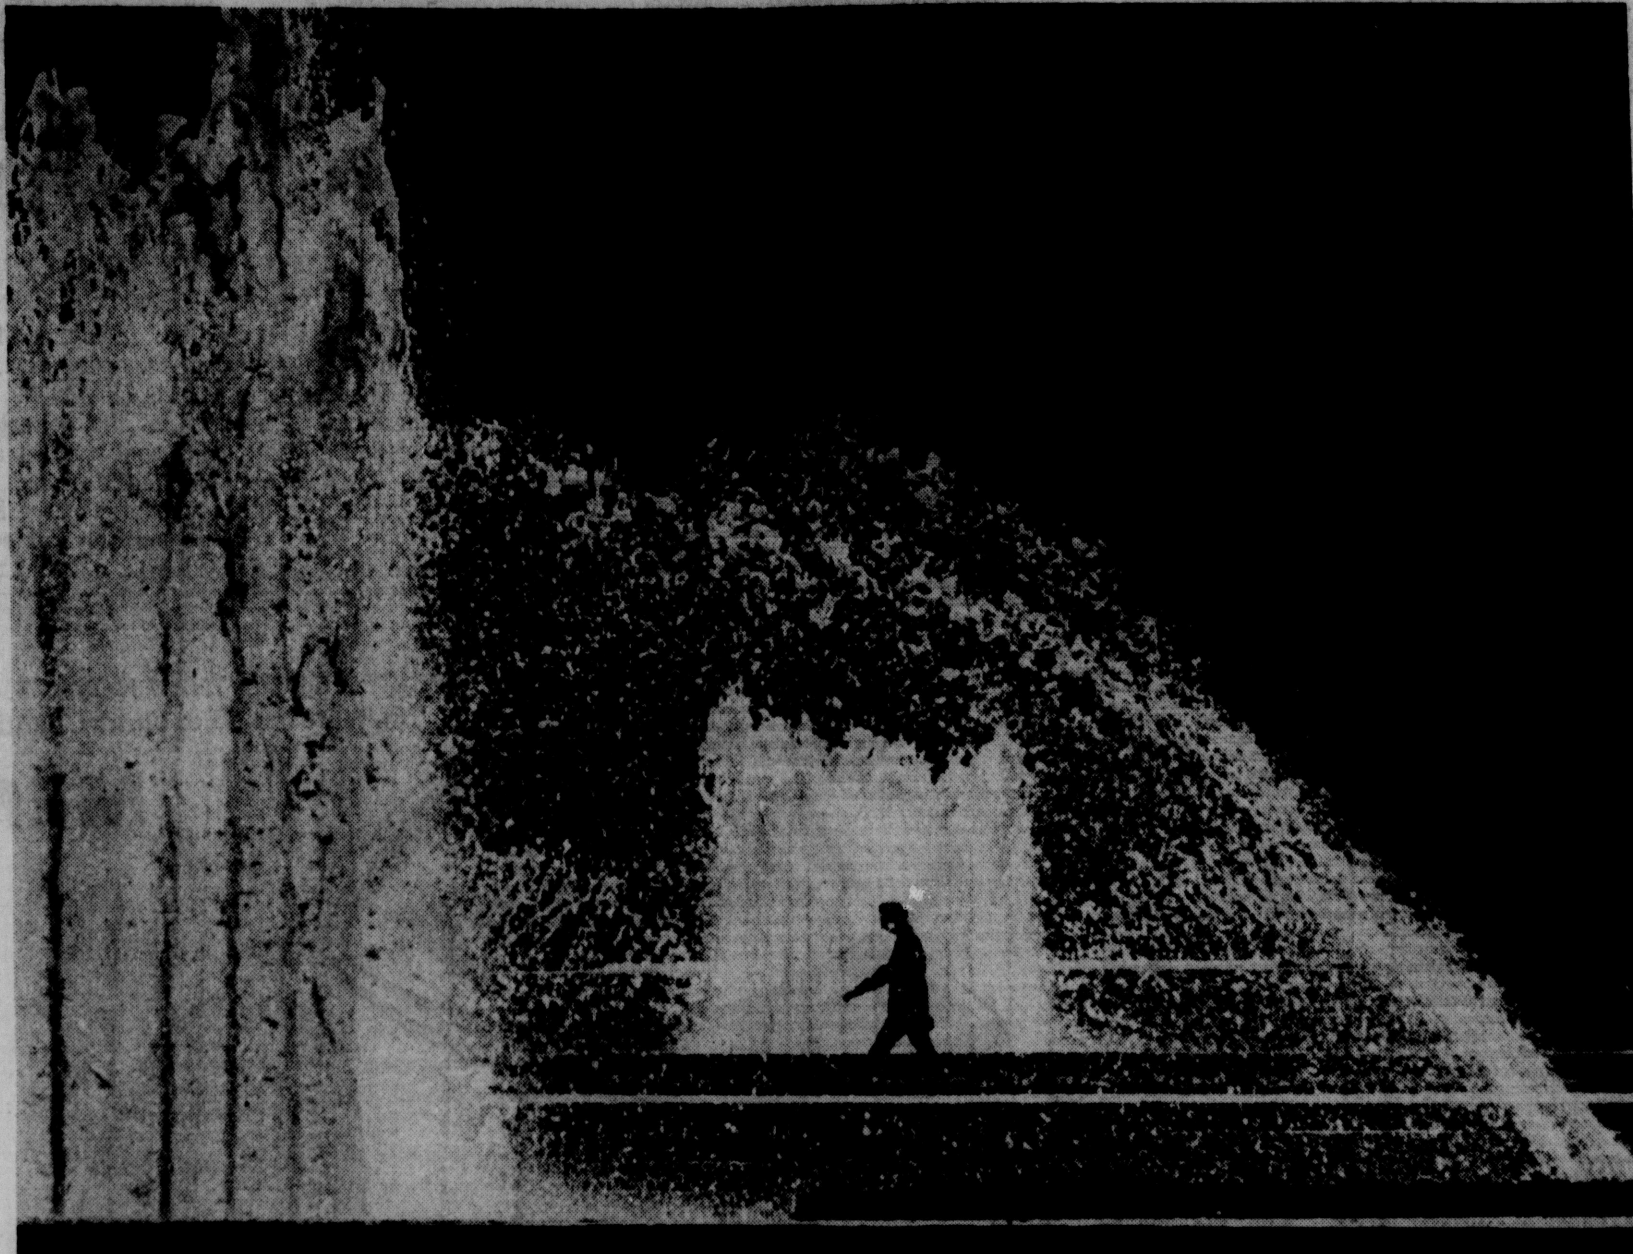

—International shipping rates.

—Dues to non-profit organizations.

—Some real estate, including unimproved properties and improved real estate that is now newly constructed, such as old homes. Also uncontrolled will be real estate with new improvements when the sales price is determined after construction or where construction wage rates are not changed by the Pay Board.

—Some rents will also be exempt from controls including rents on all commercial, industrial and farm property. Also exempt from rent controls will be new or "substantially rehabilitated" dwellings offered for rent for the first time after Aug. 15. The council defined a third or more of the total value of the property.

—Raw sugar.

Hardin Expected To Depart Soon

Washington (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin is expected to leave his Cabinet post soon, informed sources indicated Wednesday.

Hardin, who arrived back in Washington Wednesday from a trip to Turkey, could not be reached for a comment on the report. And the White House was mum on the subject.

"I have no information on that," deputy White House press secretary Gerald L. Warren said in response to a query.

But the informed sources have indicated it is virtually certain that the former chancellor of the University of Nebraska will step down from the position he has held since President Nixon took office in 1969.

Hal R. Taylor, deputy director of information for the Department of Agriculture, told reporters in response to questions:

"To our knowledge the report is unfounded. I cannot absolutely deny nor absolutely confirm the truth of that report."

Taylor said he did not know where Hardin went after returning to Washington late Wednesday. Hardin's office would say only he was not at the department.

Rep. William Scherle, R-Iowa, said Wednesday he had learned Tuesday night that Hardin has resigned. "We have checked it out today, and it's been confirmed," he told radio station KMA in Shenandoah, Iowa.

He did not give the source of his information, but he did say he had spoken with the White House and was told that no overtures had been made to anyone to succeed Hardin.

Mrs. Sturm Found Guilty Of Manslaughter

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Mrs. Judy L. Sturm, 28, of 2740 Arlington, was found guilty of manslaughter Wednesday by a Lancaster District Court jury in the Sept. 18 shotgun slaying of her husband, Harvey.

Mrs. Sturm was charged with second-degree murder by the state, but the jury of eight women and four men returned the verdict for the lesser crime of manslaughter after some 12 hours of deliberation.

During the seven-day trial, the state's attorneys had contended Mrs. Sturm "intentionally and maliciously" shot her 31-year-old husband while he slept.

But the defense attorneys maintained Mrs. Sturm acted "in terror and fear of her husband and for the protection of herself and children."

District Judge William Hastings had instructed the jury to return one of three possible verdicts: second-degree murder, manslaughter or acquittal.

In accepting the jury verdict of manslaughter, Judge Hastings excused the jury with thanks from further service and deferred sentencing of Mrs. Sturm until a later date.

Maximum penalty for manslaughter is 10 years imprisonment, but a lesser sentence or probation is possible.

Mrs. Sturm embraced her mother, Mrs. Lee Cline, as both women wept. Mrs. Sturm later told a reporter regarding the verdict, "My prayers have been answered."

Public Defender T. Clement Gaughan said he was "satisfied" with the verdict and doubted it would be appealed.

The jury balloted eight times before reaching a unanimous verdict, according to William Crane, jury foreman. He said all three possible verdicts were considered in the balloting but most of the jury discussion was between manslaughter and second-degree murder.

During the trial, neither the defense or prosecution disputed evidence that Mrs. Sturm shot her husband during the early morning hours of Sept. 18 in the bedroom of their home.

Testimony indicated that Mr. Sturm had beaten his wife, jerked the telephone from the wall and threatened to strangle her with the cord, and had thrown or broken various items in the house after coming home at 2 a.m.

While the prosecution contended she had loaded the shotgun with the intent of shooting her husband as he slept, the defense contended she had loaded the gun for self-protection and had only gone to the upstairs bedroom when she heard her baby cry and thought her husband was moving around.

Testimony by a defense psychiatrist suggested Mrs. Sturm was so overcome by fear and terror of her husband on the fatal night and from previous beatings that she was incapable of acting rationally on Sept. 18.

Fish Are Carefully Tallied In Study Of Missouri River

By SAM THORSON
Star Staff Writer

Ft. Calhoun — Norm Stuckey and his crew start their work-week seining for fish behind a series of finger-dikes three miles downstream from the Ft. Calhoun Nuclear Station, under construction near here by the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD).

The four men are research biologists, and their job is supplying data on fish populations to the state Game and Parks Commission as part of a 12-agency investigation of the ecological effects of thermal discharges to be released into the river by Nebraska's two nuclear plants once they begin power production in early 1973. The other plant, the Cooper Nuclear Station near Brownville, is being built by the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD).

Stepping into breast waders, two of the men enter the chilly water and drag a seine along the bottom for minnows. Then, if the water temperature is warm enough for the electrical equipment, the crews begin on catfish.

Stunned by a jolt from the "telephone shocker," the flatheads float to the surface and are scooped from the water with a landing net, measured, and tallied. Before each fish is released, one of its fins is marked to indicate where it was caught, so that its migration can be noted in case it is caught again.

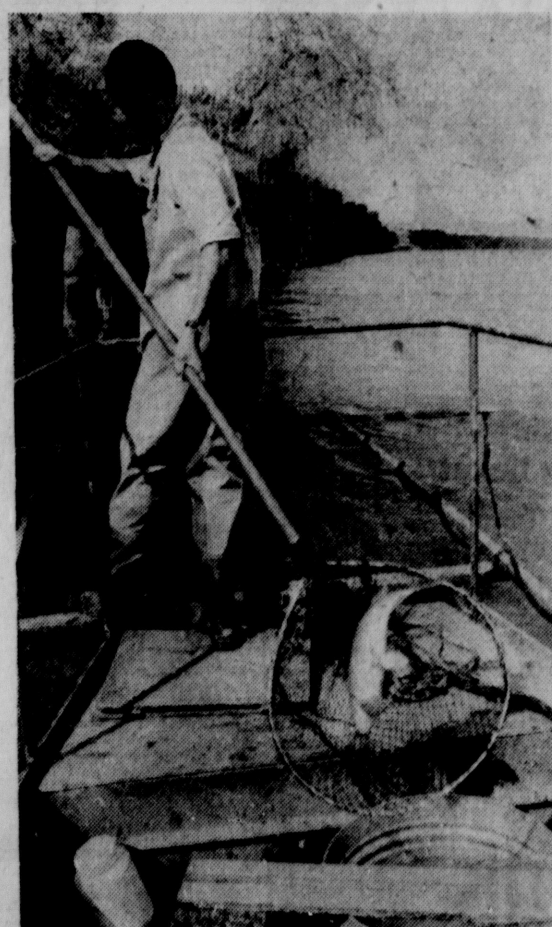

Boat Shock
Completing the finger dikes, the researchers head upstream toward the power plant to "boat shock" four half-mile stretches marked along the riverbanks, two on either side. The boat-shocker, its contacts dangling in the water ahead of the leading boat, is usable in all temperatures and turns up a diversity of species from tiny gizzard shad to large river catfish. The boat-shocked fish, like the flatheads, are measured, tallied by species, marked and returned to the river.

After lunch the men boat-shock two more half-mile stretches above the plant, one on either side, and finish with another series of finger dikes. Then they return to Lincoln with their data. Later in the week they spend a similar day at Cooper Nuclear Station near Brownville.

Stuckey's supervisor Earl Kendle, head of the Game and Parks research division and coordinator of the 12 agencies involved in the study, emphasized that it is not a simple "before and after" study to determine absolute fish populations before and after the plants begin releasing heated water from their cooling systems. Such a comparison, he said, would be impossible because of numerous variables—such as water level—which cannot be controlled, and might change between the "pre-" and "post-operative" sampling periods.

'Natural' Ratio

News Summary

Washington — The Senate voted to ratify a treaty returning Okinawa to Japan and ending American occupation of the main Japanese islands. The treaty, which will be ratified by President Nixon when Japan passes legislation permitting continued American use of military bases on Okinawa, resolves the last political issue between the countries growing out of World War II.

Japanese Resist Connally

Tokyo — Treasury Secretary John Connally met with Japanese economic officials but was said to have run into strong resistance to his efforts to have Japan greatly revalue the yen. Connally's talks were thought to be a potential turning point in Japanese-American relations, with lack of an agreement accelerating the recent deterioration in relations.

Castro Arrives In Chile

Slim Aid Bill OK'd

Washington — A Foreign aid bill authorizing $1.14-billion in economic and humanitarian assistance was approved Wednesday by the Senate. (More on Page 1.)

Finch To Tour Latin America

Washington — Robert H. Finch, the presidential counselor who is leaving Thursday on a tour of six Latin American countries, said the Nixon administration was treating the countries of Central and South America individually, in contrast to the policies of Democratic presidents that "lumped the Latin American countries together as banana republics."

Peru Takes Over Broadcasting

Lima — Peru promulgated a law that put all television and radio stations under effective state control. The law, the most sweeping state intervention in broadcasting in Latin America other than in Cuba, gives workers a share of the profits and control of the stations and gives the government much of the stations' stock.

Used Car Prices Exempt

Washington — Commercial rents, used cars, antiques and custom-made wigs are among the items that will be freed from price controls with the end of the 90-day wage-price freeze at midnight Saturday, the Cost of Living Council announced. (More on Page 1.)

Day Care Compromise Reached

Washington — Families with incomes up to $4,320 a year would get free day care and other services, and families with incomes up to $6,960 and would have to pay only small fees, under a compromise bill agreed to by Senate and House negotiators.

Dixie Chiefs Applaud Bus Vote

Atlanta — Southern Governors, ending a four-day conference in Atlanta, applauded the House passage of anti-busing amendments but appealed to Congress to write a uniform national desegregation policy so that the states are not forced to pay the federal share of court-ordered busing.

UAW May Not Quit Pay Board

Detroit, Mich. (AP) — Confident that more than 700,000 of its members will get all or nearly all of the wage boosts scheduled for later this month and on Dec. 6, the United Auto Workers Union is expected to oppose any labor pullout from the government's new Pay Board.

Highly placed sources within the UAW said Wednesday their leaders have decided to go along with a board decision generally to limit any wage increases to 5.5% annually and to fight "further down the road" for retroactive hikes for another 216,000 members.

"Our conclusion was that we made a hell of a lot of progress by being a part of the Pay Board, and we would be nuts to forfeit our right to participate in future decisions," said one member of the union's 25-member international executive board.

The UAW was to get a 3% automatic increase due Nov. 22 and a cost of living increase expected to be 14 cents hourly on Dec. 6. Together, they would top the board's limit by only about one-half of one per cent.

Both increases were included for the second and third years of three-year contracts won at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler after a 67-day strike against GM a year ago.

Leonard Woodcock, UAW president, voted with the other four labor members of the Pay Board against the 5.5% limit on yearly wage increases and against the ban on retroactive payment of raises held up during the wage-price freeze that began Aug. 14.

Woodcock's 1.6 million-member union is to send some 3,000 delegates to Detroit Saturday for a special convention.

Bank Borrowing Rate Cut To 4 3/4 %

Washington (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board cut its discount rate from 5% to 4 3/4% Wednesday, a move reflecting the downturn in interest rates generally.

The board said the latest change, the first since mid-July, was made in "recognition of reductions that have taken place in other short-term interest rates . . ."

The discount rate is the interest the Federal Reserve system charges its member banks for borrowing. Most other interest rates are scaled upward from it.

But the board's move, effective Thursday, represents no push for more expansive money policies. Instead, the board indicated, it is attempting to bring the rate into line with other short-term rates.

The action is effective at the Federal Reserve's regional banks at Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Dallas and San Francisco. The other five banks in the system are expected to reduce the interest rate shortly.

A vice president of Lincoln's National Bank of Commerce, Joseph Nisson, said the discount rate cut is no indication of the money market and will have no real effect on general interest rates.

(The Lincoln area is under the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank, one of the five that has not yet cut the rate.)

Pork, Egg, Fruit Supplies May Stem Food Price Rise

Washington (UPI) — Government economists said Wednesday that heavy supplies of pork, eggs and fresh fruit and vegetables, combined with the wage-price freeze, would prevent rises in food prices during the rest of the year.

Agriculture Department experts said that these supplies stemmed the sharp rise in food prices that occurred during the first 11 months of the year, but that some further increases could be expected during the first half of 1972.

For all of 1971, economists said, the all-food retail price index should average about 3% above 1970, compared with previous forecasts of 3.5%.

Last year, the index increased 5.5% when the average American spent 16.6% of his income for food. The estimated average this year is 16.2%.

Okinawa Policeman Beaten, Killed

Naha, Okinawa (UPI) — Rampaging students with their faces wrapped in towels burned a policeman with a flaming bottle of gasoline then beat him to death Wednesday during a day of violence and labor strikes protesting the American military presence on this Japanese island.

At least 80 persons were injured in firebomb and teargas clashes and police arrested 84 students and other demonstrators, police said. No Americans were involved.

The death of the policeman, whom police said was set afire by a Molotov cocktail and then jumped and beaten on the head by students until he started to bleed profusely, occurred several hours before the U.S. Senate voted 84-6 to ratify the U.S.-Japanese treaty returning Okinawa and the other Ryukyu Islands to Japanese rule.

The treaty was signed by the two governments in June. The Japanese Diet (Parliament) is debating ratification of the treaty.

Rehnquist's Rights Record Criticized

Washington (AP) — Labor leaders joined Wednesday in the attack on the civil-rights and civil-liberties record of William H. Rehnquist, one of President Nixon's nominees for two Supreme Court vacancies.

Spokesmen for the AFL-CIO and the United Auto Workers union urged the Senate Judiciary Committee to reject Rehnquist's nomination, using basically the arguments that civil-rights leaders had the day before.

Andrew J. Biemiller, testifying for the AFL-CIO, called Rehnquist "a right wing zealot... an extremist in favor of executive supremacy and diminution of personal freedom."

UAW President Leonard Woodcock, in a statement read by an aide, said Rehnquist "possesses neither the breadth of vision nor the humanity which is required of a Supreme Court justice."

The committee chairman, Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., has expressed confidence that Lewis F. Powell Jr. and Rehnquist will be speedily confirmed by the Senate after the committee acts on the nominations.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., a member of the committee's liberal bloc, also has said he thinks both nominees have majority support despite his misgivings about Rehnquist's appointment.

The committee chairman, Eastland, said Wednesday Rehnquist, an assistant attorney general, "is a badly persecuted man."

"He is being persecuted without cause by those opposed to him," Eastland declared in the midst of Biemiller's testimony.

Neither Biemiller nor Woodcock opposed Powell, a wealthy Richmond, Va., lawyer.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., ranking minority member of the Judiciary Committee, chided Biemiller about racial discrimination in the craft unions in the building trades.

Hruska said that if Biemiller was correct about Rehnquist's lack of belief in the Bill of Rights, perhaps some craft union members "who practice discrimination" would like to have him on the Supreme Court.

Biemiller replied that while there had been racial discrimination in the craft unions, significant progress has been made in overcoming it.

Heavy Casualties, Damage Done At Cambodian Airport

Saigon (AP) — Enemy forces attacked the Phnom Penh airport and a nearby communications center in coordinated attacks early Wednesday, inflicting heavy casualties and damage.

U.S. B52 bombers dumped tons of explosives on a rubber plantation near the beleaguered town of Rumlong while Cambodian troops battled to rescue some 400 men wounded defending the town 50 miles north-east of Phnom Penh.

The enemy mounted a steady mortar attack on the town and American bombers retaliated by pounding the plantation east of Rumlong where enemy ammunition is hidden.

A Cambodian army spokesman, Capt. Chang Song, said no accurate count of the casualties from the enemy attacks on the Phnom Penh airport and communications center was available. But unofficial reports said about 25 Cambodians were killed and 30 wounded.

Nine aircraft were reported damaged by a barrage of 50 rockets which slammed into the airfield and surrounding areas shortly after midnight.

They included three C47 transports, three light observation planes, and three of Cambodia's six helicopters. Two of the helicopters were badly torn up, spokesmen said.

At the same time the rockets hit the airport, sappers moved in behind another rocket barrage to attack a radio transmitting station nine miles to the northwest.

Witnesses said the sappers killed a number of women and children by throwing grenades into bunkers where they had taken cover.

Pearls In Mussel

Moscow (AP) — Russian fishermen reported netting a mussel with 35 pearls inside it in the Black Sea off the Crimean peninsula.

Dingo is such a tiny thing to have a broken leg. Janice Worner of Fort Myers, Fla., discovered that Dingo, her 6-week-old kitten, broke its leg when it fell from a couch. So she gave it plenty of tender loving care and — with a splint — Dingo is getting along fine.

Killing Seen As Part Of Anti-Anti-Red Effort

By IVER PETERSON

Saigon — The assassination Wednesday of Professor Nguyen Van Bong, the head of a pro-government political movement, presumably by Communist elements, was regarded here as part of the enemy's continuing attempt to wipe out potential leaders of South Vietnamese anti-Communist movements.

The 42-year-old faculty member of the National Institute of Administration was killed by a bomb that blew up his car and killed two other passengers as he drove away from his office shortly after noon.

Nguyen Van Bong

Bong was the founder and leader of the Progressivist Nationalist Party, which he had described as "the Loyal Opposition" and which U.S. Embassy officials said was "Moderate Opposition."

Bong had been widely mentioned in South Vietnamese circles as a possible successor to Premier Tran Thien Khiem in President Nguyen Van Thieu's new cabinet, which is expected to be announced later this month. But American officials who knew him well said Bong's real future had lain further ahead, possibly as president.

The American embassy's political section thought highly of Bong, who spoke excellent English and was known to support progressive domestic programs widely favored by the Americans. His party was described by one embassy official as "the most vital political party in Vietnam." It had 16 members elected to the lower house in last August's elections.

By "Loyal Opposition," Bong had said he meant the party

Sen. Harris Quits Race; 'I'm Broke'

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., dropped out of the running for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination Wednesday saying he is broke and cannot continue an active campaign.

Harris, who began his "New Populism" campaign for the White House just six weeks ago, said his visits to more than half the states convinced him that "there is a 'New Populist coalition' of disenfranchised minorities 'which can turn this country around.'"

"They believe in the need for the redistribution of income, for breaking up the inordinate concentrations of economic and political power, for idealism as the basis of foreign policy," Harris said.

"They want to put America back together again around these principles. They want the political process to work. They see 1972 as the crucial year. 'But I'm broke.'"

"And I cannot continue to campaign actively for president. The campaign office is closing."

Harris said he would continue both in the Senate and elsewhere "to discuss the real issues that can redeem America and give our people new hope."

Harris, 40, announced July 16 he would not seek re-election to a second Senate term next year. Aides denied he had made that decision because he had lost considerable support among Oklahoma voters for his often liberal votes in the Senate.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Labor appears at the moment to be on a direct collision course with President Nixon's Phase 2 economic controls. It is premature at this point to come to firm conclusions but certain facts of the situation are interesting.

It would appear from what the new pay board has said to date that organized labor is actually in a very favored position. While it may lose on the matter of pay increases retroactive to last Aug. 15, it may well win on the application from Nov. 14 on of negotiated contract terms.

The pay board has seemed to say that wage increases will generally be held to 5.5 per cent per year, except that previously negotiated increases will be honored. This means that if labor has a contract for a 10 per cent increase in wages at this time, it will be permitted to get that.

Thus, while the unorganized segment of the economy will be held to 5.5 per cent, organized labor will enjoy the fruits of whatever it obtained at the bargaining table in recent months. This, it seems to us, is far more a victory than whatever labor might lose on the retroactivity matter.

And this is to say nothing about the price board. The thinking of this group is expected to be known any day now and could be made public even before this article appears in print.

While little discussion has been given this aspect of things, the pay board is the other half of the economic program and both halves are equally important. Your standard of living, after all, depends upon two things — what you make and what you have to pay for the goods and services you buy.

But the price situation, also, is important in the overall aspects of the economy. What is the position of industry, for instance, if a 3 per cent raise in prices is the established limit while previously negotiated salaries are allowed to go up 10 per cent?

Presumably, a 3 per cent price increase and a 5.5 per cent wage increase means a very low rate of inflation. That means that the wage increase is a little better in terms of real money because it will be larger than the cost of the price increase.

If that is the case, it follows that a 5.5 per cent wage increase cannot quite be met by a 3 per cent price increase. Thus, business and industry operating with those percentages will face a little tougher situation from a profit point of view.

But if the wage increase hits 10 per cent, it would seem that the situation for management could be unmanageable if it is held to a 3 per cent price hike. Thus, a great deal depends upon the decisions of the price board and a firm opinion on wages can hardly be formed until the price action is known.

To date, information indicates that the people who will get hit the hardest by the wage controls are unorganized workers on a straight salary. In many areas, wages will be simply impossible to control. This will be the case involving commission pay and many service areas.

Even the price matter is expected to leave a lot to be desired due to difficulty of pricing. One major problem is expected in the area of quality. If a sacrifice in quality is used to get around the price lid, then that part of Phase 2 takes on little real meaning.

There remains in all aspects of the controls one single group that can be controlled and that is the mass of unorganized, salaried workers. It is not unlike the income tax system when the average guy on withholding is the one who has no loopholes to crawl through.

Labor knows, of course, that it probably has the power to make or break the new economic program. This is a heady thing to contemplate but there are some offsetting factors.

If the program fails and that failure can be laid in a political year at the doorstep of organized labor, the repercussions among millions of voters could be telling against labor. Labor has a future to look to as well as a present and a callous position at the moment may reap a lot of damage for it in the long-run.

Foreign Aid's Image The Worse For Wear

NEW YORK — Fascinating as it is to watch the Senate have a fling at fraying foreign aid, there's one thing sure (as taxes): The global spenders will find a way to wiggle out of this one, too.

So don't get your hopes up, fellow taxpayers. They may cut out a billion here and there, but you'll hardly be able to notice it come April 15.

Because, no matter how many voters squirm at the idea of playing Santa Claus to people who don't even like us, the folks in the White House are convinced it's the only way to keep this country No. 1.

Haven't you noticed us trying harder?

Without this diplomatic ace in the hole, they keep telling us, a lot of our foreign friends might turn against us and do something rash. Like maybe even cozy up to some communist power.

Well?

Fifty-four nations who graciously accept our millions every year did precisely that on the United Nations vote to kick Taiwan out. In that fast shuffle our diplomatic ace turned out to be a joker. And this was BEFORE the Senate went into a snit and chopped down the money tree.

What seems to bother most taxpayers about foreign aid (outside of the high tax brackets it puts us all in) is that it just doesn't seem to work.

Presidents insist it's their most valuable tool in maintaining a stable world, that without it there's no telling what might happen to weaker countries in their struggle to resist aggression and subversion.

So for the past 30 years we have shoveled money by the bucketful to our helpless friends around the world. Last time anybody bothered to count it had come to $143,000,000,000.

That, friends, is a lot of money. And have you noticed how "stable" the world is lately?

It all began back there after World War II, when we set up the Marshall Plan to help, among others, England, France, Italy, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, the Netherlands and Turkey.

And it was, among others, England, France, Italy, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, the Netherlands and Turkey who voted "no" on the U.S. motion to keep Taiwan in the U.N.

So much for our sure-fire formula for buying faithful friends.

We were even less successful in the underdeveloped countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America where we randomly spent millions sending peasants equipment they couldn't use—and cash their upper crust could.

It wasn't all bad. Hardly anyone resents foreign aid that feeds hungry children . . . or fights drugs . . . or sets up drug controls and such. And only the Scrooges among us would refuse to help starving refugees of earthquakes and tidal waves.

But here we are, 30 years older and $143 billion poorer, and we're still plagued by wars, famine, communism and friends we can't count on.

What's more, it still bugs us to think about that electrical equipment rusting in a south American jungle because nobody bothered to remember you can't plug it into a plam tree.

'Americanization Doesn't Seem To Be Working Any Better Than Vietnamization'

Game Is A Bonus

By coincidence, the National League of Cities scheduled its 1971 annual meeting for Nov. 28 to Dec. 1 in Honolulu, Hawaii, doubtless without the knowledge or a care that the Nebraska Cornhuskers were also set for an island trip to face the Hawaii Rainbows that very week.

Taxpayers, as they are wont to do, might question that coincidence and wonder whether representatives from Nebraska municipalities could attend in good conscience. After all, it smacks of a junket.

According to news reports, Omaha taxpayers will have to pay more than $3,000 to pay for five of seven City Council members to fly to Honolulu for the annual league session.

Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf — who has attended all other annual league meetings while mayor — is using funds budgeted for conferences to make the trip, but is personally picking up the tab for Mrs. Schwartzkopf. Two council members — Steve Cook and F. Bob Sikyta — are traveling via public money because they are delegates to the convention. The council office reports that Councilman Merle Hale is going "on his own" — not at taxpayer expense — because he is not a delegate, but nevertheless will attend meetings.

Neither the council nor the mayor have been lavish in spending public funds on themselves, but that is not the point. The fact is that some city funds will be spent on a worthwhile experience for Nebraska public officials, who are, by the way, generally overworked and underpaid. Although the benefits to the average citizen of such a trip don't jump right out in front of you, suffice it to say that a well-informed and coordinated urban lobby — which the league attempts to be — can't hurt any.

Lincoln representatives to the league meetings haven't publicly said whether or not they intend to view the Husker-Rainbow game at their own expense. It really makes no difference. We figure most people would, given the opportunity.

GOP Enjoys Early Kickoff

President Nixon unofficially kicked off his re-election campaign Tuesday to what must be the envy of the Democrats. Financial backing for the GOP was reaped by the vault full and the weight of the issues, at this point, appears to be comfortably on the President's side.

In a sweeping generalization, one could say that Nixon's biggest chore over the next few months would be to decide whether to dump Spiro Agnew or keep him on the ticket.

With political and show business luminaries placed strategically over the map, the President spoke in person at $500 per plate "salute to the President" dinners in New York and Chicago and via closed circuit television in 18 other cities from coast to coast.

The events raised more than $5 million for the party — not bad for one night. That amount would wipe out over half the deficit suffered by the Democrats in the 1968 presidential campaign.

Nixon used the partisan affair to appeal for bipartisanship in foreign affairs, particularly for resurrection of the foreign aid program. But he also set the tone for a key 1972 GOP issue: "Three years ago, the challenge that confronted us was a very great one. It was to end a war in which there was no end in sight. We now have a different challenge. It is to win peace when peace is in sight."

Neutralization of the war issue, the attempt to resolve the economic dilemma and the new diplomatic initiatives all leave Nixon in relatively good shape with less than a year to go before the election. Democratic hopes hinge on the success or failure of "Nixonomics."

Although all is quite obviously not right with the world, it is little wonder that the assembled Republican backers enjoyed their Tuesday night dinner.

GOP Banks Seem Favored For Federal Deposits; Taxpayer Hit Borrowing Back His Own Money

WASHINGTON—The federal government keeps billions of dollars of the taxpayers' money in banks run by Republican bigwigs.

The banks don't pay a penny in interest. Yet they loan the money back to ordinary Americans at rates up to 14 per cent. Their profits from this unique arrangement run into the millions each year, far more than it costs them to process the government accounts.

Even by the Treasury's conservative estimate, federal deposits in commercial banks range between $1 billion and $10 billion. Probably 12,000 of the 13,000 eligible banks have some kind of no-interest federal deposits, but the golden gravy is concentrated in the big GOP banks.

Take, for instance, the case of Charles Walker. Back in 1955, he became an executive of the Republic National Bank in Dallas. The bank suddenly started receiving big, interest-free federal deposits after he joined the Eisenhower administration in 1959 as an assistant to the Treasury secretary.

Now Walker is back at the Treasury again as its undersecretary. Coincidentally, Republic National's bank balances last year show it had a whopping $56 million in federal deposits.

Among the biggest federal deposits are withholding tax collections, which usually are paid directly to the banks by employers. The money is credited, of course, to the accounts of the U.S. Treasury. Thus, in effect, the IRS collects the taxes and turns the money over immediately to the banks for use of loans.

The banks pay the taxpayers nothing for the use of their money, then loan the money back to them individually at high interest rates. The harassed taxpayer, who needs to borrow money to pay his taxes, winds up paying interest to a bank for the use of his own money.

The Treasury's fiscal manager, Assistant Secretary John Carlock, swore to us politics has nothing to do with which banks get federal deposits. Employers deposit their workers' withholding taxes, for example, in the banks of their choice.

He acknowledged most government agencies deposit money—appropriated funds, some Indian trust funds, operational money for PXs and the like—in selected banks. But he insisted the banks were chosen for the services they provide.

Nevertheless, banks with good GOP connections seem to be blessed with the most interest-free federal money. Nor has there been any move by the Republicans, despite the federal budget squeeze, to end this bonanza for the banks.

A former mortgage banker, Martin Price, suggested in a "Washingtonian" magazine article that federal deposits should be allocated to banks which will use the money to promote social aims. This would include loans to help small business men, to stimulate the economy in depressed areas and to build up ghetto neighborhoods.

We retained Price to find out which banks receive the most federal deposits. Here are highlights from the research he completed for us:

Chase Manhattan, one of the most progressive of the giant banks, is controlled by the Republican Rockefeller family. One of its directors, Jeremiah Milbank, Jr., happens to be the GOP national finance committee chairman. Treasury Secretary John Connally once negotiated a loan for more than $30 million from Chase Manhattan to pay the taxes on the estate of Texas oil millionaire Sid Richardson. Last year, Chase Manhattan had more than $200 million in federal deposits.

One of Vice President Agnew's favorite banker cronies is George Moore, a dependable Republican contributor, who retired last year as chairman of the First National City Bank of New York. This bank had well over $300 million in no-interest deposits from the government.

One of the party's most sagacious financiers is Harold Helm, a member of the GOP's booster club and New Jersey finance committee. He is also executive committee chairman of the Chemical Bank in New York City, which had $40 million in IRS accounts, in this

Patchwork Prairie Country

The autumn rains have come with their soggy mess matting down the dry, fallen leaves and dripping from the roof of the gray barn. Scampering about in frenetic haste are the ground squirrels gleaming from the roadsides the last of the seed pods to store deep beneath the earth's crust. Now they look sleek and fat as they stand straight as a fence post when danger is near. Soon they will enter their tunnel and hibernate over the bleak winter months.

The marshland is lonely now. I watched the herons circle higher and higher until they became only small black specks in the sky drifting southward. Their harsh, coarse voices could be heard long after I lost track of their slender bodies.

The black Angus calves are growing a thick coat of hair. Soon the snow will be matted on their backs and their coats of fur their only protection against the bitter winds.

There is a sprinkling of frost-diamonds over the hills and the stars seem to bend nearer the earth. The wind is shrill like a harp out of tune but it is strong enough to blow the last of the milkweed fluff away.

Soon now, fall and winter will meet under a leaden sky, the ground will freeze and the creeks will slow. The hawks will circle high above the snowy fields, aware of the ominous scarcity of food.

I will pull my coat tighter about me, watch my frosty breath curl from my quivering lips and gasp, "Brrr! Winter is here again."

For some strange reason I dislike winter more and more as I add another year to my life. Is this still another sign that I am sliding down the other side of the hill? In any event, I hope I don't slide too fast. I would prefer a slow easy glide.

Today as I fried chicken I took out my favorite heavy skillet that I have had since the year after we were married. I can always depend upon it to brown the chicken to a crisp golden brown with a tenderness inside that we like. It browns chops and steaks evenly and deliciously. It never fails me.

Yes, I have an electric skillet, too, and one with a Teflon coating. The electric skillet, I use for pancakes and such. The Teflon skillet I use when my heavy, old skillet is in use and I am forced to use it, but there is nothing that replaces the original one we purchased years ago.

One lady said she likes her cast-iron Dutch oven for pot roasts and other meats. Mine isn't cast-iron but, like my friend, we have our favorites.

I have a deep-fat fryer, too, that I use for frying raised doughnuts and upon occasion have used it for chicken. It is good for making French fries, too, but I really don't use it as much as I should.

Oh, I know the directions say the oil doesn't need to be drained from it after each use and onions or fish can be fried and the same oil used for frying doughnuts and other foods, but somehow this doesn't work too well. We don't eat too many fried foods and the word is we should eat fewer and fewer of them as we grow older. Consequently the oil would become rancid, I fear, if I let it stand in the deep-fat fryer. Not only that, I dislike getting the fryer out, adding the oil and cleaning it again after use.

I am like the friend who got an elaborate vegetable chopper with various blades for Christmas last year. She tried it once but said it took so much time to put it together, take apart and wash that she preferred her sharp knife. She shreds cabbage for slaw in a fraction of the time with nothing more than her trusty old knife. Well, perhaps this doesn't prove anything but that wasn't my aim when I began my column.

Liquor Licenses

Lincoln, Neb.

I wish to commend Audun and Barbara Ravnar for taking time to express their views in this column on the granting of the Hideaway liquor license by the Liquor Commission against the wishes of the citizens of the area and the vote of the City Council members. The other 500 people who signed petitions against this license also had the same feelings but only one couple took time to write. Perhaps this is the reason we do not accomplish more in the way of social reform.

This is par for the course for the Liquor Commission whose members draw $16,000 a year for sitting in on hearings several times a month. A few years ago when Gateway was being considered for liquor and beer licenses, I walked the streets of the area and collected hundreds of signatures on petitions opposing these licenses. Only two families in the area did not sign them, since there were activities for children on the mall just outside these doors. The Liquor Commission granted the licenses over our protests.

If the commission members are so anxious to create more alcoholics, I would recommend that the next Legislature cut their salaries and use the savings for detoxification and rehabilitation of the alcoholic. It has been proven that alcoholism is in direct proportion to the availability of alcohol.

Just recently those responsible for the alcohol program at Lincoln General Hospital stated in this paper that they should come to the citizens of Lincoln for funds if all the grants did not come through for the program. Taxpayers have had it up to their ears, taking care of the problems which the liquor dealers create. Why not go to the liquor dealers, who have created the alcoholics, for their care?

I was notified that two different hospital insurance policies would be increased in order that the alcoholic might be covered in the hospital. Car insurance goes up every year for the thousands of accidents caused by drunken drivers. We were told in a visit to the Penitentiary that 86 per cent of the prisoners there had committed their crimes under the influence of alcohol, and now they want a Hilton hotel for a penitentiary. If 86 per cent of the prisoners could be reduced, we would not need a new building.

SAM'S Bonfire

Lincoln, Neb.

The Sigma Alpha Mu Fraternity has had a bonfire for eight years. Now they are saying that this will be the last year.

I feel that if the SAM's can't have their bonfire because of pollution, they should say no family should have more than one car. If they need more transportation, they should use bikes.

They should also be getting the new buses because the old ones make three times more pollution in one day than one bonfire does a year.

BIG JOHN

Too Much Junk

Lincoln, Neb.

I like The Star because it makes good sense, and we sure don't hear much of that any more.

I get tired of hearing all this discussion about sex. You would think that it is something they have just discovered. It is as old as the hills.

Why do the taxpayers have to pay out good money for such junk to be included in the schools? We want the youngsters to learn to behave as decent men and women, to be good citizens, and have respect for themselves and others, for the police, all laws and our God. We send them to school for this reason, and to keep their minds clean and their thoughts full of respect for themselves, others and their country.

There is a right way and a wrong way of living. Let's take the right way.

I think they plan too much pleasure and not enough of learning the things of value. What are our colleges coming to these days? There should be more studies and not so much junk.

Farmer Burdened

Lincoln, Neb.

The union at International-Stanley, 31st and St. Paul, Lincoln, went on strike Monday, Nov. 8, for higher wages.

International-Stanley repairs rail cars. The pay raise will be passed on to the farmers and to the city dwellers in increased food costs.

The farmers are already overburdened with costs. The NFO should work to prevent said pay raises; otherwise our rapidly vanishing farmer may become extinct and all our youth may have to face a future of starvation or grow gardens on the concrete floors of their apartments.

The pay raise is totally unnecessary, inflationary, illegal and un-American and must be prevented.

Chicanos' Voice

Lincoln, Neb.

Governor Exon's action of last week in appointing members of the Governor's Mexican-American Commission came as no surprise. It is an excellent example of the paternalistic manner in which Chicano people have been treated in this country.

We strongly protest the appointments—not because we question the integrity or the abilities of the men chosen—but rather because of the manner in which the governor made these decisions, almost completely ignoring the will of the Chicano citizens of this state speaking through the Nebraska Coalition of La Raza.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Doctor Tells Story Of Quackery

By ROBERT PETERSON

A sick person will often try anything. His eagerness to get well sometimes leads him voluntarily into the hands of those crafty practitioners we have come to label as quacks.

The lore of quackery has been so rich in California that Thomas Lyon, M.D. of the San Diego Medical Society, decided to assemble a collection of spurious medical gadgetry.

"The first great quack in this country," said Dr. Lyon in an illustrated talk I heard him give, "was Elisha Perkins. In 1715 he developed his 'Perkins Patented Metallic Attractor.' It consisted of two rods, each filled with three different metals.

"Perkins simply drew the rods over the affected parts of one's body and assured the patient he was being cured.

"One of his patients was George Washington. Another was Oliver Ellsworth, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

"Perkins grew rich, sent his son to Yale, gave his offspring a set of rods when he graduated and packed him off to England where the boy made even more money than his pop."

Dr. Lyons went on to describe dozens of curious devices which have appeared in recent years and flourished for brief periods before state and federal food and drug inspectors were able to curb and convict their imaginative creators. Many of these devices purportedly cured cancer and arthritis.

There was the Chandler Diagnostic Machine — an imposing box with 48 dials which promised to cure what ailed you at $25 a treatment... The Wilshire Belt which you merely wore around your middle to cure stomach disorders... the Ozone Generator with its flashing fluorescent tubes emanating smelly but useless oxides of nitrate... and the Filmasonic machine which cost $500 and which mysteriously plucked healing rays from space as the patient lay quietly in bed listening to a tape recording of the Scriptures.

A gadget popular with the gullible was the "Spectochrome" with which you could project bright colors toward your ailing parts — a different color pattern for every disease. With the help of a snappy slogan, "A Spectochrome in Every Home," the inventor distributed 10,000 machines at $90 apiece. When he was finally convicted, 112 people took the stand defending him.

"We don't like to talk about it," said Dr. Lyons, "but on rare occasions there have even been quacks in the medical profession. One of the most notorious was a physician named Albert Abrams, who developed a 'Dynamizer' which purportedly measured the vibrations of disease as found in a drop of blood. He had people all over the world mailing him drops of blood which he would examine for a fee and offer a diagnosis."

Quackery has many facets—pathos, chicanery, humor, hope, and tragedy. Dr. Lyons admitted there is a grain of mercy in quackery. When reputable medicine cannot effect a cure, a desperate patient may find a smattering of precious hope in the brazen, unwarranted promises of medical pretenders.

Want question answered? Action on something? Phone or write ACTION LINE, Sunday Journal and Star, giving name, town, daily paper (Star, Journal or Sunday) plus your request. When I was hired as night custodian three years ago by the University of Nebraska, I was told two weeks pay would be held back and that if I left the position, that money would be paid me. I found a better job on Aug. 18, asked for the back pay, but was told that was not in the agreement. Help.

—E.J., Elmwood

ACTION LINE: You unfortunately did not give enough information for Action Line to fully explore your situation.

According to John Dzerk, UNL physical plant administrator, there is no reason why you should have not received your back pay. Dzerk explains that it normally takes one month for the first paycheck to be received by a new employee due to accounting procedures.

This means that a new employee actually works for two weeks without receiving pay, pay which is given him when he leaves. Dzerk says you should contact the supervisor of the department for which you worked or give more detailed information to Action Line, since you should have received the pay.

I am a sophomore at Crete Senior High School and for a class project I am to lead a discussion on the rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar." I need a script from the opera and some pictures.

Can a landlord raise the rent on an apartment during the wage-price freeze if one person moves out and another person moves in?

—M.P., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: No, says the Internal Revenue Service, office in charge of wage-price freeze information and complaints. And if you do have a complaint against a specific landlord contact IRS at 475-3541.

Looking ahead to the end of the freeze on Nov. 13, the landlord will still need to check with IRS before hiking rent during Phase II of the economic policy. He would then need to justify that the increase is non-inflationary. If he has made improvements, says IRS, they must equal at least the value of three months rent with a minimum of $250. Then the owner can raise the rent by one and a half per cent of the improvements.

If Adam and Eve had two sons, Cain and Abel, where did the boys get their wives?

—M. W., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Dr. Darrel Berg, pastor at Trinity United Methodist Church, has the opinion that Adam and Eve and their sons are mythical people in a mythical situation.

Therefore, Berg says, one does not really have to worry about details like where the wives came from in a situation deeply rooted in mythology. To say the situation is mythical does not mean to say that the situation is fictional, Dr. Berg hastens to point out.

Precise details of the myth are not in themselves important, only the larger truth that the story means to illustrate.

Wouldn't it be possible to start groups of adult sports activities once a week in high school gyms so that adults could get some exercise and meet some other people interested in sports. This would be a program just for the fun of playing, not instruction. Perhaps a once a week sports activity for married couples.

—V.L., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: City Recreation Director Richard Leker says his department's budget is earmarked for present programs and would not stand another addition at all.

For adult sports, the department currently offers men's open gym classes which started Nov. 8. Working men may drop in between 7 and 9 p.m. at the following junior high school gyms: Irving on Mondays; Goodrich on Tuesdays; Robin Mickle on Wednesdays; and Whittier on Thursdays.

For the lady of the house or office, evening slim gym classes are offered for 25 cents per class and there is organized activity and time for individual activity at these sessions. Contact the recreation department for full details.

However, if there is sufficient interest shown in arranging some gym activities through agencies other than the recreation department, perhaps it can be arranged before next fall.

Forecast For Thursday

Readers and writers are traditionally associated with Gemini and Virgo, while publishers are Sagittarians. Check with your local library should a survey be taken, the odds are that those who do most of the checking out of books will be born under those three zodiacal signs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Conditions subject to abrupt change. There are postponements, substitutions. Messages tend to go awry. Have alternative plans at hand. Those you usually depend upon act in eccentric manner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Lover's quarrel could be featured. Children could make unreasonable demands. Hold reins on self-control. No long-range commitments. Wait and see. Emotional storm will blow over. Patience.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Disruption of basic plan could boomerang in your favor. Don't force issues. Ride with tide. Family member sings blues. Be sympathetic but refuse to act as human crying towel. Adhere to principles.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Hold off on journeys, if practical. Don't write letters or make calls while angry. Sit a conservative course. Check facts. Be sure of reference material. Older individual acts in cantankerous manner.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23): Finish what you start. Take it easy where financial ventures are concerned. Examine various aspects of any proposal. Some around you talk for sake of hearing sound of their own voices. Respond accordingly.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23): What appears an aggressive move may be mere maneuver to attract your attention. Those who make threats probably are bluffing. Hold ground, but review position. You get chance for new start.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23): Difficult, if not impossible, to keep secrets. Confidential conference could turn into public gathering. Know this and be prepared.

Study published material. What you seek already has been made public. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Complete revision of hopes, wishes indicated. Friends act in manner calculated to arouse animosity. Maintain sense of humor. Stress versatility. Refuse to be backed into corner — emotional or otherwise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Study contracts. Check legal aspects of any enterprise. Accent on how to hold together a special relationship. Attention required in public relations area. Mate, partner expresses unorthodox desire.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Communication lines may be disrupted. Be sure meanings are clear. Some now have tendency to misquote you. Make changes. Be flexible. Listen and learn. But maintain attitude of intelligent skepticism.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't mix money and friendship. If you do, both could be lost. Control temper. Give logic equal time with impulse. Make living quarters more comfortable. Strive for greater family harmony.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Work behind scenes. Give full effort to protect aimed at promoting worthwhile charity. Be considerate toward one confined to home, hospital. Important to be discreet; let others show their hands. Another Piscean figure prominently.

Urbom Decides He Has Jurisdiction In Tribal Council Election Dispute

Federal District Court Judge Warren K. Urbom ruled Wednesday he has the jurisdictional authority to decide a dispute involving a Winnebago Tribal Council election.

Collaterally, Judge Urbom issued a temporary injunction against the tribal council to bar the unseating of three newly-elected members or the calling another election as an alternative to one held Oct. 5. The dispute centers on the seating of three members elected by an Oct. 5 tribal election. Later, the results of the election were questioned and the council refused to seat the three.

The three new members — Mrs. Cora Solomon, Matthew Cleveland and Louis Mallory — filed suit and won a temporary restraining order against an alternate election until Judge Urbom's ruling Wednesday.

In a memorandum opinion, Judge Urbom said that prior to the Indian Civil Rights Act of 1968, federal courts had invoked the doctrine of "internal controversy" to label their findings of no jurisdiction over such matters.

However, Judge Urbom said the congressional act, intended as a "Bill of Rights" for Indians gives the federal court jurisdiction over claimed abridgement of rights of individual members by the tribal council.

In his memorandum order, Judge Urbom said the tribal council has "no authority to invalidate an election."

Thus, he said, the council exceeded its authority for refusing to seat the three new members on these grounds.

Council authority for disqualification of its members is limited to matters of age, residency and neglect of duty or gross misconduct, he said.

Railway Commission Plans Hearings On Consolidation

The Nebraska Railway Commission has scheduled three public hearings for December and January regarding consolidation of railroad stations.

A hearing has been scheduled for 10:30 a.m., Jan. 6, at Lewellen concerning Union Pacific's request for permission to close its station there.

A similar hearing has also been scheduled involving the Burlington Northern's request to establish a mobile station at Nebraska City.

The mobile station would cause the closing of stations at Bennett, Palmyra, Unadilla, Syracuse, and Schubert. The hearing will be at 10 a.m. Jan. 11, in Nebraska City.

The Burlington will hold another hearing at 10 a.m. in Wahoo regarding a similar proposal by the Burlington to set up a mobile station at Ashland with the removal of station facilities at Chalco, Gretna, Wahoo and Prague.

Mullen Hospital District Upheld By Judge Moran

MULLEN, Neb. (AP) — District Court Judge Robert Moran of Alliance has upheld the legality of the formation of the Mullen Hospital District formed to serve Hooker and parts of Thomas and Grant counties.

Judge Moran said Tuesday opponents of the district did not specifically state where the county commissioners had erred in setting up the district, and they had met the condition set forth in a recent State Supreme Court case because of the implication the board found formation of the district conducive to public health and welfare.

The five-member hospital board selected by the county commission is slated to meet soon to consider the question of a special election to decide whether the new district should take over assets of the present hospital in Mullen.

The hospital is run by a non-profit corporation.

Street Closings Are Announced

Beginning Thursday, Pioneer Blvd. from 54th to 57th will be closed until Dec. 15 for paving, according to the City Traffic Engineering Office.

Also closed until Nov. 15 is 29th from Merrill to Center and an alley between 28th and 29th Center and Hitchcock.

John Selzer Fund Exceeds $4,000

David City (UPI) — The fund for John Selzer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Selzer of Bellwood, has gone over the $4,000 mark.

He was injured in an early-season football game against the Lakeview junior varsity and is paralyzed from the neck down.

Taking contributions are Aquinas High School, Bellwood Co-op Credit Association, First National Bank and the David City Bank.

Young Selzer is hospitalized at Lincoln General Hospital.

Committee Sets Budget Hearing Dates

Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, chairman of the Legislature's Budget Committee, has announced the committee will hold hearings Nov. 18 and 19 on the budget requests for the coming fiscal year for seven major state agencies.

With the 1972 session limited to 60 days, Marvel has said he would like to begin budget hearings before the session begins.

On Nov. 18, the committee will review budgets for the Military Department, Soil and Water Conservation Commission, Agriculture Department, and Revenue Department.

Northeast Branch Library Continuance Urged

Individuals concerned about the closing of the Northeast Branch Library at 27th and Orchard appeared before the Lincoln Library Board Wednesday to urge that the branch be maintained until a new facility is built.

The board took no action but indicated that the situation would be re-examined to determine if the usage justified maintaining the branch beyond the six-month period ending in February the city had agreed to leave the branch open.

The citizens of the area noted that the area served by the Northeast branch is "unique" in that many persons living in this area do not have the means to visit the new branches which are several miles from their homes and that many of these homes contain fewer books than the average home in Lincoln.

In a prepared statement from Wendell Gauger representing the group, the committee stated that they are "fearful that if the branch is closed that the people needing books who live in this area will not have adequate resources to obtain them from other sources."

Four of the older branches including the Northeast Branch were scheduled to be closed when the two new branch libraries, Victor E. Anderson and Charles Gere, were opened.

However, based on citizen concern in the area, the board had agreed to keep the Northeast Branch open for an additional six months.

In other action, the board approved a $800 annual contract with W. C. Bullock Co. for snow removal at the two new branch libraries.

Kissinger Controls Intelligence

... FOR U.S., FULBRIGHT, SYMINGTON DECLARE

Washington (UPI) — Sens. Stuart Symington and J. William Fulbright said Wednesday the administration is trying to give White House assistant Henry Kissinger operational control of the nation's intelligence network.

Fulbright, D-Ark., and Symington, D-Mo., who serve on a special Senate subcommittee that oversees the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), criticized President Nixon for overhauling intelligence activities without informing Congress in advance.

In a Senate speech Symington called for a full congressional inquiry into the reorganization. He said the shakeup did not explain what caused it or expand on the remedies "which have now been unilaterally decreed."

Fulbright said it was clear that Kissinger's new role was "a further erosion of congressional control over the intelligence community" since he is exempt from testifying before Congress on grounds of executive privilege.

'Enhanced Role'

The White House announced

last Friday that CIA Director Richard Helms had been handed an "enhanced leadership role" and would be put in charge of overall intelligence operations — including the CIA and the various defense intelligence units. At the same time, Kissinger, Nixon's national security affairs adviser, was named to head a special National Security Council Committee that will work with Helms.

It was not clear from the announcement what Kissinger's relationship would be to Helms and Symington questioned how Helms' leadership would be enhanced by the move, noting he will give up operational control of the CIA to a deputy.

"Has this new White House committee been given authority and-or responsibility which heretofore was the responsibility of the CIA; and which the Congress, under the National Security Act, vested in that agency?" he asked.

Helms is a popular figure on Capitol Hill and critics of the Vietnam war claim the CIA's intelligence estimates of enemy capabilities were far more accurate than those of Defense Intelligence.

Some members believe the CIA forewarned the administration against conducting the 1970 commando raid on a suspected prisoner of war camp in North Vietnam.

"How can the integrity of the intelligence product be assured when responsibility for the most critical aspects of intelligence analysis is taken out of the hands of career professionals and vested in a combination of military professionals and the White House staff?" Symington asked.

China's U.N. Advance Man Is A Spy

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Washington — The head of the advance party for Peking's delegation to the United Nations has been identified as a leading Chinese intelligence agent.

U.S. officials expressed surprise and concern that Kao Liang was selected for the delicate assignment of laying the groundwork for Peking's first diplomatic mission in the United States.

Kao, heading a six-man advance party, arrived in New York Monday and paid his first visit to the U.N. Tuesday with two other advance men. He is making preliminary arrangements for the official delegation scheduled to arrive in New York Thursday.

The United States, the Soviet Union and other major powers have long used diplomatic cover for their intelligence agents. Last month, for example, the CIA leaked the accusation that Vladimir P. Pavlichenko, director of external information of the U.N. public information office, is a "veteran officer" of the KGB, the Soviet intelligence agency.

But Peking, moving into the international diplomatic spotlight for the first time, had not been expected to get into the game so soon, particularly with a man of Kao's reputation. U.S. intelligence maintains a thick file on Kao. He is accused of conducting extensive intelligence operations in Asia, Europe and Africa while ostensibly serving as a journalist for the New China News Agency (NCNA).

He was expelled from India in 1960 and from Mauritius in 1964. He has also been active in Nepal and in Switzerland, where he attended the 1961 Geneva conference on Laos.

His principal assignment prior to the U.N. was as chief African correspondent for NCNA. Taking up residence in Dar es Salaam, the capital of Tanzania, in 1961, Kao traveled regularly throughout Africa at the high point of Peking's operations on the continent.

Kao is said to have been the prime mover in the pro-Peking coup in Zanzibar in 1964, passing out money and arms to the insurgents, including Sheikh Abdul Rahman Muhammed (Sheik Babu), a former NCNA stringer who emerged as foreign minister.

Since its inception, NCNA, like the Soviet press agency Tass, has been considered by U.S. intelligence to be an occasional front for espionage activities, particularly in countries where Peking has no formal diplomatic relations.

Ex-Chinese Army Marshal Rises To New Prominence

•The New York Times

Hong Kong — Yeh Chien-ying, a 73-year-old former marshal of the Chinese army, who has become increasingly active following recent signs of a new power struggle in Peking, has been promoted to a higher-ranking status within the important political bureau of the Communist Party.

This was seen here as an indication that he had taken on new responsibilities, probably in the field of military affairs.

His rise to new prominence coincides with the abrupt departure into political limbo of Lin Piao, the party vice chairman and defense minister, and the disappearance from public view of a number of top military men.

These military leaders have not been seen publicly since the early part of September. Their disappearance has been linked with a number of other unusual occurrences, including a mysterious plane crash in Mongolia on Sept. 13 and the cancellation of China's National Day Parade on Oct. 1.

It was thought possible here that Yeh may have inherited Lin's ministerial post or his job as executive head of the party's military commission, or succeeded Huang Yung-sheng, as chief of the army's general staff. Huang is one of the missing military leaders.

Trendwood Wellington Greens Hollingsworth Heights Kimberly Heights

Although the holiday season is still two days and six weeks off, and the glitter of festivities is still in the talking stage, there are many suburban families who have been entertaining in party fashion for many other than holiday reasons. Of course, it is always fun to get together with a group of friends, even if the incentive isn't a special occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wendell, for instance, hosted a party last weekend at their Trendwood home following the Nebraska victory over Iowa State. The event was called a 'Go Big Red Party,' and following the chilling weather at the game, four couples returned to the Wendell home to warm up cold feet and hands 'round the fire.' There were snacks and drinks, and then some more football for the sports fans, who tubed in to the LSU-Alabama game.

Another party is being planned for the coming weekend at the Wellington Greens home of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Julian. The

dinner party is what might be called a 'coming and going affair,' for there is a dual purpose. The occasion is both to welcome former Lincoln residents, Mr. and Mrs. Les Wheeler, back to town and to bid a fond sendoff to Mr. and Mrs. Irv Bloom who will leave for their winter home in California in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Les Wheeler have returned to Lincoln to once again make it their home, having lived away for the past 15 years. They moved back some four weeks ago from Friendly Valley, Calif.

Other guests at the buffet dinner will be Mr. and Mrs. Larry Welch and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Layman.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Engelbart of Hollingsworth Heights recently hosted a party for a very special occasion, namely their 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Engelbart entertained 32 relatives and friends at dinner at a Lincoln restaurant, after which there was coffee and chatting at the home of the host and hostess.

A shared birthday and the anticipation of a party was the inspiration for Miss Alice Hutson's recent journey to Vancouver, Wash.

The hostess role ended on Tuesday morning for another suburban resident who has spent the past few days entertaining relatives.

Mrs. Pearl Frey of Kimberly Heights welcomed her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Callahan of Bridgeview, Ill., into her home for a two-day visit—and on Sunday she was hostess at a family dinner in honor of the visitors.

Included on the guest list for the Sunday affair were Mrs. Frey's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeShon.

The Lincoln resident returned from the west coast just a week ago after spending two enjoyable weeks with her relatives.

Miss Hutson shared her birthday with her twin brother, Alfred Hutson—and that was the first time the two had celebrated together for many, many years. The festivity took the form of a dinner out on the town.

While in Vancouver, Miss Hutson also visited with her sister, Mrs. George Stombaugh, and Mr. Stombaugh—and was included on their guest list for a Halloween party.

Relatively speaking, relatives have been occupying much of the time and thoughts of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Shoemaker of Trendwood.

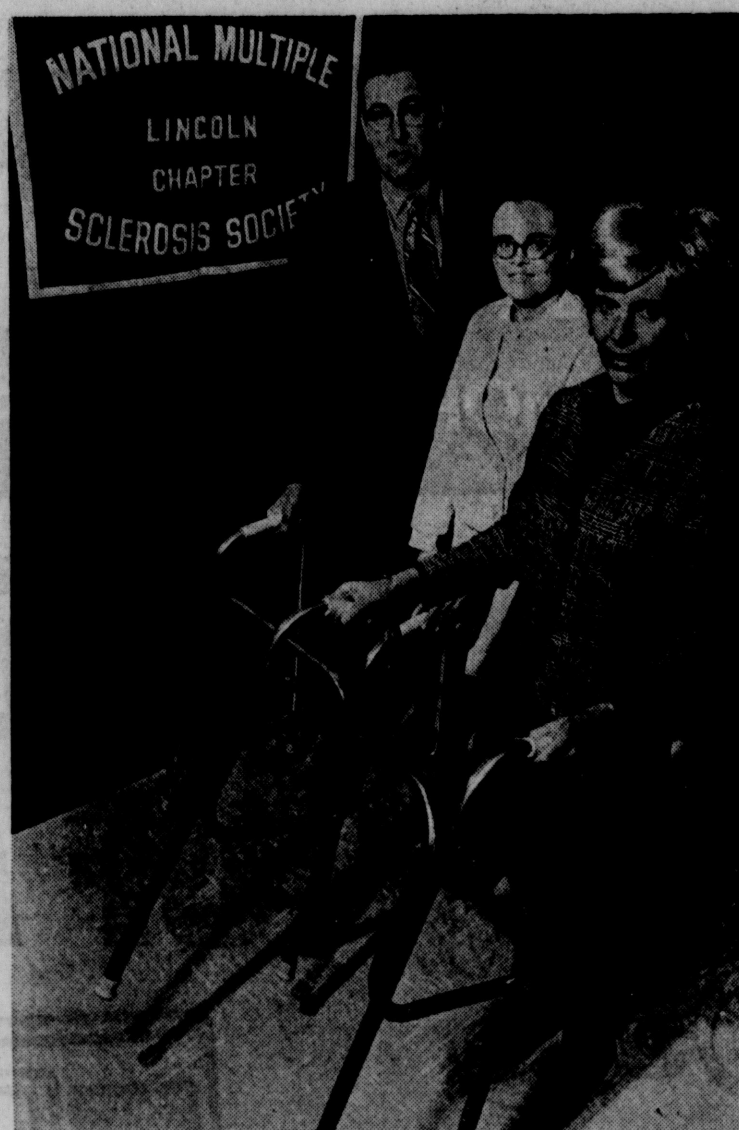

It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Shoemaker moved into their new motor home last Friday and embarked on a trip to Worthington, Minn., where they visited with Mrs. Shoemaker's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Steve McCauley.

The couple returned to their home late Sunday evening.

We can't tell you exactly how many candles were on the cake when Harold D. Warner of Southwood celebrated his birthday on Sunday. We are sworn to secrecy. But we can reveal who all was on hand for the family dinner.

The birthday boy's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Weber and their children, Glennis, Rodney, and Rick—came from Wymore for the party. Adding to the 'happy' birthday festivity were members of the celebrant's family, Mrs. Warner and the children, Vincent and Angela.

MS Society Receives Walkers

planning visitations to and baking cookies for MS patients at Christmas time.

One of the most visible projects to aid the Society was completed on Wednesday, Nov. 10, when representatives of the sorority chapter presented two walkers to the Lincoln MS Chapter at its November board meeting.

The two adjustable aluminum walkers will be added to the Equipment Loan Closet and will be loaned to members when prescribed by physicians.

The Equipment Loan Closet contains an estimated $7,450 worth of equipment for patients with multiple sclerosis—and it is estimated that the equipment has saved members more than $43,925 had they rented similar devices.

Harlo McKinty, MS chapter chairman; Mrs. Dean Watmore, Xi Beta Chapter service

It is amazing what service organizations can accomplish when they decide on a project and are behind it wholeheartedly.

One of the dedicated Lincoln groups is Beta Sigma Phi sorority whose Xi Beta Chapter has chosen the Multiple Sclerosis Society as its service project for this club year. The services to the society that are planned include labelling MS newsletters, placing MS canisters in local stores for the charity drive,

Sisterhood Meeting

Mrs. Irwin Dubinsky, a member of the board of directors of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, participated this week in the organization's 28th Biennial Assembly held at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles, Calif.

BOOKS—"Touch The Earth: . . ."

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

With the exception of a few rather isolated instances of personal outrage and public protest, the emergence of the American Indian as a "cause celebre" in the mainstream of the American social consciousness has been a fairly recent phenomenon. However, as is usually the case, once that consciousness (or perhaps "conscience" is the better word) was moved, there resulted a virtual outpouring of sentiment chastising American society for its treatment of this country's oldest minority group.

Thanks to this awakening, the literature of Indian protest abounds; and, not surprisingly, perhaps the most effective spokesman for the cause is the Indian himself. Nowhere does this become more apparent than in T. C. McLuhan's new (and first) book, "Touch The Earth: A Self-Portrait Of Indian Existence" (E.P. Dutton & Co.). A compilation of writings and statements which have emanated from various tribal representatives, the book illustrates the attitudes, beliefs and value systems of the Indians of North America from the 17th century to the present.

In addition to the quoted material, the book is illustrated with a collection of exceedingly effective photographs done by Edward S. Curtis under the patronage of J. Pierpont Morgan and President Theodore Roosevelt. These brown-tone portraits, done during the early years of the 20th century, add a visual element to the quiet eloquence of the passages included.

The writings selected by Miss McLuhan reveal an existence characterized by an all-encompassing spirituality which was manifested in a reverence for all living things: "The Great Spirit, in placing men on the earth, desired them to take good care of the ground and to do each other no harm."

Love of the land and all that dwelt upon it was not, however, to be equated with possessiveness. The White Man's acquisitive nature always remained a puzzle to the Indian, who was perhaps the primary victim of this devouring greed. One imagines that the Indian's inability to comprehend the desire for personal property must have made his suffering worse. Why did the White Man always want more than he needed to sustain himself? The question was never answered, nor perhaps could it have been.

In most of the quotations cited however, the Indian was not seeking revenge for the deeds of his oppressors. Broken treaties and promises seemed rather to produce an attitude of surprise and hurt; a feeling of having been betrayed by a brother. In some cases the futility of their plight expressed itself in a kind of acquiescence, as when Black Elk said, "... We are prisoners of war while we are waiting here. But there is another world."

The book leaves one with the overall impression of a quiet, sensitive and generous people whose lives and words were imbued with a simple elegance and power:

"My brothers, the Indians must always be remembered in this land. Out of our languages we have given names to many beautiful things which will always speak of us. Minnehaha will laugh of us, Seneca will shine in our image, Mississippi will murmur our woes. The broad Iowa and the rolling Dakota and the fertile Michigan will whisper our names to the sun that kisses them. The roaring Niagara, the sighing Illinois, the singing Delaware, will chant unceasingly our Dta-wa-e (Death Song). Can it be that you and your children will hear that eternal song without a stricken heart? We have been guilty of only one sin—we have had possessions that the white man coveted."

Perhaps as a consequence of the publication of books such as this, author Vine Deloria's prediction that "We Indians will show this country how to act human," will come a little closer to fulfillment. We hope so.

Opening lead — ten of spades.

The first blow struck by the defense — the opening lead — is often the most decisive play of the hand. More contracts are won or lost on the opening lead than at any other stage of the play.

However, even perfect leads must be properly pursued for them to prove effective in the subsequent play. Generally, this is not difficult, for once the opening lead is made and both defenders see 26 cards instead of 13, they are in good position to capitalize fully on their assets.

West found the killing lead in this hand — the ten of spades, covered by the queen — but, even so, East had to react properly to make the lead effective.

Had he taken the ace, South would have made the contract whatever was returned. But East diagnosed West's lead as a doubleton and he therefore refused the trick, at the same time signaling with the seven.

As a result South could no longer make the contract. It did not matter whether he tried a trump finesse or led the ace and another trump; in either case West would take the king and get a spade ruff to eventually put declarer down one.

It is not really difficult for East to read that the ten of spades represents a doubleton.

West can hardly have any other holding consistent with the bidding and play.

Thus, if West had the 10-5-2, he would lead the two, not the ten. West therefore cannot have three spades.

Nor can West have the singleton ten, for that would lead to the impossible conclusion that South had bid hearts three times and deliberately suppressed a holding of five spades to the jack.

West's ten lead therefore had to be a doubleton.

ABBY: legal—but improper

DEAR ABBY: Teen-agers have a very common problem. Will you help us, please?

I asked my very understanding grandfather why so many teen-agers hate their parents, and he said, "Probably because of the parents' snooping."

I think my grandfather is right. Lots of parents (especially mothers) open their children's mail. My grandfather says it is a federal offense to open another person's mail. Does this include teen-agers?

If kids have a legal right to such privacy, how can they enforce it?

DEAR STEVE: My legal beagle says, "It is federal offense to tamper, interfere with, or improperly obtain possession of mail addressed to another."

However, if a minor resides with his parent, the parent may (a) open the minor's mail without his consent, (b) destroy the mail of the minor without his permission, (c) instruct the postal authorities to send the minor's mail directly to the parent instead of to the minor, (d) instruct the postal authorities to withhold the mail from the minor.

In plain language Steve, parents DO have a legal right to open their children's mail.

But HAVING a right, and exercising it are two different things, and since children learn from example, the best way to teach children to respect the privacy of others is to respect theirs.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FRIENDSHIP RUINED": What did you expect? The only person lower than a woman who would live it up with her best friend's husband while she was in the hospital having a baby, is the husband who would confess to "get it off his chest."

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

NU Receives $58,800 Grant

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln has received a $58,800 grant from the National Science Foundation that will allow two NU engineering professors to conduct research on the static and dynamic performance of reinforced concrete structural frameworks.

The grant is for a two-year period, with Profs. G. C. Ernst, civil engineering, and G. M. Smith, engineering mechanics, as principal investigators in charge of the research.

The research program will include the first comprehensive cyclic and dynamic testing of reinforced concrete frameworks of the type used in buildings and bridges. It will be the first investigation in this country in which full scale dimensions and loads will be used.

Nationally there has been a great deal of concern over the types of failures of structural frameworks caused by natural phenomena such as earthquakes, hurricanes and also the dynamic induced stresses caused by large assemblies of people.

As example, Professors Ernst and Smith cited the concern over the safety of additional seating, built several years ago at Memorial Stadium. People in the stands create vibrations and stresses on the supporting frames similar in type to those they will be testing to measure the strength and safety of the concrete frameworks.

This Week's Health Tip

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska Medical Association: Carbon monoxide is a silent killer produced every time a carbon-containing material such as gasoline burns.

Unless you always have at least one window open slightly, you are flirting with serious danger from carbon monoxide.

Remember that carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless, tasteless gas emitted from your car exhaust. It is deadly in an enclosed space. Make certain today that your car's exhaust, muffler, and manifold are tight and free of leaks.

Keep your front air vents closed in bumper-to-bumper traffic as they may draw in fumes from the car ahead.

Always remember that carbon monoxide poisoning can confuse you so that you cannot reach fresh air to relieve the symptoms and prevent serious injury or death.

NU Freshman Receives Grant

A freshman in the College of Engineering and Architecture at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln has been awarded a $500 scholarship by the Paxton and Vierling Steel Company of Omaha.

The recipient is Donald R. Voelte Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Voelte Sr. of Omaha.

Bradford, England (AP) — The owner of the first pub in Britain to ban cigarettes said Tuesday his profits have gone with the smoke.

Takings in Jack Shower's tavern have slumped $125 a night. He says he has lost $6,250 a year turnover in cigarette sales.

Warm evenings in the Plaza Mayor, the great square in the old part of Madrid. It is surrounded by balconied buildings of other centuries. The lights are low. The arched entrances lead into dark, narrow, winding streets. Cobblestones that turn the ankle. Little bars spilling music and light and the smell of red wine into the night. There are several restaurants — at this time of year the tables are set outside on the square. They all serve lechon. Suckling pig. The drink is sangria, a punch of wine and lemon and oranges and a dash of Fundador brandy. It is served in a pitcher full of ice. Prices are up. But Spain is still one of the reasonable countries. The little street down the stairs at the end of the Plaza is Cuchilleros. It is famous for Botin at number 17. This is the restaurant in Ernest Hemingway's "The Sun Also Rises." And when the book was published, the sun rose on Botin's. At the foot of the stairs, at Cuchilleros 1, is Las Cuevas de Luis Candelas. The waiters wear antique boots and wide belts with flintlock pistols stuck in them.

The leather jacketed man who calls your taxi carries a bell-mouth blunderbuss. All of this commemorates Luis Candelas. The Spanish Robin Hood. He stole from the rich and gave to the poor. And he lived in the caves below the Plaza. (Let's hear it for Luis!) Said the waiter: "Luis never killed a victim or a pursuing policeman. How is the pig?" I said: "Deliciously piggy." Lechon is cooked with the skin on. I have an idea pig is an important part of the Spanish economy. Down here they serve pig and pigskin. But in other restaurants, they sell plain pig. The pigskin is made into wallets and sold to the tourists. "Luis came to his end through love," said the waiter with a romantic sigh. "He was engaged to a poor girl of the barrio. She heard that Luis planned to marry the daughter of a rich man. So she informed the police. They took him here. In this very room" (She sang like a black canary. That's no way to act, lady.) The Plaza Mayor is paved with uneven stone. A great statue of a man on horseback stands in the center. The horse pawing the air grandly. The rider advancing stonily to the wars. Around the edges of the Plaza, under porticoes, there are shops. The outdoor restaurants are bordered with flower boxes of green shrubs. The waiters wear white jackets and automatically bring you a menu printed in English.

Inquiry Into Fuel Cost, Availability Provides Little Comfort To Irrigators

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The Nebraska Agricultural Council drew little comfort from its inquiry into the costs of fuels and the availability of fuels for use in running irrigation pumps.

Representatives of the Kansas Nebraska Gas company, Rural Electric Associations, Propane Gas Dealers Association and from the liquid petroleum industry painted a grim picture of short supplies, environmental problems and rising prices.

"The drive to clean up the air has led to the ban of coal containing sulphur which caused some power plants to switch to oil for fuel. Some West Coast plants have become dependent on Middle Eastern oil shipped in by tanker and are finding themselves in trouble because of a shortage of tankers and political problems in the oil producing countries.

Costs of producing and delivering natural gas is rising due to a combination of higher interest rates, higher wages, and sharply increased cost of materials," said Harlan Hansen, public relations representative for the gas companies.

Hansen did say that his company supported the concept of adding grain alcohol to motor fuels in order to increase the supply of fuel and to find a market for grain.

Library Facility Will Honor Lewis

The Salvation Army advisory board Wednesday voted to name the library in their new facility, to be constructed at 1600 No. 27th, the Kenneth E. Lewis Library in memory of former board chairman Kenneth Lewis, who died Nov. 2.

Maj. Ross Zarfes has also announced the assignment of new officers, Capt. and Mrs. Neil Dodge, of Aberdeen, S.D., to the Lincoln Army. They will arrive Tuesday with their daughter, Connie, a high school senior.

Lt. John Snyder, in Lincoln the past year, has been assigned as an assistant in Aberdeen.

Gary B. Shults, of the Continental Oil Co. and a member of the governor's Alcohol Committee said, "All sorts of fuel are in short supply and all sorts of costs related to the production of fuels are increasing.

In answer to a question on the supply of coal Shults said "There is enough coal in the ground but strip mining is very expensive and the environment lists are opposed to both the practice of mining the coal and burning it in power plants particularly when it contains any sulphur."

Pat Wright, representing Northern Propane Gas at Columbus explained that his product is a by-product of petroleum and oil. The amount of storage capacity serves to limit the amount that is available and the amount produced is related directly to the amount of petroleum products that are produced.

"The supply doesn't fluctuate during the different seasons as much as some other fuels and the prices vary less over a year's time," he said.

Ted Regier of Aurora, representing the natural gas users association reported that there were approximately 11,000 irrigation wells in the state that used natural gas. His organization has experienced a rise in the price of the fuel from 16c in 1955 to 45c per 1,000 cubic feet of gas. "In addition to paying for the gas our members have spent $3 million dollars to put in pipelines. We feel we are paying an unfair price for the fuel at the present time," he said.

Dick Wilkerson, general manager of the Nebraska Rural Electric Association said his organization could not support the state water plan which called for a rapid expansion of irrigation using pump systems. "Continued and expanded irrigation in our area if served by electricity will prove more and more detrimental in the costs of power and energy," he said.

Wilkerson said "The ratchet clause of current all requirements contract under which rural systems buy their power is responsible for the situation."

The ratchet system requires a power user to pay a minimum rate each month based on the maximum amount used in a month during the year. The high use of electric power during the irrigation season forces the rural systems to pay for electricity they don't use during the rest of the year.

Afternoon Blaze Destroys Barn, 350 Hay Bales

A barn on a farm owned by Mrs. Dorothy A. Jackson of Rt. 1 was destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon.

Firemen said the barn, located about a mile west and a quarter-mile north of Pioneer's Golf Course on West Van Dorn, was apparently ignited by some weeds that were being burned nearby.

No one was reported injured but the barn reportedly contained some 350 bales of hay.

Frank Johnson, son of the owner, said the structure was covered by insurance and declined to estimate the loss.

Tenant on the farm where the incident occurred was listed as Al Kammerer.

Units of the Southwest Rural Fire District responded to the fire but were unable to do other than contain the blaze to the structure.

Roy Tucker, 76, Retired Livestock Dealer, Dies

York (P) — Roy Tucker, 76-year-old retired livestock man and community leader in York, died at his home Wednesday. He had been in failing health for some time.

Mr. Tucker had been with the York Livestock Sales Co. 44 years and was a partner in the firm, retiring in 1966.

Water Research Grants Awarded

The federal government has awarded grants totalling $171,000 to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln for operation of its Water Resources Research Institute.

Since its beginning in 1944, the research institute has become a focal point for interdisciplinary research, intra-university graduate education, continuing education and service to the state, according to Dr. Warren Viessman Jr., director.

It has supported 23 research projects, the results of which have served as guidelines for the development of water resources and have been applied by users ranging from individual farmers to local, state and federal agencies.

The largest of the three grants is $100,000 to help finance the operations of the institute, and several of its research projects and training programs.

A $58,000 grant was earmarked for support of a research study of animal waste utilization for pollution abatement being conducted by Dr. Otis E. Cross, an associate professor of agricultural engineering at NU.

A $13,000 grant was scheduled for Dr. Alvin J. Surkan, an associate professor of computer science for research on a dynamic model for urban hydrologic systems.

According to the institute director, Nebraska is confronted with a variety of water resources problems, such as floods, droughts, erosion, non-uniform distribution of precipitation, water quality, deterioration, declining water tables, land drainage, water resources management, water rights and institutions for administering water resources programs.

"Solutions to many current problems are dependent upon the availability of reliable quantitative research results and personnel skilled in the use of modern analytic techniques. In recognition of this, the University of Nebraska is accelerating the development of research and education programs to help satisfy the need," Dr. Viessman said.

Hunting Psychology

It isn't at all unusual for someone to try and figure out what makes an otherwise intelligent man go hunting. Wives do it all the time.

But now a University of Utah psychologist, Dr. Jon Atzet has gotten in the act and claims that the deer hunter inherits his annual call of the wild from early day cavemen who had to hunt to survive.

Dr. Atzet believes there is a cultural link between the primitive spear carrier hunting for survival and modern-day sportsmen who bag their game at long distance with high-powered rifles.

In an article distributed by the Associated Press, Dr. Atzet said: "It's a chance for the male member of our culture to get out and see if he can do what his forefathers had to do to survive — to let his bread grow and get dirty and get his deer and survive."

The good doctor objects to attacks on the ethics of hunting, maintaining that killing — of deer in the wild, cattle in the feedlot or vegetables in the garden — is part of survival.

"If you provide a hunting industry, then the killing is socially sanctioned," he said.

Of course, for that to happen, hunting would have to become an industry. And according to Dr. Atzet, that's just what has happened.

"What we are looking at is a pretty good size industry — one that's intended to support itself in the long run," he claims. "We send hunters out into the field to harvest a crop that is pretty much set up for hunting."

If you look at it this way, then deer hunting is nothing but legalized slaughter. Not the sport that seems to attract thousands of hunters every year.

But the doctor goes further by stating that social competitiveness is probably the major factor that sends a man hunting.

"There is a fierce competitiveness in a hunting party in getting the biggest deer and the first deer. This is recognized by society. Stores offer prizes for the best antlers."

A few holes do exist in this assumption. First of all, most hunters this writer has run across in the field sport freshly-shaved chins while their hunting clothes do not show traces of any lengthy wear. In other words, they don't smell gamey (no pun intended).

Then in claiming that competitiveness is the major factor of competitiveness in today's society? Even jobs hang on competitiveness so competition is nothing new.

How many hunters relish the outdoors for itself and only use hunting as an excuse to get outside cities and leave their worries behind? And how many hunters actually like the taste of venison? And how many hunt for the sheer sport of it with no thoughts of competition in their minds? Probably quite a few.

"Hunting is a form of non-consequential competition. You can hunt without fear of losing your job or such. It's a great release. Your boss, your lawyer — whether you're a pauper or a professional are your equals," Dr. Atzet explains further.

Perhaps the hunting instinct is a throw-back to caveman days and those that take part in the sport are only covered by a sheer veneer of civilization over a barbaric trait. Each to his one belief. Only I'd be careful who I'd call a caveman. Some of those hunters might take exception.

End Of Racing At Madison Appears Imminent

... STATE RACING COMMISSION EXPECTED TO MAKE FINAL DECISION THURSDAY AT OMAHA MEETING

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — The end of horse racing at Madison Downs where racing has been conducted since the sport has been legalized in Nebraska appeared imminent here Wednesday and is expected to come Thursday when the State Racing Commission winds up its two-day meeting.

And that decision also is expected to trigger some of the liveliest debate here at a Commission meeting in years as the other tracks, particularly those at Lincoln, Columbus and South Sioux City, battle over the thirteen days that Madison had this year.

The State Fair Board, which controls racing at the State Fair Grounds in Lincoln, last week voted to ask for three additional days of racing for 1972.

All Nebraska tracks will present their requests for 1972 dates to the three-man commission of Chairman Harry Farnham of Omaha, Robert Logsdon of Lincoln and newly-appointed member Ken Jenkins of Grand Island Thursday.

Jenkins was appointed Tuesday by Gov. J. J. Exon to replace Robert Bergeren of Scottsbluff, who resigned unexpectedly.

The Commission huddled secretly over lunch Thursday with Madison head Butch Moyer, presumably to discuss the plight of the northeast Nebraska track.

Prior to the luncheon confab the Commission was reminded by an official of the Horsemen's Protective and Benevolent Association (HPBA) that that group had gone on record that no track should be granted racing dates that can't guarantee a minimum of $1,000.

In addition to Madison, Columbus and Atokad at South Sioux City also fall to meet that standard.

"Madison is a losing proposition for horsemen because of the size of the purse," Paul Kemling of Aurora, representing the Nebraska Breeders Association pointed out.

"The tracks had trouble keeping its head above water and the horsemen lost money. And the state doesn't get any money from the track either," he said.

Kemling offered a proposal that might allow racing to continue at Madison, but the proposal isn't expected to get favorable action.

"Maybe Madison could run on weekends during the Ak-Sar-Ben meeting, using horses that aren't eligible for Ak-Sar-Ben," he offered. "This also might serve as a training ground for new officials."

Kemling also asked that the Commission consider granting Monday racing dates to all tracks.

"It's the feeling of the breeders that we need Monday," he said. "It would be another payday for the horsemen even if it would be only a break-even day for the tracks."

Almost every track east of the Mississippi has Monday racing and we need a sixth-day work week."

In a meeting with the track managers the Breeders Association asked for the increase in the purse schedule for Nebraska-Bred races.

They asked that races for Nebraska-breds carry an additional $200 in purse money at outstate tracks and an additional $500 at Ak-Sar-Ben over what the purse would be for a similar race in the open class.

The Commission took discriminatory action against dogs writing into its rules a regulation prohibiting dogs from race tracks. The old rule permitted dogs if they were kept on a leash.

Appaloosas Set For Show

Champion performance horses from almost 100 regional Appaloosa Horse Clubs will begin competition Thursday morning in the World Championship Appaloosa Performance Horse Show at the State Fairgrounds.

Eliminations are scheduled for 8 a.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday with finals slated for 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Thursday eliminations include junior and senior reining, first go-around in junior and senior cutting, English Pleasure (Hunt and Saddle Seat), first go-around in calf roping and heading & healing, Nez Perce Stake Race and Camas Prairie Stump Race.

Awards will be presented to the World Champion and Reserve World Champion Appaloosa High Point Performance Horse for 1971.

Appearing on the Friday and Saturday night programs will be Shatka Bear Step, hereditary chief of Mi Ashi Ton Gaxas, who has been synonymous with the Appaloosa, the treasured horse of his ancestors. He now resides in Scottsdale, Ariz., where he raises Appaloosa horses.

The World Championships, which were held at the Fairgrounds two years ago, will feature 15 performance classes, each with a $200 purse. It will be presented by the National Breed Association and Official Registry for Appaloosa Horses.

Don Walker, executive secretary of the Appaloosa Horse Club, Inc. of Moscow, Idaho, said competitors from throughout the United States, Canada and few foreign countries are expected for the show.

BANKS COUNTED OUT

Wrigley Says No To Player

... COMMITMENT SKIRTED

Chicago (AP) — Owner Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, skirting commitment on Leo Durocher's status for 1972, said Wednesday "I'm too fond of Ernie Banks to make him manager of anything."

Wrigley's comment followed a report speculating that Banks, a standout Cub player since 1953, would be named managerial successor to the controversial Durocher.

The 75-year-old Wrigley, although complaining that "I wish all the sports writers would stop trying to pick out my personnel," admitted he has not resolved Durocher's future with the Cubs.

However, he was explicit in squashing the persistent rumor that the 40-year-old Banks will take over the Cub helm as the first black manager in the major leagues.

"Managing is a dirty job, it doesn't last long and it certainly isn't anything I would wish on Banks who is headed for baseball's Hall of Fame. Furthermore, I think Banks wouldn't take a managerial job."

Durocher's status has been in doubt despite an advertisement in Chicago newspapers Sept. 3 in which Wrigley gave his 65-year-old pilot a vote of confidence for remainder of the 1971 season.

However, the ad directed against the "dump Durocher clique," made no mention of Leo returning for 1972.

Durocher took over in 1966 and hoisted the Cubs from last place to two second place and three third place finishes.

Wrigley told The Associated Press Wednesday "I'm not going to be able to figure out next season's managerial picture until I get a real chance to talk to John Holland vice president and Durocher."

"I talked on the phone the other day to Durocher who is in Arizona and told him I wanted to have a meeting with him when he returns to Chicago which he said would be in a week or 10 days."

Asked whether this meant a decision on Durocher's future, Wrigley said: "I don't know how I will talk to Leo."

Wrigley pointed out that Holland currently has been on the move, recently attending a big league meeting of general managers in Florida and currently visiting the Cubs rookie camp in Arizona.

The latest guess that Leo's Cub days are numbered stemmed from the resignation Tuesday of coach Joe Amalfitano, one of Durocher's confidantes. Amalfitano, stating he wanted to be closer to his widowed mother on the West Coast, is joining the San Francisco Giant staff.

State Offers Best Chance To Get Deer

Nebraska offers bow-and-arrow hunters a better chance of bagging a deer than any other state in the nation, according to a survey of the 50 states conducted by the Minnesota State Archery Association.

Using apparently incomplete 1970 statistics, the survey showed Nebraska on top with 875 deer taken by 4,800 permit holders for an 18% success figure. Final figures for the season raised Nebraska's ratio to 18.8%. Utah was the nearest contender for the lead at 17.9%, and Colorado came in third with 17%.

Figures ranged upward from a low of 1% in Texas, 1.4% in California, and 2% in Ohio, Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, Delaware, Idaho, South Carolina, and Wyoming do not keep statistics on their archery-deer harvests.

Nebraska has consistently been at or near the top in national archery-deer success over the years. The state has averaged around 20%, and it reached a high of 26.4% in 1964.

Nebraska's archers will take a nine-day break beginning with the opening of the firearm season on Saturday, but they will return to the field Nov. 22 through Dec. 31.

Devaney Awards NU 'Psychological Break'

... HUSKER PLAYERS SKIP SPRINTS

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska's football team received what head coach Bob Devaney termed a "psychological lift" at the end of Wednesday afternoon's practice.

In eliminating the scheduled 10 sets of 40-yard dashes, the NU mentor said that the players hustled during practice and earned the break.

"At this point of the season, you always question if actual practice time or a psychological break is the best thing," he said. "We hustled well today — we've done this (eliminate wind sprints) before and we hope it gives our team a mental lift."

In looking ahead towards Saturday's Big Eight test against Kansas State at Manhattan, Devaney noted the strides coach Vince Gibson's crew has made in recent weeks.

"They've gone back to the offense used in previous years," Devaney said, "K-State had run out of the I-formation which is similar to ours, but they've changed that to a dropback passer."

"Prior to the Oklahoma game (a 75-20 OU victory) they had been moving the ball," he added.

Devaney credited KSU quarterback Dennis Morrison with "a real production as far as passing" in his 23 for 43 completion effort for three touchdowns and 303 yards in last Saturday's 35-23 rallying win over Oklahoma State.

But when the extra-point kick hit the upright and bounced back the stage was set for Geneva's first comeback drive.

Sorge went to the air and connected with Jerry Engle, Everett Schengelberger and then Engle again for a trio of first downs to gain the G.I.C.C.

Three plays later Sorge sneaked in from the one and Clint Kimbrough booted the extra-point to give Geneva a 7-6 edge just 46 seconds before halftime.

Central Catholic took the

"And their defense is still good — they've never been an easy defensive club for us," Devaney continued. "Even last year when we had good field position it was because of the interceptions and other offensive mistakes."

He said the Wildcat crew feels it has a great opportunity to still have a good season with a win over the nation's top-ranked Cornhuskers. Devaney points out that "if we don't play a good football game and they do, we can get beat."

While Devaney said the Huskers have attempted to balance their running and passing attacks, he noted that the scales have tipped slightly to the running game the past few weeks.

"We've run more the last few games, but that's sort of been dictated by game situations."

"We've been pleased with our offense this year — we're averaging at about a 400-yard per game clip and as long as it's not between the 20-yard lines, that's pretty good," the Husker coach said.

Devaney said reserve slotback Glen Garson was a doubtful participant Saturday. He also said linebacker Bill Sloey, hobbled like Garson with leg injuries; defensive tackle John Dutton, who suffered a sprained ankle in last Saturday's win over Iowa State; both were "good possibilities" to see action in Manhattan.

The 50-man traveling squad will be announced Thursday.

Subbing QB Supervises Geneva Win

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Geneva — The Geneva Wildcats refused to fold, even after the loss of quarterback Dan Sorge, and stormed to a fourth quarter touchdown to claim a 15-12 football victory over Grand Island Central Catholic here Wednesday afternoon.

The playoff triumph gave coach Bruce Christensen's No. 8 rated Class C club its third Mid-Nebraska Conference championship in the past four years.

G.I.C.C., which won eight-straight this fall before dropping its regular season finale, had been highly-rated in Class B most of the season.

After a scoreless first quarter, Central Catholic finally put together a sustained

march of 66 yards behind the running of Don Bockhahn and Len Guzinski.

Then quarterback Len Sorahan, with the Geneva defense pulled in to stop the run, pitched a seven-yard touchdown pass to Mike Borowski.

But when the extra-point kick hit the upright and bounced back the stage was set for Geneva's first comeback drive.

Sorge went to the air and connected with Jerry Engle, Everett Schengelberger and then Engle again for a trio of first downs to gain the G.I.C.C.

Patterson-Bonavena Bout Is Postponed

New York (UPI) — The 10-round heavyweight fight between Floyd Patterson and Oscar Bonavena at Madison Square Garden Dec. 7 has been called off because of an injury to Bonavena's hand.

Bonavena informed Garden officials Wednesday that he had reinjured the pinky finger of his left hand and he would not be able to meet Patterson next month. There were no immediate plans to reschedule the bout.

—RAIDERS WIN CONFERENCE—
Wymore Southern Beats Hebron, 18-0

Wymore — Wymore-Southern avenged an earlier loss to Hebron here Wednesday night by scoring three-second half touchdowns to blank the Bears, 18-0, for the Southern Nebraska Conference football championship.

Southern, which had dropped a 16-6 verdict to the Bears less than three weeks ago, broke loose for two long touchdowns and a short one after being held to only 88 yards total offense in the first half.

The Raiders wasted little time in getting on the scoreboard after intermission, however. Junior halfback Scott Mason hit junior end Mark Chaplin with a 60-yard touchdown pass on the second play of the third quarter.

On their second offensive series in the third quarter, the twice-beaten Raiders marched 65 yards in 12 plays for their only sustained drive of the game.

Quarterback Terry Milligan went the final yard on a sneak. His 33-yard pass to Mason accounted for the biggest chunk of yardage in the drive. The drive also featured an eight-yard gain by Mike Chapman on a draw play, advancing the ball to the four.

While Chapman added a fourth-quarter insurance touchdown on an 80-yard run off tackle, Wymore was making Hebron its sixth shutout victim of the season.

The Raiders, whose other loss in an 8-2 season was an 8-6 setback to second-ranked Class B Auburn, allowed Hebron only four first downs and 44 yards in the first half.

The game marked the third straight year in which the Southern Nebraska Conference champion has traded wins in the regular season and its league playoff opponent. Last year, after Southern had won the regular season game, Hebron dumped the Raiders in the playoff.

Hebron failed to penetrate into Southern territory the entire second half. The Bears made their most serious scoring bid the second time they had the ball in the first quarter.

Hebron drove to the Raider six-yard line, but junior back Jamie Susek was stopped on a fourth and two situation by Milligan and Mason.

Hebron finished the season with a 6-4 record.

Huskers' Ross Leaves Hospital

Nebraska freshman football coach Jim Ross injured in a sideline mishap during last Friday's NU 54-15 victory over Iowa State at Memorial Stadium, returned to his home Wednesday.

Ross had been hospitalized in Lincoln General Hospital with a fracture of the upper tibia and ruptured collateral ligament of the left knee he sustained when three players slammed into him early in the game.

Assistant freshman coach Jim Walden will assume Ross' duties at Friday's frosh game at Manhattan against Kansas State.

WBC Boss Backs Ramos

Mexico City (AP) — Ramon Velazquez, president of the World Boxing Council, insisted Wednesday that Mando Ramos of Los Angeles must be recognized as world lightweight champion despite his disqualification in his title match with Pedro Carrasco of Spain last week.

However, Velazquez said that he will accept the decision of the majority of the voting members of the council. The decision, he said, should come out of a meeting Nov. 21 in Monterrey, Mexico, with some of the members of the Council.

Ramos was disqualified by referee Samuel Udobote of Nigeria because he allegedly hit below the belt. Until then Ramos had a definite lead over Carrasco and had floored him four times. The referee's decision was criticized by the European and Mexican press.

Velazquez said that he, Jim Destin, president of the U.S. Boxing Federation; Bob Turley, secretary of the California Boxing Commission, and Jose Sulaiman, secretary of the World Boxing Council, all agree that Ramos should be recognized as the new champion.

But he explained that Piero Pini, secretary of the European Boxing Union, and Gil Garcia, president of the union, claim that the referee's decision should be maintained but that Ramos should be given a rematch.

Davenport, Dorchester Tie

... GAME FOR PIONEER CONFERENCE TITLE ENDS IN DEADLOCK

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Dorchester — Davenport and Dorchester failed to settle the Pioneer Conference championship by battling to an exciting 22-22 playoff tie here Wednesday night.

Coach Jack Guggenmos' Dorchester club, a 20-0 victor when the two teams met during the regular season, had to battle back in the fourth quarter to tally a touchdown and a crucial two-point conversion to gain the deadlock this time.

The tie kept the Dorchester slate clean from a loss, however, as the Longhorns completed a 9-0-1 campaign.

Coach Delvin Ortigies' Davenport Tigers No. 7 rated in Class D, suffered just the single defeat to Class C Dorchester. The Tigers thus finished with an 8-1-1 record.

Dorchester grabbed an early 8-0 lead after Ron Velder picked off a Tiger pass and returned it to the Davenport eight.

In two smashes, Velder was over for the TD and quarterback Lee Eret ran for the two points.

Davenport knotted the count early in the second stanza after Barry Urbauer ran to the Longhorn three from where Scott Albrecht carried it in. Then Martin Ficken passed to Dave White to produce the 8-8 tie.

Davenport quickly struck again after Jerry Kelm blocked a Dorchester punt, with Ficken scoring both the touchdown and the two-point conversion.

Just before halftime Dorchester stormed to its second touchdown, with John Slama dashing the final 15 yards, but the two-point conversion run failed to leave Davenport in front, 16-14, at intermission.

Davenport extended its lead in the third period. With fourth and a foot, near midfield, Ficken faked the ball to Albrecht into the line and kept around right end, going all the way to the Dorchester five from where Albrecht scooted in to make it 22-14. But a placement conversion attempt failed.

That opened the door for Dorchester, and on the third play of the final frame Velder zig-zagged his way through the entire Davenport defense 47 yards to pay dirt.

Then came the crucial two-point conversion, with Slama bulging his way across to produce the final count.

Dorchester — Slama 15 run (run failed)
Davenport — Velder 2 run (Eret run)
Davenport — Albrecht 3 run (White pass from Ficken)
Davenport — Ficken 3 run (Ficken run)
Dorchester — Slama 15 run (run failed)
Davenport — Albrecht 5 run (kick failed)
Dorchester — Velder 47 run (Slama run)

Buc Skipper May Retire

San Juan P.R. (AP) — Danny Murtaugh, manager of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, said Wednesday that he'll make up his mind about his future in about 10 days.

"No, I haven't made up my mind yet about returning next year as manager, but I think I'll have the answer by the 20th of this month."

The 54-year-old skipper, considering retiring because of a heart condition, has managed the Pirates 11 seasons and twice his teams won the World Series, in 1960 and against the Baltimore Orioles this year.

Asked if he decided not to manage, would he retire from baseball, Murtaugh said:

"No, absolutely not. I'll stay in this game. I'm sure the Pirates can find some place for me in the front office."

Murtaugh is here with his wife for a six-day vacation.

Big 8 Passing Lead Aim Of Kansas State

... MORRISON SPARKING KSU ATTACK

Kansas City, Mo. — Kansas State, with the hottest Big Eight Conference passing combination going, will have its designs on taking the Conference's passing lead and a giant step toward its fourth straight team-throwing crown severely challenged this week.

The big Kansas State pair has been Dennis Morrison and Henry Childs. The last two games Morrison has thrown for 567 yards. On the other end of his pitches, more often than not, has been Childs. A healthy hunk of sophomore size and speed, he has corralled 13 for 234 yards, including seven for 90 and two touchdowns in the revitalizing comeback against Oklahoma State.

During the spree Morrison has driven the Cats' passing offense into second place in the league with a 163.3 per-game average. This compares with Nebraska's top reading of 172.7.

But for the Wildcats to spin

from behind and win their fourth straight, league passing crown, the passing mastery developed of late by Morrison will have to continue against the best pass defense in the Big Eight and the leading total defense in collegiate football, that thrown up week after week by Nebraska.

The Huskers, for the year, are allowing only 92.6 yards a game through the air, a mark surpassed on the season only once in the last 20 years by a conference team, and but 72.0 on the ground each time out. Totally, that amounts to 164.6.

Just as impressive is what the Black Shirts have allowed opponents to score. For the year the average is a mighty slim 5.2 points. In action against conference teams, the Huskers have given up a total of 20 after five games. Three times shutouts have been recorded.

Offensively, despite Missouri's holding Oklahoma to the fewest yards since the opener for the Sooners, Oklahoma still leads handily in rushing offense (478.9), total offense (562.9), and scoring offense (43.6). The rushing and total offense figures are still well above record levels — in fact, 80 yards on the ground will let the Sooners crack the Big Eight and NCAA seasonal record.

Robinson Lands All-Star Team Berth

St. Louis (AP) — Third baseman Brooks Robinson of the Baltimore Orioles has won an unprecedented 12th straight term on The Sporting News' American League All-Star fielding team.

Rucksdasher's Dog Completes Championship

Melody Mollie Brown, a liver and white Dalmatian owned by Mr. and Mrs. Neil Rucksdasher of the Greater Lincoln Obedience Club, has finished her championship with points gathered in the large International Kennel Club Show in Chicago over the weekend.

Melody Mollie Brown took Winners Bitch, Best of Winners, Best of Opposite Sex over Specials for a four-point major in the show.

In other Greater Lincoln Obedience Club events over the weekend, Argosy's Percy of Hydeaway, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hinderks of Douglas, took Best of Winners for a three-point major in the Mid-Continent Kennel Club show in Tulsa and was Reserve Winner's Dog in the Oklahoma City Kennel Club show.

Robinson was one of four Oriole players receiving berths on the team announced Thursday from a poll of American League managers and coaches.

Other Orioles honored were second baseman Dave Johnson, shortstop Mark Belanger and outfielder Paul Blair.

Rounding out the A. L. fielding team were first baseman George Scott and outfielder Carl Yastrzemski from the Red Sox, Cleveland catcher Ray Fosse, Royals' outfielder Amos Otis and pitcher Jim Kaat of the Twins.

The Sporting News released its selections for the National League fielding team Wednesday. They were Cardinal pitcher Bob Gibson, Giants outfielder Bobby Bonds, first baseman Wes Parker and outfielder Willie Davis from the Dodgers, catcher Johnny Bench and second baseman Tommy Helms from the Reds, Pirate outfielder Roberto Clemente, Mets' shortstop Bud Harrelson and Astros' third baseman Doug Rader.

Mustangs To Complete Season Against Adel

The Omaha Mustangs will complete their 1971 season against the Dallas County Packers of Adel, Iowa this Sunday at 3:00 p.m. at Rosenblatt Stadium.

The game was originally scheduled for October 30th, but had to be postponed because of heavy rains.

WHA Claims Victory With NHL's Expansion

Edmonton, Alta. (AP) — Expansion of the National Hockey League for the 1972-73 season is "a great victory" for the World Hockey Association, Bill Hunter, executive director of the WHA, said Wednesday.

Het old a news conference that the NHL had "panicked by moving up its expansion plans."

"This is the greatest victory yet for our league," he said.

"The expansion which the NHL said wouldn't come until 1974, shows their concern about the WHA."

He said he knew that NHL owners were not unanimous in approval of expansion despite a league announcement that this was the case.

"They were going to announce their plans in Florida a week or so ago. Then they were going to announce it Monday and they didn't. They finally got around to it Tuesday. The owners battled, don't think they didn't. This expansion is a public endorsement for our league."

The NHL said Tuesday it would expand to Long Island, N.Y., and Atlanta for the 1972-73 season.

The WHA hopes to rival the established NHL and already has awarded 10 franchises — including one in New York. Two more are expected to be announced before the end of December.

KSU's Gibson Praises NU

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State coach Vince Gibson has nothing but praise for his team's next opponent Saturday — first-ranked Nebraska.

He emphasized that in five conference games Nebraska's first-team defense has given up only one touchdown.

Gibson said Wednesday the Nebraska defense is a "great asset to the offense by giving them the ball in good field position. Their secondary is great, and they don't give up the big play."

And he said they don't make mistakes offensively either. "When the defense is making turnovers and the offense is not," he said, "you're in pretty good shape."

Don Alexander, second-team middle guard for K-State who injured his knee in Tuesday's practice, will be replaced Saturday by Steve Eaton, second-team defensive tackle.

Nicklaus-Trevino Team Favored In World Cup

... EUROPEAN BALL SAID TO MAKE GAME EASY

Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. (UPI) — Claiming the European small ball "makes golf too easy," Jack Nicklaus toured the 19th World Cup course Wednesday with his U.S. teammate and television's "Great One."

"Somebody run down and pull the pin out," quipped Jackie Gleason as Nicklaus walked up to the tee at the 523-yard first hole of the PGA National Golf Club's East Course.

Earlier Nicklaus had complained that the smaller ball, which is optional in the international tournament, makes the game too easy but added, "Any time you've got the choice, it's silly to play the large ball."

Golf's "Golden Bear" also said he can hit the smaller ball, which weighs the same as the American sphere, 20 yards farther. A drive of 300 yards is not uncommon," he added.

Lee Trevino, the other U.S. entry in this prestige tournament was in the pro-am threesome with Nicklaus. Bob Hope had been paired with Trevino, but his flight was delayed and he didn't make the tee off.

"My partner's not here, but I won't need him," said Trevino, the PGA's top money winner this year and owner of the U.S., Canadian and British Open Titles.

"If it's Hope, I know you won't need him," said Gleason, a big bundle of color with red and white striped pants and a blue pork pie hat.

Nicklaus and Trevino are the heavy favorites, with two-man teams from 46 nations set to begin the first of 72 holes Thursday.

Gary Player, who is representing South Africa along with Harold Henning, was offering 8-1 odds the U.S. team would win it. Player also predicted "the highest scores ever" on the tough PGA course, which has been deluged with rain the last several days.

Other strong contenders include the defending champions, Bruce Devlin and David Graham of Australia, and the British team of Tony Jacklin and Peter Oosterhuis.

Roberto De Vicenzo is back to defend his international trophy awarded the individual posting the lowest score.

Trevino said the 7,096-yard layout will be trouble for some of the weaker golfers from the smaller countries.

"There is no way those little guys who are not so strong are going to be able to get to the green," he said. "I think it would be right to put those tees in the middle one day."

Iba Begins Preparations For Olympic Cage Team

Stillwater, Okla. (AP) — Sports fans know him as "Hank." The sign on his desk in Gallagher Hall says "H.P. Iba."

And the hundreds of athletes who played under him at Oklahoma State University for 35 years will always call him "Mr. Iba."

Whatever name you think of, the retired but not idle coach and athletic director looks and acts about the same as always. He works from Room 204 at Gallagher Hall even though he is retired.

Presently one of his biggest tests, after 51 years in athletics, is molding another U.S. Olympics cage squad that can continue its mastery of world competition. It will be his third time as Olympic basketball coach when the teams take the floor next year at Munich, Germany.

His 1964 Olympic team swept nine straight games in Tokyo and his 1968 squad repeated the performance in Mexico City.

Next year will be harder, Iba says. Competition from other countries is getting tougher and professional basketball is drawing off players as soon as they finish college. In past years, many remained in non-professional sports until they had a chance at the Olympics.

"I don't know right now where I'll get the talent to win again," Iba told a newsman. "Our problem is we have to compete against the pros."

Iba has been working for two years to put together another winning combination.

"We started two years ago with a development camp at the U.S. Air Force Academy," he said. "We had 44 boys then. This year we looked at 57 and next year we'll bring in 66 more."

Olympic material is recommended from many groups such as the NCAA, the AAU, NAIA, junior colleges and armed services. Some will be picked at-large.

The Munich games will open Aug. 26, 1972, and continue through Sept. 10. The American traveling squad will include 12 players, Iba, an assistant coach, the manager, his assistant and a trainer.

Bill Summers of Brownstown, Ind., is chairman of the Olympic Committee which will select the U.S. athletes. Iba's assistant coach will be named next April.

Boxer, Manager To Dissolve Pact

London (UPI) — Eddie Thomas, manager of World Lightweight Boxing Champion Ken Buchanan, said today his partnership with the fighter will end when their contract expires in December.

Thomas said: "I am no longer interested in managing Buchanan."

Thomas' decision ends a six year partnership which has proved one of the most successful, if somewhat stormy, in British boxing.

"I am tired of reading press reports about what Buchanan intends or does not intend to do. I know that if I signed him again there would be a lot of aggravation and I do not need or want it," Thomas said.

Trial Teacher Appraisal Plan Favorably Received By Educators

Star Staff Writer

In a day when the public and its representatives have become more concerned with what happens in the nation's classrooms, people inside the schools themselves are turning to new ways to help each other improve.

That's apparent in Lincoln, at least, in a new proposal for teacher appraisal that appears headed for a one-year trial throughout the Lincoln Public Schools.

If the proposal wins Board of Education approval, the schools will be tossing aside the traditional "checklist" approach to teacher "grading," and will substitute instead a more sophisticated teacher evaluation system that will help teachers appraise themselves and set targets for improvements in problem areas.

"We're coming into a new era," believes Carroll Sawin, assistant superintendent for personnel in the Lincoln School District.

Whether from the standpoint of teacher, principal or central office, Sawin said, "our public expects us to do a better job."

And one of the results, he said, is that the schools are attempting "to measure more accurately what we're trying to do."

In the personnel department, he added, "we're moving away from personality appraisal" and heading toward "job performance" as a means of evaluating what happens in the classroom.

So far, he said, the effort has been directed mainly at the classroom teacher. But he said the schools are about to "start looking at the same approach with administrators."

The "approach" is one which has been spawned in the management - by - objectives trend which has found its way in recent years from private industry to public schools.

In the Lincoln schools, for example, goal-setting has become a concern from the level of the superintendent's cabinet to the individual schools themselves.

Ronald Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction, recently handed school board members an outline of the procedures his curriculum-oriented division is following.

And the school system has been making a bigger effort to identify and assign to the appropriate account all costs of school operations.

The same approach is now finding its way into what teachers do day-to-day.

"We've matured as a staff," Sawin said. "We're more comfortable with job targets" - specific goals designed to help the teacher improve in those areas where he may have problems.

The new format to be tried this year is far different from the more traditional checklist, which called for principals to grade teachers on a scale of 1 to 5 for a host of items and then assign an "average" grade as an overall evaluation.

The new format will call for marks of O (outstanding), S (successful), U (unsuccessful) or N (not applicable) on each of nine areas of concern - teaching performance, pupil relations, management activities, contribution to total school program, parent-community relations, staff relations, personal characteristics, scholarship and professional responsibility.

The teacher's appraiser (usually the principal) marks an O, S, U or N beside each of the nine items, while the teacher himself may do so, too.

There is no overall "average" slot on the new form.

For those areas in which the teacher needs improvement, he and his appraiser will identify "one or more goals for professional improvement and appropriate job targets."

The new format also combines appraisal with professional growth activities as spelled out in state law. And ample space for "general statements" from both teacher and appraiser is supplied.

Both the teacher and his appraiser will bear responsibility for action to meet the goals and targets.

The new system was developed by Sawin, principals and a committee of Lincoln Education Association members.

Sawin said an optional evaluation system which was oriented almost totally to job targets won a favorable response from 80% of the teachers who participated last year.

"We got a vote of confidence," he said. "That spurred us on."

Major drawback, according to Sawin, is that the new approach will demand considerably more time of principals and teachers.

Evaluations come each year for probationary teachers, and every three years for tenured teachers unless their evaluations indicate they should be appraised more often.

Federal Charters Urged For Giant Corporations

Gigantic corporations should be chartered by the federal government, not by states, a former chief economist for the Federal Trade Commission said Wednesday during a Business and Economics Roundtable at the Nebraska Union.

These corporations are "not private individuals with private interests and no public interests," said Willard Mueller, a professor of economics at the University of Wisconsin.

Mueller called for extensive public disclosure of corporation census reports, income tax returns, inter-corporate financial ties, and the sources of investments, revenues and profits.

"Corporate annual reports increasingly read like a state-of-the-nation address, maybe even a state-of-the-world address," Mueller told the NU College of Business Administration group. He said public documents of massive conglomerates tell little about what the corporation is up to.

"Documents and annual reports, like a Mother Hubbard dress, hide more than they reveal," he said.

In describing the difficulty he found in gaining public disclosure of government-owned facilities run by private corporations, Mueller asked the group of about 50: "How many of you knew that ITT (International Telephone and Telegraph) ran the hot line to Moscow?"

Mueller recommended that the social costs of corporations be made public and that some massive private corporations be required to have public representatives on the boards of directors.

Attempts to induce the FTC to force corporations to disclose more detail about their activities, has been futile, he said. "An uncompromising stand on the issue" is needed, he said. "We need to make an assault on a broad front and try to open up the corporation."

"The modern, large corporation is not properly disciplined by the market place."

An acknowledged authority on the concentration of economic power in the U.S., Mueller is scheduled to speak Thursday in the Nebraska Union on the social, economic, and political aspects of mergers.

Rural Area Fund Drive Kick-Off Set

The 1972 Lancaster County United Fund Rural Campaign will begin Thursday with a Kick-Off meeting for vice chairmen and captains at the Red Cross Chapter at 7:30 p.m., said Albert C. Franke, chairman of the fund campaign.

Franke said that a goal of $3,500 has been set for the 1972 Rural United Fund. He will be assisted by vice chairmen Francis Barry, Valparaiso; Elmer Bohl, Martell; Glen Marolf, Greenwood; Wayne Nielsen, Lincoln; Fred Rudolph, Malcolm; and Chris Ver Maas, Hickman.

Damages Asked For Alienation Of Affection

A Lancaster District Court suit seeking $100,000 damages was filed Wednesday by Ronald L. Lingle of 3855 Steele Ave., against Gary Hansel of 3435 St. Paul.

The suit alleges that Hansel alienated the affections of Lingle's wife, Linda Kay, and caused the estrangement of their marriage.

Lingle also alleges their child was taken to Arkansas by Mrs. Lingle because of inducements by Hansel. The Lingles were married in March, 1967, according to the petition.

Tony's Ranch Bowl and the El Rancho Supper Club in Emerald will re-open Monday, Commonwealth Co. President S. E. Copple said Wednesday.

Manager Robert D. Hays earlier said the club and bowling alley would remain closed until at least early December, after settlement of a foreclosure action brought against the business and its owner by the Commonwealth Co. Copple said the Commonwealth Co. has a loan invested in the business.

Earlier this week Lancaster District Judge Herbert A. Ronin appointed F. W. Koehne to operate the business. Koehne was recommended to the court because of several years' experience as owner of the Arrow

Tony's Ranch Bowl Planning To Reopen Doors Monday

Inn Supper Club, 1339 West O, Copple said.

The appointment came after Hays, the Commonwealth Co., and business owner Santo V. (Tony) Quattrocchi agreed none of the parties would benefit if the business remained closed, Copple said. An important consideration, he said, was continuing the bowling leagues at Tony's.

The club closed Oct. 27 under a federal lien for $2,100 in allegedly unpaid Social Security taxes, but the lien was lifted after the taxes were paid. B & H Inc., under Hays, took over the club and bowling alley operation last April, Hays said.

OPPD Chief Says N-Plant Will Save Millions Yearly

Omaha (AP) — A director of the Omaha Public Power District told a legislative study committee Wednesday that the district will save about $10 million a year with the Fort Calhoun nuclear power plant.

William Metzger was among those testifying before the committee that will call representatives of the Nebraska Public Power District Thursday.

The committee is investigating the cost of constructing and operating nuclear generating units.

OPPD General Manager Lynn Monroe said the "brick and mortar" contract for the Fort Calhoun Plant was $12.2 million but current expenditures are $18.7 million and will increase.

Monroe said the original contract for mechanical work was about $22 million but claims total $34 million.

The chairman of the committee, Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff, questioned OPPD attorney Hird Stryker who wrote the plant contracts and specifications.

Stryker once represented an executive for Peter Kiewit Sons' Co. and Carpenter asked, "Are you representing the power district as well as the contractor?"

Stryker had been cleared by the Douglas County Bar Association to represent OPPD.

Monroe was asked whether OPPD rates will rise to pay for the plant. He replied that "if there is no more inflation, I see no reason to increase rates."

Monroe said Nebraska has the fifth lowest power rates in the nation.

Petition Alleges Bonds Converted For Private Use

A Lancaster District Court suit seeking $56,000 damages was filed Wednesday by Emory Hunt of Blair against Kenneth Mitzner of Lincoln.

His petition alleges that Mitzner converted to his own use certain bonds owned by Hunt in January, 1969.

Hunt lists ownership of municipal school, power district and industrial development bonds which he alleges were converted by Mitzner, and asks $56,000 damages plus interest.

PRICE EXEMPTIONS TOLD

Phase 2 System Is Three-Tiered

... Says Cost Of Living Council

•The New York Times

Washington — The Cost of Living Council disclosed Wednesday its "three-tiered" system for monitoring post-freeze pay and price controls and, at the same time, announced its first exemptions from the controls.

Commercial rents, used cars, custom-made wigs, and stuffed animals are among the items that will be freed from restraints as soon as the freeze ends, at midnight Saturday.

Raw agricultural products, raw seafood, financial securities, exports and first import transactions will continue to be exempt from controls in Phase Two as they were exempt from the freeze.

It was also pointed out that transactions such as taxes, workmen's compensation, welfare payments, child support and alimony are not wages, prices or rents and are not included in the controls program.

First Tier

Under the enforcement machinery described by the council, all firms with sales of $100 million or more will be required to notify the Price Commission of proposed price increases and obtain approval from the commission before putting the increase into effect.

According to the council, 1,300 firms, accounting for 45% of total sales in the United States, fall into this first price tier.

On the wage side, all pay adjustments affecting 5,000 or more workers must be given advance approval from the Pay Board.

The first pay category includes 500 units accounting for 10% of all employees, or about 8 million people, the Cost of Living Council noted.

The second price tier includes the 1,100 firms, with sales of $50 million to $100 million, that account for about 5% of total sales. These companies need not obtain advance approval but must report quarterly to the Price Commission on their prices, costs and profits, as first tier companies must also do.

The third price tier includes all other firms—10 million in all—that account for 50% of all sales. These firms need not report to the Price Commission on a regular basis but will be subject to spot checks and will be bound by all regulations of the commission.

Most firms in this category will be required to maintain "adequate records of price, cost and profit changes." The records requirement will be less rigid for smaller concerns with gross sales of under $100,000.

No Advance Notice

The second tier of pay settlements that must be reported but which require no advance notification will involve raises affecting 1,000 to 5,000 workers in groups accounting for 7% of all employees in the country.

The last category, affecting pay adjustments for fewer than 1,000 employees, will be required to adhere to Pay Board standards and will be monitored on a spot check basis but need not be reported.

Donald Rumsfeld, director of the Cost of Living Council, said at a briefing that the procedures announced Wednesday "provide a flexible and suitable framework for arriving at equitable solutions to the complex issues of pay and prices."

He added that the monitoring policy "reduces red tape to a minimum and does not require great numbers of people for administration."

The council's list of items, in addition to agricultural products, that will be exempted from price controls were divided into the following 10 categories:

—All used products, including, Rumsfeld said, used cars.

—Disposal sales, such as sales of surplus U.S. government property.

—Custom-made goods such as wigs, made-to-order clothing, jewelry and taxidermy.

—A list of miscellaneous items including antiques, art objects, handicrafts and similar goods.

—Royalties and copyrights.

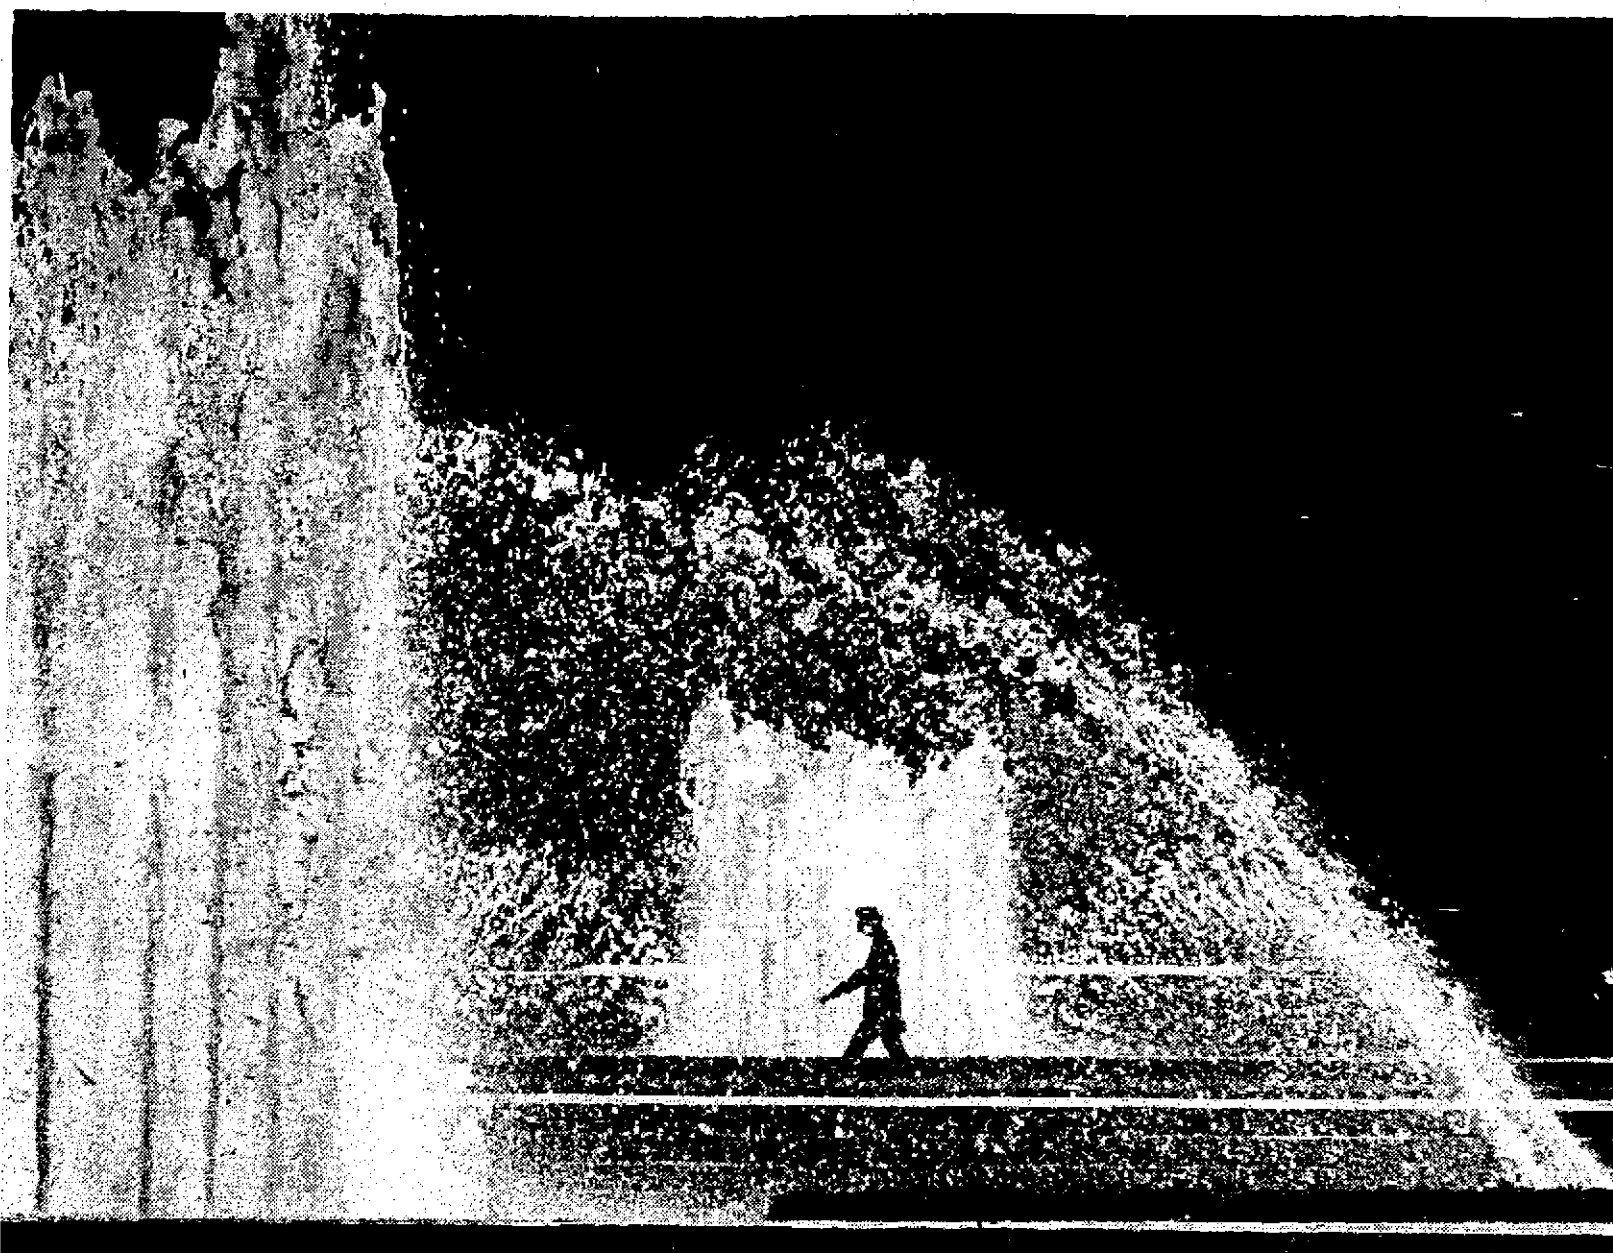

—International shipping rates.

—Dues to non-profit organizations.

—Some real estate, including unimproved properties and improved real estate that is now newly constructed, such as old homes. Also uncontrolled will be real estate with new improvements when the sales price is determined after construction or where construction wage rates are not changed by the Pay Board.

—Some rents will also be exempt from controls including rents on all commercial, industrial and farm property. Also exempt from rent controls will be new or "substantially rehabilitated" dwellings offered for rent for the first time after Aug. 15. The council defined a third or more of the total value of the property.

—Raw sugar.

Hardin Expected To Depart Soon

Washington (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Clifford M. Hardin is expected to leave his Cabinet post soon, informed sources indicated Wednesday.

Hardin, who arrived back in Washington Wednesday from a trip to Turkey, could not be reached for a comment on the report. And the White House was mum on the subject.

"I have no information on that," deputy White House press secretary Gerald L. Warren said in response to a query.

But the informed sources have indicated it is virtually certain that the former chancellor of the University of Nebraska will step down from

Rep. Thone Has No Inside Word

Washington — Rep. Charles Thone Wednesday night said he has no inside information to indicate whether there is any truth to reports that Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin will resign.

But, Thone said, one of his House colleagues, John Kyl of Iowa, called the White House to check on the validity of the published report.

"They denied it," Thone said. Kyl told him.

the position he has held since President Nixon took office in 1969.

Hal R. Taylor, deputy director of information for the Department of Agriculture, told reporters in response to questions:

"To our knowledge the report is unfounded. I cannot absolutely deny nor absolutely confirm the truth of that report."

Taylor said he did not know where Hardin went after returning to Washington late Wednesday. Hardin's office would say only he was not at the department.

Rep. William Scherle, R-Iowa, said Wednesday he had learned Tuesday night that Hardin has resigned. "We have checked it out today, and it's been confirmed," he told radio station KMA in Shenandoah, Iowa.

He did not give the source of his information, but he did say he had spoken with the White House and was told that no overtures had been made to anyone to succeed Hardin.

Mrs. Sturm Found Guilty Of Manslaughter

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Mrs. Judy L. Sturm, 28, of 2740 Arlington, was found guilty of manslaughter Wednesday by a Lancaster District Court jury in the Sept. 18 shotgun slaying of her husband, Harvey.

Mrs. Sturm was charged with second-degree murder by the state, but the jury of eight women and four men returned the verdict for the lesser crime of manslaughter after some 12 hours of deliberation.

During the seven-day trial, the state's attorneys had contended Mrs. Sturm "intentionally and maliciously" shot her 31-year-old husband while he slept.

But the defense attorneys maintained Mrs. Sturm acted "in terror and fear of her husband and for the protection of herself and children."

District Judge William Hastings had instructed the jury to return one of three possible verdicts: second-degree murder, manslaughter or acquittal.

In accepting the jury verdict of manslaughter, Judge Hastings excused the jury with thanks from further service and deferred sentencing of Mrs. Sturm until a later date.

Maximum penalty for manslaughter is 10 years imprisonment, but a lesser sentence or probation is possible.

Mrs. Sturm embraced her mother, Mrs. Lee Cline, as both women wept. Mrs. Sturm later told a reporter regarding the verdict, "My prayers have been answered."

Public Defender T. Clement Gaughan said he was "satisfied" with the verdict and doubted it would be appealed.

The jury balloted eight times before reaching a unanimous verdict, according to William Crane, jury foreman. He said all three possible verdicts were considered in the balloting but most of the jury discussion was between manslaughter and second-degree murder.

During the trial, neither the defense or

SENATORS TIGHT . . . Revised Aid Bill Is OK'd In Senate

Washington (UPI) — The Senate grudgingly approved a revised and revised economic aid bill Wednesday, but firmly rejected efforts to fatten the pared-down program or soften severe restrictions on use of the money.

Facing a Monday deadline for a worldwide halt to the American economic aid program, Congress began moving slowly to revive the aid program unexpectedly scuttled by the Senate Oct. 29.

The $1.1 billion aid measure passed by the Senate now goes to the House. It was the first part of a two-bill package to revise and provide for interim continuance of the $2.9 billion bill the Senate rejected last month. A companion $1.2 billion military assistance bill awaited Senate action Thursday.

Government accountants said Wednesday all foreign aid expenditures, from administrative telephone expenses to actual assistance grants, will be totally halted Monday when present temporary spending authority expires — unless Congress renews it meantime, an uncertain prospect.

Senate approval of the revised economic aid program came on a roll call vote of 61 to 23. Nebraska Sens. Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis voted against the bill.

Congress had one other way to avoid a Monday shutdown of the aid program, but that also had questionable prospects. This would be to pass both parts of the present authorization package, totalling $2.3 billion, and also pass appropriation measures to provide the actual money.

The economic bill passed by the Senate was $425 million less than the administration wanted. In addition it contained a restriction that practically gutted what was left of a key section authorizing development loans to poor countries.

This would force interest rates up to levels that most participating countries would not be able to afford.

The development loan section of the bill already had been trimmed from $400 million to $250 million.

Before the final vote, Members:

—Rejected 45 to 42 an amendment by Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., to take out a section that would require development loans—except those made under the Food for Peace program—to be made at interest rates not lower than those the U.S. Treasury pays to borrow money. The effect is to increase from the present 2 to 3% to about 6%, the interest rates that recipient nations must now pay.

—Adopted 49 to 35 a second Javits amendment to exempt Latin American countries from the higher interest rates on $150 million provided for Alliance for Progress loans.

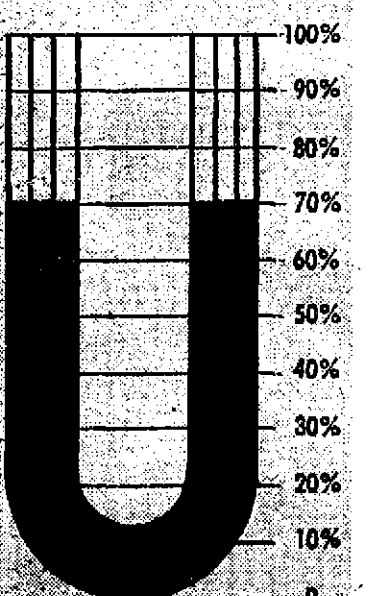

prosecution disputed evidence that Mrs. Sturm shot her husband during the early morning hours of Sept. 18 in the bedroom of their home.

Testimony indicated that Mr. Sturm had beaten his wife, jerked the telephone from the wall and threatened to strangle her with the cord, and had thrown or broken various items in the house after coming home at 2 a.m.

While the prosecution contended she had loaded the shotgun with the intent of shooting her husband as he slept, the defense contended she had loaded the gun for self-protection and had only gone to the upstairs bedroom when she heard her baby cry and thought her husband was moving around.

Testimony by a defense psychiatrist suggested Mrs. Sturm was so overcome by fear and terror of her husband on the fatal night and from previous beatings that she was incapable of acting rationally on Sept. 18.

Fish Are Carefully Tallied In Study Of Missouri River

By SAM THORSON
Star Staff Writer

Ft. Calhoun — Norm Stuckey and his crew start their work-week seining for fish behind a series of finger-dikes three miles downstream from the Ft. Calhoun Nuclear Station, under construction near here by the Omaha Public Power District (OPPD).

The four men are research biologists, and their job is supplying data on fish populations to the state Game and Parks Commission as part of a 12-agency investigation of the ecological effects of thermal discharges to be released into the river by Nebraska's two nuclear plants once they begin power production in early 1973. The other plant, the Cooper Nuclear Station near Brownville, is being built by the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD).

Stepping into breast waders, two of the men enter the chilly water and drag a seine along the bottom for minnows. Then, if the water temperature is warm enough for the electrical equipment, the crews begin on catfish.

Stunned by a jolt from the "telephone shocker," the flatheads float to the surface and are scooped from the water with a landing net, measured, and tallied. Before each fish is released, one of its fins is marked to indicate where it was caught, so that its migration can be noted in case it is caught again.

Boat Shock
Completing the finger dikes, the researchers head upstream toward the power plant to "boat shock" four half-mile stretches marked along the riverbanks, two on either side. The boat-shocker, its contacts dangling in the water ahead of the leading boat, is usable in all temperatures and turns up a diversity of species from tiny gizzard shad to large river catfish. The boat-shocked fish, like the flatheads, are measured, tallied by species, marked and returned to the river.

After lunch the men boat-shock two more half-mile stretches above the plant, one on either side, and finish with another series of finger dikes. Then they return to Lincoln with their data. Later in the week they spend a similar day at Cooper Nuclear Station near Brownville.

Stuckey's supervisor Earl Kendle, head of the Game and Parks research division and coordinator of the 12 agencies involved in the study, emphasized that it is not a simple "before and after" study to determine absolute fish populations before and after the plants begin releasing heated water from their cooling systems. Such a comparison, he said, would be impossible because of numerous variables—such as water level—which cannot be controlled, and might change between the "pre-" and "post-operative" sampling periods.

'Natural' Ratio
Instead, Stuckey's pre-operative sampling (scheduled for completion late this month) will establish the "natural"

Washington — The Senate voted to ratify a treaty returning Okinawa to Japan and ending American occupation of the main Japanese islands. The treaty, which will be ratified by President Nixon when Japan passes legislation permitting continued American use of military bases on Okinawa, resolves the last political issue between the countries growing out of World War II.

Japanese Resist Connally

Tokyo — Treasury Secretary John Connally met with Japanese economic officials but was said to have run into strong resistance to his efforts to have Japan greatly revalue the yen. Connally's talks were thought to be a potential turning point in Japanese-American relations, with lack of an agreement accelerating the recent deterioration in relations.

Castro Arrives In Chile

Slim Aid Bill OK'd

Washington — A Foreign aid bill authorizing $1.14 billion in economic and humanitarian assistance was approved Wednesday by the Senate. (More on Page 1.)

Finch To Tour Latin America

Washington — Robert H. Finch, the presidential counselor who is leaving Thursday on a tour of six Latin American countries, said the Nixon administration was treating the countries of Central and South America individually, in contrast to the policies of Democratic presidents that "lumped the Latin American countries together as banana republics."

Peru Takes Over Broadcasting

Lima — Peru promulgated a law that put all television and radio stations under effective state control. The law, the most sweeping state intervention in broadcasting in Latin America other than in Cuba, gives workers a share of the profits and control of the stations and gives the government much of the stations' stock.

Used Car Prices Exempt

Washington — Commercial rents, used cars, antiques and custom-made wigs are among the items that will be freed from price controls with the end of the 90-day wage-price freeze at midnight Saturday, the Cost of Living Council announced. (More on Page 1.)

Day Care Compromise Reached

Washington — Families with incomes up to $4,320 a year would get free day care and other services, and families with incomes up to $6,960 and would have to pay only small fees, under a compromise bill agreed to by Senate and House negotiators.

Dixie Chiefs Applaud Bus Vote

Atlanta — Southern Governors, ending a four-day conference in Atlanta, applauded the House passage of anti-busing amendments but appealed to Congress to write a uniform national desegregation policy so that the states are not forced to pay the federal share of court-ordered busing.

UAW May Not Quit Pay Board

Detroit, Mich. (AP) — Confident that more than 700,000 of its members will get all or nearly all of the wage boosts scheduled for later this month and on Dec. 6, the United Auto Workers Union is expected to oppose any labor pullout from the government's new Pay Board.

Highly placed sources within the UAW said Wednesday their leaders have decided to go along with a board decision generally to limit any wage increases to 5.5% annually and to fight "further down the road" for retroactive hikes for another 216,000 members.

"Our conclusion was that we made a hell of a lot of progress by being a part of the Pay Board, and we would be nuts to forfeit our right to participate in future decisions," said one member of the union's 25-member international executive board.

The UAW was to get a 3% automatic increase due Nov. 22 and a cost of living increase expected to be 14 cents hourly on Dec. 6. Together, they would top the board's limit by only about one-half of one per cent.

Both increases were included for the second and third years of three-year contracts won at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler after a 67-day strike against GM a year ago.

Leonard Woodcock, UAW president, voted with the other four labor members of the Pay Board against the 5.5% limit on yearly wage increases and against the ban on retroactive payment of raises held up during the wage-price freeze that began Aug. 14.

Woodcock's 1.6 million-member union is to send some 3,000 delegates to Detroit Saturday for a special convention.

Bank Borrowing Rate Cut To 4 3/4%

Washington (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board cut its discount rate from 5% to 4 3/4% Wednesday, a move reflecting the downturn in interest rates generally.

The board said the latest change, the first since mid-July, was made in "recognition of reductions that have taken place in other short-term interest rates."

The discount rate is the interest the Federal Reserve system charges its member banks for borrowing. Most other interest rates are scaled upward from it.

But the board's move, effective Thursday, represents no push for more expansive money policies. Instead, the board indicated, it is attempting to bring the rate into line with other short-term rates.

The action is effective at the Federal Reserve's regional banks at Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Dallas and San Francisco. The other five banks in the system are expected to reduce the interest rate shortly.

A vice president of Lincoln's National Bank of Commerce, Joseph Nisson, said the discount rate cut is no indication of the money market and will have no real effect on general interest rates.

(The Lincoln area is under the Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank, one of the five that has not yet cut the rate.)

Okinawa Policeman Beaten, Killed

Naha, Okinawa (UPI) — Rampaging students with their faces wrapped in towels burned a policeman with a flaming bottle of gasoline then beat him to death Wednesday during a day of violence and labor strikes protesting the American military presence on this Japanese island.

At least 80 persons were injured in firebomb and teargas clashes and police arrested 84 students and other demonstrators, police said. No Americans were involved.

The death of the policeman, whom police said was set afire by a Molotov cocktail and then jumped and beaten on the head by students until he started to bleed profusely, occurred several hours before the U.S. Senate voted 84-6 to ratify the U.S.-Japanese treaty returning Okinawa and the other Ryukyu Islands to Japanese rule.

The treaty was signed by the two governments in June. The Japanese Diet (Parliament) is debating ratification of the treaty.

Rehnquist's Rights Record Criticized

Washington (AP) — Labor leaders joined Wednesday in their attack on the civil-rights and civil-liberties record of William H. Rehnquist, one of President Nixon's nominees for two Supreme Court vacancies.

Spokesmen for the AFL-CIO and the United Auto Workers union urged the Senate Judiciary Committee to reject Rehnquist's nomination, using basically the arguments that civil-rights leaders had the day before.

Andrew J. Biemiller, testifying for the AFL-CIO, called Rehnquist "a right wing zealot... an extremist in favor of executive supremacy and diminution of personal freedom."

UAW President Leonard Woodcock, in a statement read by an aide, said Rehnquist possesses neither the breadth of vision nor the humanity which is required of a Supreme Court justice.

The committee chairman, Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., has expressed confidence that Lewis F. Powell Jr. and Rehnquist will be speedily confirmed by the Senate after the committee acts on the nominations.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., a member of the committee's liberal bloc, also has said he thinks both nominees have majority support despite his misgivings about Rehnquist's appointment.

The committee chairman, Eastland, said Wednesday Rehnquist, an assistant attorney general, "is a badly persecuted man."

"He is being persecuted without cause by those opposed to him," Eastland declared in the midst of Biemiller's testimony.

Neither Biemiller nor Woodcock opposed Powell, a wealthy Richmond, Va., lawyer.

Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., ranking minority member of the Judiciary Committee, chided Biemiller about racial discrimination in the craft unions in the building trades.

Hruska said that if Biemiller was correct about Rehnquist's lack of belief in the Bill of Rights, perhaps some craft union members "who practice discrimination" would like to have him on the Supreme Court.

Biemiller replied that while there had been racial discrimination in the craft unions, significant progress has been made in overcoming it.

Heavy Casualties, Damage Done At Cambodian Airport

Saigon (AP) — Enemy forces attacked the Phnom Penh airport and a nearby communications center in coordinated attacks early Wednesday, inflicting heavy casualties and damage.

U.S. B52 bombers dumped tons of explosives on a rubber plantation near the beleaguered town of Rumlong while Cambodian troops battled to rescue some 400 men wounded defending the town 50 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

The enemy mounted a steady mortar attack on the town and American bombers retaliated by pounding the plantation east of Rumlong where enemy ammunition is hidden.

A Cambodian army spokesman, Capt. Chang Song, said no accurate count of the casualties from the enemy attacks on the Phnom Penh airport and communications center was available. But unofficial reports said about 25 Cambodians were killed and 30 wounded.

Nine aircraft were reported damaged by a barrage of 50 rockets which slammed into the airfield and surrounding areas shortly after midnight.

They included three C47 transports, three light observation planes, and three of Cambodia's six helicopters. Two of the helicopters were badly torn up, spokesmen said.

At the same time the rockets hit the airport, sappers moved in behind another rocket barrage to attack a radio transmitting station nine miles to the northwest.

Witnesses said the sappers killed a number of women and children by throwing grenades into bunkers where they had taken cover.

Killing Seen As Part Of Anti-Anti-Red Effort

•The New York Times
By IVER PETERSON

Saigon — The assassination Wednesday of Professor Nguyen Van Bong, the head of a pro-government political movement, presumably by Communist elements, was regarded here as part of the enemy's continuing attempt to wipe out potential leaders of South Vietnamese anti-Communist movements.

The 42-year-old faculty member of the National Institute of Administration was killed by a bomb that blew up his car and killed two other passengers as he drove away from his office shortly after noon.

Bong was the founder and leader of the Progressivist Nationalist Party, which he had described as "the Loyal Opposition" and which U.S. Embassy officials said was "Moderate Opposition."

Bong had been widely mentioned in South Vietnamese circles as a possible successor to Premier Tran Thien Khiem in President Nguyen Van

S. Viets Told They'll Have To Block Trail

(C) Washington Star

Washington — South Vietnamese leaders have been told they should be prepared to use ground forces to block the enemy infiltration routes through Laos after American firepower is pulled out of the war, according to high-ranking officials.

American planes will continue to bomb the Ho Chi Minh trail "as long as it's needed and necessary to protect the remaining forces of the United States" — as Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird told newsmen on his return Monday from South Vietnam — but they will not continue to attack the trail to defend South Vietnam after American ground forces are gone, these officials said.

This means, they added, that the South Vietnamese will have to use "other means" — manpower on the ground — to cut the infiltration route if the North Vietnamese continue to move men and equipment southward down the trail.

The one major exception to this policy is President Nixon's promise that a residual force will remain in South Vietnam as long as Americans are held prisoners of war by Communist Forces.

Thieu's new cabinet, which is expected to be announced later this month. But American officials who knew him well said Bong's real future had lain further ahead, possibly as president.

The American embassy's political section thought highly of Bong, who spoke excellent English and was known to support progressive domestic programs widely favored by the Americans. His party was described by one embassy official as "the most vital political party in Vietnam." It had 16 members elected to the lower house in last August's elections.

By "Loyal Opposition," Bong had said he meant the party supported Thieu on the broader issues of the war against the Communists, but felt free to differ with the president's administration on domestic issues.

The weakening of the Progressivist Nationalist Party may have been the Communists' primary objective in killing Bong, one American political officer said. But one South Vietnamese politician said the murder may "cut both ways" and may provoke an anti-Communist outrage among party members, and thereby stiffen its members' general support for Thieu.

Sen. Harris Quits Race; 'I'm Broke'

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., dropped out of the running for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination Wednesday saying he is broke and cannot continue an active campaign.

Harris, who began his "New Populism" campaign for the White House just six weeks ago, said his visits to more than half the states convinced him that "there is a 'New Populist coalition' of disenchanted minorities 'which can turn this country around.'"

"They believe in the need for the redistribution of income, for breaking up the inordinate concentrations of economic and political power, for idealism as the basis of foreign policy," Harris said.

"They want to put America back together again around these principles. They want the political process to work. They see 1972 as the crucial year. "But I'm broke. "And I cannot continue to campaign actively for president. The campaign office is closing."

Harris said he would continue both in the Senate and elsewhere "to discuss the real issues that can redeem America and give our people new hope."

Harris, 40, announced July 16 he would not seek re-election to a second Senate term next year. Aides denied he had made that decision because he had lost considerable support among Oklahoma voters for his often liberal votes in the Senate.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Labor appears at the moment to be on a direct collision course with President Nixon's Phase 2 economic controls. It is premature at this point to come to firm conclusions but certain facts of the situation are interesting.

It would appear from what the new pay board has said to date that organized labor is actually in a very favored position. While it may lose on the matter of pay increases retroactive to last Aug. 15, it may well win on the application from Nov. 14 on of negotiated contract terms.

The pay board has seemed to say that wage increases will generally be held to 5.5 per cent per year, except that previously negotiated increases will be honored. This means that if labor has a contract for a 10 per cent increase in wages at this time, it will be permitted to get that.

Thus, while the unorganized segment of the economy will be held to 5.5 per cent, organized labor will enjoy the fruits of whatever it obtained at the bargaining table in recent months. This, it seems to us, is far more a victory than whatever labor might lose on the retroactivity matter.

And this is to say nothing about the price board. The thinking of this group is expected to be known any day now and could be made public even before this article appears in print.

While little discussion has been given this aspect of things, the pay board is the other half of the economic program and both halves are equally important. Your standard of living, after all, depends upon two things — what you make and what you have to pay for the goods and services you buy.

But the price situation, also, is important in the overall aspects of the economy. What is the position of industry, for instance, if a 3 per cent raise in prices is the established limit while previously negotiated salaries are allowed to go up 10 per cent?

Presumably, a 3 per cent price increase and a 5.5 per cent wage increase means a very low rate of inflation. That means that the wage increase is a little better in terms of real money because it will be larger than the cost of the price increase.

If that is the case, it follows that a 5.5 per cent wage increase cannot quite be met by a 3 per cent price increase. Thus, business and industry operating with those percentages will face a little tougher situation from a profit point of view.

But if the wage increase hits 10 per cent, it would seem that the situation for management could be unmanageable if it is held to a 3 per cent price hike. Thus, a great deal depends upon the decisions of the price board and a firm opinion on wages can hardly be formed until the price action is known.

To date, information indicates that the people who will get hit the hardest by the wage controls are unorganized workers on a straight salary. In many areas, wages will be simply impossible to control. This will be the case involving commission pay and many service areas.

Even the price matter is expected to leave a lot to be desired due to difficulty of pricing. One major problem is expected in the area of quality. If a sacrifice in quality is used to get around the price lid, then that part of Phase 2 takes on little real meaning.

There remains in all aspects of the controls one single group that can be controlled and that is the mass of unorganized, salaried workers. It is not unlike the income tax system when the average guy on withholding is the one who has no loopholes to crawl through.

Labor knows, of course, that it probably has the power to make or break the new economic program. This is a heavy thing to contemplate but there are some offsetting factors.

If the program fails and that failure can be laid in a political year at the doorstep of organized labor, the repercussions among millions of voters could be telling against labor. Labor has a future to look to as well as a present and a callous position at the moment may reap a lot of damage for it in the long-run.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Foreign Aid's Image
The Worse For Wear

NEW YORK — Fascinating as it is to watch the Senate have a fling at fraying foreign aid, there's one thing sure (as taxes): The global spenders will find a way to wiggle out of this one, too.

So don't get your hopes up, fellow taxpayers. They may cut out a billion here and there, but you'll hardly be able to notice it come April 15.

Because, no matter how many voters squirm at the idea of playing Santa Claus to people who don't even like us, the folks in the White House are convinced it's the only way to keep this country No. 1.

Haven't you noticed us trying harder? Without this diplomatic ace in the hole, they keep telling us, a lot of our foreign friends might turn against us and do something rash. Like maybe even cozy up to some communist power.

Well??

Fifty-four nations who graciously accept our millions every year did precisely that on the United Nations vote to kick Taiwan out. In that fast shuffle our diplomatic ace turned out to be a joker. And this was BEFORE the Senate went into a snit and chopped down the money tree.

What seems to bother most taxpayers about foreign aid (outside of the high tax brackets it puts us all in) is that it just doesn't seem to work.

Presidents insist it's their most valuable tool in maintaining a stable world, that without it there's no telling what might happen to weaker countries in their struggle to resist aggression and subversion.

So for the past 30 years we have shoveled money by the bucketful to our helpless friends around the world. Last time anybody bothered to count it had come to $143,000,000,000.

That, friends, is a lot of money. And have you noticed how "stable" the world is lately?

It all began back there after World War II, when we set up the Marshall Plan to help, among others, England, France, Italy, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, the Netherlands and Turkey.

And it was, among others, Belgium, France, Italy, Belgium, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, the Netherlands and Turkey who voted "no" on the U.S. motion to keep Taiwan in the U.N.

So much for our sure-fire formula for buying faithful friends.

We were even less successful in the underdeveloped countries of Africa, Asia and Latin America where we randomly spent millions sending peasants equipment they couldn't use—and cash their upper crust could.

It wasn't all bad. Hardly anyone resents foreign aid that feeds hungry children . . . or fights disease . . . or sets up drug controls and such. And only the Scrooges among us would refuse to help starving refugees of earthquakes and tidal waves.

But here we are, 30 years older and $143 billion poorer, and we're still plagued by wars, famine, communism and friends we can't count on.

What's more, it still bugs us to think about that electrical equipment rusting in a south American jungle because nobody bothered to remember you can't plug it into a plum tree.

Game Is A Bonus

By coincidence, the National League of Cities scheduled its 1971 annual meeting for Nov. 28 to Dec. 1 in Honolulu, Hawaii, doubtless without the knowledge or a care that the Nebraska Cornhuskers were also set for an island trip to face the Hawaii Rainbows that very week.

Taxpayers, as they are wont to do, might question that coincidence and wonder whether representatives from Nebraska municipalities could attend in good conscience. After all, it smacks of a junket.

According to news reports, Omaha taxpayers will have to pay more than $3,000 to pay for five of seven City Council members to fly to Honolulu for the annual league session.

Lincoln Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf — who has attended all other annual league meetings while mayor — is using funds budgeted for conferences to make the trip, but is personally picking up the tab for Mrs. Schwartzkopf. Two council members — Steve Cook and F. Bob Sikyla — are traveling via public money because they are delegates to the convention. The council office reports that Councilman Merle Hale is going "on his own" — not at taxpayer expense — because he is not a delegate, but nevertheless will attend meetings.

Neither the council nor the mayor have been lavish in spending public funds on themselves, but that is not the point. The fact is that some city funds will be spent on a worthwhile experience for Nebraska public officials, who are, by the way, generally overworked and underpaid. Although the benefits to the average citizen of such a trip don't jump right out in front of you, suffice it to say that a well-informed and coordinated urban lobby — which the league attempts to be — can't hurt any.

Lincoln representatives to the league meetings haven't publicly said whether or not they intend to view the Husker-Rainbow game at their own expense. It really makes no difference. We figure most people would, given the opportunity.

GOP Enjoys Early Kickoff

President Nixon unofficially kicked off his re-election campaign Tuesday to what must be the envy of the Democrats. Financial backing for the GOP was reaped by the vault full and the weight of the issues, at this point, appears to be comfortably on the President's side.

In a sweeping generalization, one could say that Nixon's biggest chore over the next few months would be to decide whether to dump Spiro Agnew or keep him on the ticket.

With political and show business luminaries placed strategically over the map, the President spoke in person at $500 per plate "salute to the President" dinners in New York and Chicago and via closed circuit television in 18 other cities from coast to coast.

The events raised more than $5 million for the party — not bad for one night. That amount would wipe out over half the deficit suffered by the Democrats in the 1968 presidential campaign.

Nixon used the partisan affair to appeal for bipartisanship in foreign affairs, particularly for resurrection of the foreign aid program. But he also set the tone for a key 1972 GOP issue: "Three years ago, the challenge that confronted us was a very great one. It was to end a war in which there was no end in sight. We now have a different challenge. It is to win peace when peace is in sight."

Neutralization of the war issue, the attempt to resolve the economic dilemma and the new diplomatic initiatives all leave Nixon in relatively good shape with less than a year to go before the election. Democratic hopes hinge on the success or failure of "Nixonomics."

Although all is quite obviously not right with the world, it is little wonder that the assembled Republican backers enjoyed their Tuesday night dinner.

GOP Banks Seem Favored For Federal Deposits; Taxpayer Hit Borrowing Back His Own Money

WASHINGTON—The federal government keeps billions of dollars of the taxpayers' money in banks run by Republican bigwigs.

The banks don't pay a penny in interest. Yet they loan the money back to ordinary Americans at rates up to 14 per cent. Their profits from this unique arrangement run into the millions each year, far more than it costs them to process the government accounts.

Even by the Treasury's conservative estimate, federal deposits in commercial banks range between $1 billion and $10 billion. Probably 12,000 of the 13,000 eligible banks have some kind of no-interest federal deposits, but the golden gravy is concentrated in the big GOP banks.

Take, for instance, the case of Charles Walker. Back in 1955, he became an executive of the Republic National Bank in Dallas. The bank suddenly started receiving big, interest-free federal deposits after he joined the Eisenhower administration in 1959 as an assistant to the Treasury secretary.

Now Walker is back at the Treasury again as its undersecretary. Coincidentally, Republic National's bank balances last year show it had a whopping $56 million in federal deposits.

Among the biggest federal deposits are withholding tax collections, which usually are paid directly to the banks by employers. The money is credited, of course, to the accounts of the U.S. Treasury. Thus, in effect, the IRS collects the taxes and turns the money over immediately to the banks for use of loans.

The banks pay the taxpayers nothing for the use of their money, then loan the money back to them individually at high interest rates. The harassed taxpayer, who needs to borrow money to pay his taxes, winds up paying interest to a bank for the use of his own money.

The Treasury's fiscal manager, Assistant Secretary John Carlock, swore to us politics has nothing to do with which banks get federal deposits. Employers deposit their workers' withholding taxes, for example, in the banks of their choice.

He acknowledged most government agencies deposit money—appropriated funds, some Indian trust funds, operational money for PXs and the like—in selected banks. But he insisted the banks were chosen for the services they provide.

Nevertheless, banks with good GOP connections seem to be blessed with the most interest-free federal money. Nor has there been any move by the Republicans, despite the federal budget squeeze, to end this bonanza for the banks.

A former mortgage banker, Martin Price, suggested in a "Washingtonian" magazine article that federal deposits should be allocated to banks which will use the money to promote social aims. This would include loans to help small businessmen, to stimulate the economy in depressed areas and to build up ghetto neighborhoods.

We retained Price to find out which banks receive the most federal deposits. Here are highlights from the research he completed for us:

Chase Manhattan, one of the most progressive of the giant banks, is controlled by the Republican Rockefeller family. One of its directors, Jeremiah Milbank, Jr., happens to be the GOP national finance committee chairman. Treasury Secretary John Connally once negotiated a loan for more than $30 million from Chase Manhattan to pay the taxes on the estate of Texas oil millionaire Sid Richardson. Last year, Chase Manhattan had more than $200 million in federal deposits.

One of Vice President Agnew's favorite banker cronies is George Moore, a dependable Republican contributor, who retired last year as chairman of the First National City Bank of New York. This bank had well over $300 million in no-interest deposits from the government.

One of the party's most sagacious financiers is Harold Helm, a member of the GOP's booster club and New Jersey finance committee. He is also executive committee chairman of the Chemical Bank in New York City, which had $40 million in IRS accounts, in this

Patchwork Prairie Country

The autumn rains have come with their soggy mess matting down the dry, fallen leaves and dripping from the roof of the gray barn. Scampering about in frenetic haste are the ground squirrels gleaming from the roadsides the last of the seed pods to store deep beneath the earth's crust. Now they look sleek and fat as they stand straight as a fence post when danger is near. Soon they will enter their tunnel and hibernate over the bleak winter months.

The marshland is lonely now. I watched the herons circle higher and higher until they became only small black specks in the sky drifting southward. Their harsh, coarse voices could be heard long after I lost track of their slender bodies.

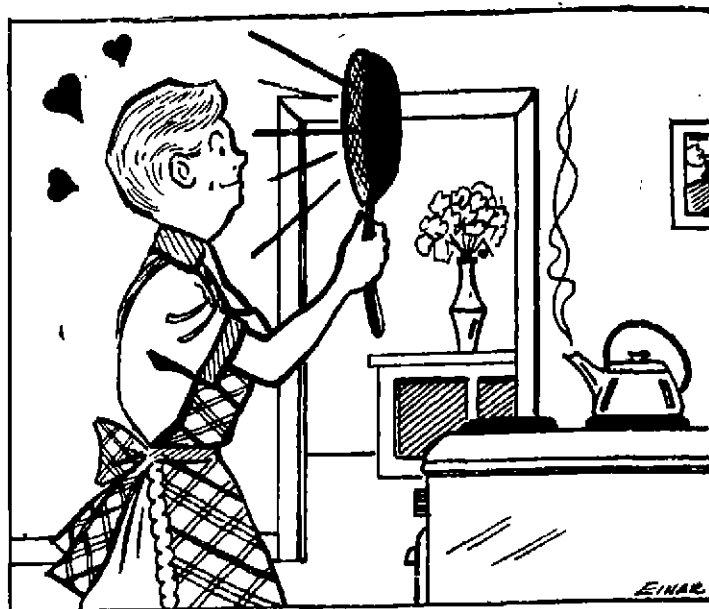

The black Angus calves are growing a thick coat of hair. Soon the snow will be matted on their backs and their coats of fur their only protection against the bitter winds.

There is a sprinkling of frost-diamonds over the hills and the stars seem to bend nearer the earth. The wind is shrill like a harp out of tune but it is strong enough to blow the last of the milkweed fluff away.

Soon now, fall and winter will meet under a leaden sky, the ground will freeze and the creeks will slow. The hawks will circle high above the snowy fields, aware of the ominous scarcity of food.

I will pull my coat tighter about me, watch my frosty breath curl from my quivering lips and gasp, "Brrrr! Winter is here again."

For some strange reason I dislike winter more and more as I add another year to my life. Is this still another sign that I am sliding down the other side of the hill? In any event, I hope I don't slide too fast. I would prefer a slow easy glide.

Today as I fried chicken I took out my favorite heavy skillet that I have had since the year after we were married. I can always depend upon it to brown the chicken to a crisp golden brown with a tenderness inside that we like. It browns chops and steaks evenly and deliciously. It never fails me.

Yes, I have an electric skillet, too, and one with a Teflon coating. The electric skillet, I use for pancakes and such. The Teflon skillet I use when my heavy, old skillet is in use and I am forced to use it, but there is nothing that replaces the original one we purchased years ago.

One lady said she likes her cast-iron Dutch oven for pot roasts and other meats. Mine isn't cast-iron but, like my friend, we have our favorites.

I have a deep-fat fryer, too, that I use for frying raised doughnuts and upon occasion have used it for chicken. It is good for making French fries, too, but I really don't use it as much as I should.

Oh, I know the directions say the oil doesn't need to be drained from it after each use, and onions or fish can be fried, and the same oil used for frying doughnuts and other foods, but somehow this doesn't work too well. We don't eat too many fried foods and the word is we should eat fewer and fewer of them as we grow older. Consequently the oil would become rancid, I fear, if I let it stand in the deep-fat fryer. Not only that, I dislike getting the fryer out, adding the oil and cleaning it again after use.

I am like the friend who got an elaborate vegetable chopper with various blades for Christmas last year. She tried it once but said it took so much time to put it together, take apart and wash that she preferred her sharp knife. She shreds cabbage for slaw in a fraction of the time with nothing more than her trusty old knife. Well, perhaps this doesn't prove anything but that wasn't my aim when I began my column.

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. Liquor Licenses

Lincoln, Neb.

I wish to commend Audun and Barbara Ravnar for taking time to express their views in this column on the granting of the Hideaway liquor license by the Liquor Commission.

Against the wishes of the citizens of the area and the vote of the City Council members. The other 500 people who signed petitions against this license also had the same feelings but only one couple took time to write. Perhaps this is the reason we do not accomplish more in the way of social reform.

This is par for the course for the Liquor Commission whose members draw $16,000 a year for sitting in on hearings several times a month. A few years ago when Gateway was being considered for liquor and beer licenses, I walked the streets of the area and collected hundreds of signatures on petitions opposing these licenses. Only two families in the area did not sign them, since there were activities for children on the mall just outside these doors. The Liquor Commission granted the licenses over our protests.

If the commission members are so anxious to create more alcoholics, I would recommend that the next Legislature cut their salaries and use the savings for detoxification and rehabilitation of the alcoholic. It has been proven that alcoholism is in direct proportion to the availability of alcohol.

Just recently those responsible for the alcohol program at Lincoln General Hospital stated in this paper that they should come to the citizens of Lincoln for funds if all the grants did not come through for the program. Taxpayers have had it up to their ears, taking care of the problems which the liquor dealers create. Why not go to the liquor dealers, who have created the alcoholics, for their care?

I was notified that two different hospital insurance policies would be increased in order that the alcoholic might be covered in the hospital. Car insurance goes up every year for the thousands of accidents caused by drunken drivers. We were told in a visit to the Penitentiary that 86 per cent of the prisoners there had committed their crimes under the influence of alcohol, and now they want a Hilton hotel for a penitentiary. If 86 per cent of the prisoners could be reduced, we would not need a new building.

SAM'S Bonfire

Lincoln, Neb.

The Sigma Alpha Mu Fraternity has had a bonfire for eight years. Now they are saying that this will be the last year.

I feel that if the SAM's can't have their bonfire because of pollution, they should say no family should have more than one car. If they need more transportation, they should use bikes.

They should also be getting the new buses because the old ones make three times more pollution in one day than one bonfire does a year.

Doctor Tells Story Of Quackery

By ROBERT PETERSON

A sick person will often try anything. His eagerness to get well sometimes leads him voluntarily into the hands of those crafty practitioners we have come to label as quacks.

The lore of quackery has been so rich in California that Thomas Lyon, M.D. of the San Diego Medical Society, decided to assemble a collection of spurious medical gadgetry.

"The first great quack in this country," said Dr. Lyons in an illustrated talk I heard him give, "was Elisha Perkins. In 1775 he developed his 'Perkins Patented Metallic Attractor.' It consisted of two rods, each filled with three different metals.

"Perkins simply drew the rods over the affected parts of one's body and assured the patient he was being cured.

"One of his patients was George Washington. Another was Oliver Ellsworth, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

"Perkins grew rich, sent his son to Yale, gave his offspring a set of rods when he graduated and packed him off to England where the boy made even more money than his pop."

Dr. Lyons went on to describe dozens of curious devices which have appeared in recent years and flourished for brief periods before state and federal food and drug inspectors were able to curb and convict their imaginative creators. Many of these devices purportedly cured cancer and arthritis.

There was the Chandler Diagnostic Machine — an imposing box with 48 dials which promised to cure what ailed you at $25 a treatment... The Wilshire Belt which you merely wore around your middle to cure stomach disorders... the Ozone Generator with its flashing fluorescent tubes emanating smelly but useless oxides of nitrate... and the Filmasonic machine which cost $500 and which mysteriously plucked healing rays from space as the patient lay quietly in bed listening to a tape recording of the Scriptures.

A gadget popular with the gullible was the "Spectochrome" with which you could project bright colors toward your ailing parts — a different color pattern for every disease. With the help of a snappy slogan, "A Spectochrome in Every Home," the inventor distributed 10,000 machines at $90 apiece. When he was finally convicted, 112 people took the stand defending him.

"We don't like to talk about it," said Dr. Lyons, "but on rare occasions there have even been quacks in the medical profession. One of the most notorious was a physician named Alpert Abrams, who developed a 'Dynamizer' which purportedly measured the vibrations of disease as found in a drop of blood. He had people all over the world mailing him drops of blood which he would examine for a fee and offer a diagnosis."

Quackery has many facets—pathos, chicanery, humor, hope, and tragedy. Dr. Lyons admitted there is a grain of mercy in quackery. When reputable medicine cannot effect a cure, a desperate patient may find a smattering of precious hope in the brazen, unwarranted promises of medical pretenders.

Want a question answered? Action on something? Phone or write ACTION LINE, Sunday Journal and Star, giving name, town, daily paper (Star, Journal or Sunday) plus your request. Calls or letters from unidentified persons are not used. A pen name or initial will be used with the town if requested and if the caller or writer also provides his correct name and address.

When I was hired as night custodian three years ago by the University of Nebraska, I was told two weeks pay would be held back and that if I left the position, that money would be paid me. I found a better job on Aug. 18, asked for the back pay, but was told that was not in the agreement. Help.

—E.J., Elmwood

ACTION LINE: You unfortunately did not give enough information for Action Line to fully explore your situation.

According to John Dzerk, UNL physical plant administrator, there is no reason why you should have not received your back pay. Dzerk explains that it normally takes one month for the first paycheck to be received by a new employee due to accounting procedures.

This means that a new employee actually works for two weeks without receiving pay, pay which is given him when he leaves. Dzerk says you should contact the supervisor of the department for which you worked or give more detailed information to Action Line, since you should have received the pay.

I am a sophomore at Crete Senior High School and for a class project I am to lead a discussion on the rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar." I need a script from the opera and some pictures.

—Karen Krull, Crete

ACTION LINE: You are being mailed a libretto of the opera from Action Line. For pictures, see the "Time" magazine of two weeks ago at your local library. The front cover had a picture of the actor portraying Jesus Christ.

Can a landlord raise the rent on an apartment during the wage-price freeze if one person moves out and another person moves in?

—M.P., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: No, says the Internal Revenue Service, office in charge of wage-price freeze information and complaints. And if you do have a complaint against a specific landlord contact IRS at 475-3541.

Looking ahead to the end of the freeze on Nov. 13, the landlord will still need to check with IRS before hiking rent during Phase II of the economic policy. He would then need to justify that the increase is non-inflationary. If he has made improvements, says IRS, they must equal at least the value of three months rent with a minimum of $250. Then the owner can raise the rent by one and a half per cent of the improvements.

If Adam and Eve had two sons, Cain and Abel, where did the boys get their wives?

—M. W., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Dr. Darrel Berg, pastor at Trinity United Methodist Church, has the opinion that Adam and Eve and their sons are mythical people in a mythical situation.

Therefore, Berg says, one does not really have to worry about details like where the wives came from in a situation deeply rooted in mythology. To say the situation is mythical does not mean to say that the situation is fictional, Dr. Berg hastens to point out.

Precise details of the myth are not in themselves important, only the larger truth that the story means to illustrate.

Wouldn't it be possible to start groups of adult sports activities once a week in high school gyms so that adults could get some exercise and meet some other people interested in sports. This would be a program just for the fun of playing, not instruction. Perhaps a once a week sports activity for married couples.

—V.L., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: City Recreation Director Richard Leker says his department's budget is earmarked for present programs and would not stand another addition at all.

For adult sports, the department currently offers men's open gym classes which started Nov. 8. Working men may drop in between 7 and 9 p.m. at the following junior high school gyms: Irving on Mondays; Goodrich on Tuesdays; Robin Mickle on Wednesdays; and Whittier on Thursdays.

For the lady of the house or office, evening slim gym classes are offered for 25 cents per class and there is organized activity and time for individual activity at these sessions. Contact the recreation department for full details.

However, if there is sufficient interest shown in arranging some gym activities through agencies other than the recreation department, perhaps it can be arranged before next fall.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23): What appears an aggressive move may be mere maneuver to attract your attention. Those who make threats probably are bluffing. Hold ground, but review position. You get chance for new start.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23): Difficult. If not impossible, to keep secrets. Confidential conference could turn into public gathering. Know this and be prepared.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Communication lines may be disrupted. Be sure meanings are clear. Some now have tendency to misquote you. Make changes. Be flexible. Listen and learn. But maintain attitude of intelligent skepticism.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Don't mix money and friendship. If you do, both could be lost. Control temper. Give logic equal time with impulse. Make living quarters more comfortable. Strive for greater family harmony.

Urbom Decides He Has Jurisdiction In Tribal Council Election Dispute

Federal District Court Judge Warren K. Urbom ruled Wednesday he has the jurisdictional authority to decide a dispute involving a Winnebago Tribal Council election.

Collaterally, Judge Urbom issued a temporary injunction against the tribal council to bar the unseating of three newly-elected members or the calling another election as an alternative to one held Oct. 5.

The dispute centers on the seating of three members elected by an Oct. 5 tribal election. Later, the results of the election were questioned and the council refused to seat the three.

The three new members — Mrs. Cora Solomon, Matthew Cleveland and Louis Mallory — filed suit and won a temporary restraining order against an alternate election until Judge Urbom's ruling Wednesday.

In a memorandum opinion, Judge Urbom said that prior to the Indian Civil Rights Act of 1968, federal courts had invoked the doctrine of "internal controversy" to label their findings of no jurisdiction over such matters.

However, Judge Urbom said the congressional act, intended as a "Bill of Rights" for Indians gives the federal court jurisdiction over claimed abridgement of rights of individual members by the tribal council.

In his memorandum order, Judge Urbom said the tribal council has "no authority to invalidate an election."

Thus, he said, the council exceeded its authority for refusing to seat the three new members on these grounds.

Council authority for disqualification of its members is limited to matters of age, residency and neglect of duty or gross misconduct, he said.

Committee Sets Budget Hearing Dates

Sen. Richard Marvel of Hastings, chairman of the Legislature's Budget Committee, has announced the committee will hold hearings Nov. 18 and 19 on the budget requests for the coming fiscal year for seven major state agencies.

With the 1972 session limited to 60 days, Marvel has said he would like to begin budget hearings before the session begins.

On Nov. 18, the committee will review budgets for the Military Department, Soil and Water Conservation Commission, Agriculture Department, and Revenue Department.

Northeast Branch Library Continuance Urged

Individuals concerned about the closing of the Northeast Branch Library at 27th and Orchard appeared before the Lincoln Library Board Wednesday to urge that the branch be maintained until a new facility is built.

The board took no action but indicated that the situation would be re-examined to determine if the usage justified maintaining the branch beyond the six-month period ending in February the city had agreed to leave the branch open.

The citizens of the area noted that the area served by the Northeast branch is "unique" in that many persons living in this area do not have the means to visit the new branches which are several miles from their homes and that many of these homes contain fewer books than the average home in Lincoln.

In a prepared statement from Wendell Gauger representing the group, the committee stated that they are "fearful that if the branch is closed that the people needing books who live in this area will not have adequate resources to obtain them from other sources."

Four of the older branches including the Northeast Branch were scheduled to be closed when the two new branch libraries, Victor E. Anderson and Charles Gere, were opened.

However, based on citizen concern in the area, the board had agreed to keep the Northeast Branch open for an additional six months.

In other action, the board approved a $900 annual contract with W. C. Bullock Co. for snow removal at the two new branch libraries.

Railway Commission Plans Hearings On Consolidation

The Nebraska Railway Commission has scheduled three public hearings for December and January regarding consolidation of railroad stations.

A hearing has been scheduled for 10:30 a.m., Jan. 6, at Lewellen concerning Union Pacific's request for permission to close its station there.

A similar hearing has also been scheduled involving the Burlington Northern's request to establish a mobile station at Nebraska City.

The mobile station would cause the closing of stations at Bennett, Palmyra, Unadilla, Syracuse, and Schubert. The hearing will be at 10 a.m. Jan. 11, in Nebraska City.

The Burlington will hold another hearing at 10 a.m. in Wahoo regarding a similar proposal by the Burlington to set up a mobile station at Ashland with the removal of station facilities at Chalco, Gretna, Wahoo and Prague.

Mullen Hospital District Upheld By Judge Moran

MULLEN, Neb. (AP) — District Court Judge Robert Moran of Alliance has upheld the legality of the formation of the Mullen Hospital District formed to serve Hooker and parts of Thomas and Grant counties.

Judge Moran said Tuesday opponents of the district did not specifically state where the county commissioners had erred in setting up the district, and they had met the condition set forth in a recent State Supreme Court case because of the implication the board found formation of the district conducive to public health and welfare.

The five-member hospital board selected by the county commission is slated to meet soon to consider the question of a special election to decide whether the new district should take over assets of the present hospital in Mullen.

The hospital is run by a non-profit corporation.

... FOR U.S., FULBRIGHT, SYMINGTON DECLARE

Washington (UPI) — Sens. Stuart Symington and J. William Fulbright said Wednesday the administration is trying to give White House assistant Henry Kissinger operational control of the nation's intelligence network.

Fulbright, D-Ark., and Symington, D-Mo., who serve on a special Senate subcommittee that oversees the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), criticized President Nixon for overhauling intelligence activities without informing Congress in advance.

In a Senate speech Symington called for a full congressional inquiry into the reorganization. He said the shakeup did not explain what caused it or expand on the remedies "which have now been unilaterally decreed."

Fulbright said it was clear that Kissinger's new role was "a further erosion of congressional control over the intelligence community" since he is exempt from testifying before Congress on grounds of executive privilege.

"Enhanced Role"

The White House announced

last Friday that CIA Director Richard Helms had been handed an "enhanced leadership role" and would be put in charge of overall intelligence operations — including the CIA and the various defense intelligence units. At the same time, Kissinger, Nixon's national security affairs adviser, was named to head a special National Security Council Committee that will work with Helms.

It was not clear from the announcement what Kissinger's relationship would be to Helms and Symington questioned how Helms' leadership would be enhanced by the move, noting he will give up operational control of the CIA to a deputy.

"Has this new White House committee been given authority and/or responsibility which heretofore was the responsibility of the CIA; and which the Congress, under the National Security Act, vested in that agency?" he asked.

Helms is a popular figure on Capitol Hill and critics of the Vietnam war claim the CIA's intelligence estimates of enemy capabilities were far more accurate than those of Defense Intelligence.

Some members believe the CIA forewarned the administration against conducting the 1970 commando raid on a suspected prisoner of war camp in North Vietnam.

"How can the integrity of the intelligence product be assured when responsibility for the most critical aspects of intelligence analysis is taken out of the hands of career professionals and vested in a combination of military professionals and the White House staff?" Symington asked.

with a man of Kao's reputation. U.S. intelligence maintains a thick file on Kao. He is accused of conducting extensive intelligence operations in Asia, Europe and Africa while ostensibly serving as a journalist for the New China News Agency (NCNA).

He was expelled from India in 1960 and from Mauritius in 1964. He has also been active in Nepal and in Switzerland, where he attended the 1961 Geneva conference on Laos.

His principal assignment prior to the U.N. was as chief African correspondent for NCNA. Taking up residence in Dar es Salaam, the capital of Tanzania, in 1961, Kao traveled regularly throughout Africa at the high point of Peking's operations on the continent.

Kao is said to have been the prime mover in the pro-Peking coup in Zanzibar in 1964, passing out money and arms to the insurgents, including Sheikh Abdul Rahman Muhammed (Sheik Babu), a former NCNA stringer who emerged as foreign minister.

Since its inception, NCNA, like the Soviet press agency Tass, has been considered by U.S. intelligence to be an occasional front for espionage activities, particularly in countries where Peking has no formal diplomatic relations.

Divorces High

East Berlin — East Germany has a rate of 16.6 divorces for every 10,000 people, the third highest in Europe — behind Romania and Hungary.

China's U.N. Advance Man Is A Spy

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Washington — The head of the advance party for Peking's delegation to the United Nations has been identified as a leading Chinese intelligence agent.

U.S. officials expressed surprise and concern that Kao Liang was selected for the delicate assignment of laying the groundwork for Peking's first diplomatic mission in the United States.

Kao, heading a six-man advance party, arrived in New York Monday and paid his first visit to the U.N. Tuesday with two other advance men. He is making preliminary arrangements for the official delegation scheduled to arrive in New York Thursday.

The United States, the Soviet Union and other major powers have long used diplomatic cover for their intelligence agents. Last month, for example, the CIA leaked the accusation that Vladimir P. Pavlichenko, director of external information of the U.N. public information office, is a "veteran officer" of the KGB, the Soviet intelligence agency.

But Peking, moving into the international diplomatic spotlight for the first time, had not been expected to get into the game so soon, particularly and the disappearance from public view of a number of top military men.

These military leaders have not been seen publicly since the early part of September. Their disappearance has been linked with a number of other unusual occurrences, including a mysterious plane crash in Mongolia on Sept. 13 and the cancellation of China's National Day Parade on Oct. 1.

It was thought possible here that Yeh may have inherited Lin's ministerial post or his job as executive head of the party's military commission, or succeeded Huang Yung-sheng, as chief of the army's general staff. Huang is one of the missing military leaders.

Ex-Chinese Army Marshal Rises To New Prominence

(c) The New York Times

Hong Kong — Yeh Chien-ying, a 73-year-old former marshal of the Chinese army, who has become increasingly active following recent signs of a new power struggle in Peking, has been promoted to a higher-ranking status within the important political bureau of the Communist Party.

This was seen here as an indication that he had taken on new responsibilities, probably in the field of military affairs.

Trendwood Wellington Greens Hollingsworth Heights Kimberly Heights

Although the holiday season is still two days and six weeks off, and the glitter of festivities is still in the talking stage, there are many suburban families who have been entertaining in party fashion for many other than holiday reasons. Of course, it is always fun to get together with a group of friends, even if the incentive isn't a special occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wendell, for instance, hosted a party last weekend at their Trendwood home following the Nebraska victory over Iowa State. The event was called a 'Go Big Red Party,' and following the chilling weather at the game, four couples returned to the Wendell home to warm up cold feet and hands 'round the fire.' There were snacks and drinks, and then some more football for the sports fans, who tuned in to the LSU-Alabama game.

Another party is being planned for the coming weekend at the Wellington Greens home of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Julian. The

dinner party is what might be called a 'coming and going affair,' for there is a dual purpose. The occasion is both to welcome former Lincoln residents, Mr. and Mrs. Les Wheeler, back to town and to bid a fond sendoff to Mr. and Mrs. Irv Bloom who will leave for their winter home in California in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Les Wheeler have returned to Lincoln to once again make it their home, having lived away for the past 15 years. They moved back some four weeks ago from Friendly Valley, Calif.

Other guests at the buffet dinner will be Mr. and Mrs. Larry Welch and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Layman.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Engelbart of Hollingsworth Heights recently hosted a party for a very special occasion, namely their 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Engelbart entertained 32 relatives and friends at dinner at a Lincoln restaurant, after which there was coffee and chatting at the home of the host and hostess.

A shared birthday and the anticipation of a party was the inspiration for Miss Alice Hutson's recent journey to Vancouver, Wash.

The hostess role ended on Tuesday morning for another suburban resident who has spent the past few days entertaining relatives.

Mrs. Pearle Frey of Kimberly Heights welcomed her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Callahan of Bridgeview, Ill., into her home for a two-day visit—and on Sunday she was hostess at a family dinner in honor of the visitors.

Included on the guest list for the Sunday affair were Mrs. Frey's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeShon.

The Lincoln resident returned from the west coast just a week ago after spending two enjoyable weeks with her relatives.

Miss Hutson shared her birthday with her twin brother, Alfred Hutson—and that was the first time the two had celebrated together for many, many years. The festivity took the form of a dinner out on the town.

While in Vancouver, Miss Hutson also visited with her sister, Mrs. George Stombaugh, and Mr. Stombaugh—and was included on their guest list for a Halloween party.

Relatively speaking, relatives have been occupying much of the time and thoughts of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Shoemaker of Trendwood.

It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Shoemaker moved into their new motor home last Friday and embarked on a trip to Worthington, Minn., where they visited with Mrs. Shoemaker's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Steve McCauley.

The couple returned to their home late Sunday evening.

We can't tell you exactly how many candles were on the cake when Harold D. Warner of Southwood celebrated his birthday on Sunday. We are sworn to secrecy. But we can reveal who all was on hand for the family dinner.

The birthday boy's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Weber and their children, Glennis, Rodney, and Rick—came from Wymore for the party. Adding to the 'happy' birthday festivity were members of the celebrant's family, Mrs. Warner and the children, Vincent and Angela.

MS Society Receives Walkers

planning visitations to and baking cookies for MS patients at Christmas time.

One of the most visible projects to aid the Society was completed on Wednesday, Nov. 10, when representatives of the sorority chapter presented two walkers to the Lincoln MS Chapter at its November board meeting.

The two adjustable aluminum walkers will be added to the Equipment Loan Closet and will be loaned to members when prescribed by physicians.

The Equipment Loan Closet contains an estimated $7,450 worth of equipment for patients with multiple sclerosis—and it is estimated that the equipment has saved members more than $43,925 had they rented similar devices.

It is amazing what service organizations can accomplish when they decide on a project and are behind it wholeheartedly.

One of the dedicated Lincoln groups is Beta Sigma Phi sorority whose Xi Beta Chapter has chosen the Multiple Sclerosis Society as its service project for this club year.

The services to the society that are planned include labelling MS Newsletters, placing MS canisters in local stores for the charity drive,

Sisterhood Meeting

Mrs. Irwin Dubinsky, a member of the board of directors of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, participated this week in the organization's 28th Biennial Assembly held at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles, Calif.

The Lincoln representative is a leader in the Sisterhood of Temple B'Nai B'rith and also is president of the Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and South Dakota Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, including the Sisterhoods of Reform Jewish congregations in those areas.

The assembly is the legislative and policy-making body which reviews the program and makes decisions concerning the course of action to be undertaken by the Federation.

The Sisterhood Federation is an affiliate of the international body of Reform Judaism, the World Union for Progressive Judaism.

Thursday Meetings

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Professional Engineers of Nebraska will meet at the Legionnaire Club on Thursday evening, Nov. 11.

The social hour is scheduled to begin at 5:30 o'clock, and the dinner will follow at 6:30 o'clock.

The evening's program will be presented by Dr. Y. Scott Moore, whose topic will be "Hypnosis."

The Lincoln Legal Secretaries Association will have a business meeting on Thursday evening, Nov. 11 at 7 o'clock.

The guest speaker will be Sister Phyllis Hunhoff, the administrator at Madonna Home. Her topic will be "The Needs of the Elderly."

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

With the exception of a few rather isolated instances of personal outrage and public protest, the emergence of the American Indian as a "cause celebre" in the mainstream of the American social consciousness has been a fairly recent phenomenon. However, as is usually the case, once that consciousness (or perhaps "conscience" is the better word) was moved, there resulted a virtual outpouring of sentiment chastising American society for its treatment of this country's oldest minority group.

Thanks to this awakening, the literature of Indian protest abounds; and, not surprisingly, perhaps the most effective spokesman for the cause is the Indian himself. Nowhere does this become more apparent than in T. C. McLuhan's new (and first) book, "Touch The Earth: A Self-Portrait Of Indian Existence" (E.P. Dutton & Co.). A compilation of writings and statements which have emanated from various tribal representatives, the book illustrates the attitudes, beliefs and value systems of the Indians of North America from the 17th century to the present.

In addition to the quoted material, the book is illustrated with a collection of exceedingly effective photographs done by Edward S. Curtis under the patronage of J. Pierpont Morgan and President Theodore Roosevelt. These brown-tone portraits, done during the early years of the 20th century, add a visual element to the quiet eloquence of the passages included.

The writings selected by Miss McLuhan reveal an existence characterized by an all-encompassing spirituality which was manifested in a reverence for all living things: "The Great Spirit, in placing men on the earth, desired them to take good care of the ground and to do each other no harm."

Love of the land and all that dwelt upon it was not, however, to be equated with possessiveness. The White Man's acquisitive nature always remained a puzzle to the Indian, who was perhaps the primary victim of this devouring greed. One imagines that the Indian's inability to comprehend the desire for personal property must have made his suffering worse. Why did the White Man always want more than he needed to sustain himself? The question was never answered, nor perhaps could it have been.

In most of the quotations cited however, the Indian was not seeking revenge for the deeds of his oppressors. Broken treaties and promises seemed rather to produce an attitude of surprise and hurt; a feeling of having been betrayed by a brother. In some cases the futility of their plight expressed itself in a kind of acquiescence, as when Black Elk said, "... We are prisoners of war while we are waiting here. But there is another world."

The book leaves one with the overall impression of a quiet, sensitive and generous people whose lives and words were imbued with a simple elegance and power:

"My brothers, the Indians must always be remembered in this land. Out of our languages we have given names to many beautiful things which will always speak of us. Minnehaha will laugh of us, Seneca will shine in our image, Mississippi will murmur our woes. The broad Iowa and the rolling Dakota and the fertile Michigan will whisper our names to the sun that kisses them. The roaring Niagara, the sighing Illinois, the singing Delaware, will chant unceasingly our Dta-wa-e (Death Song). Can it be that you and your children will hear that eternal song without a stricken heart? We have been guilty of only one sin—we have had possessions that the white man coveted."

Perhaps as a consequence of the publication of books such as this, author Vine Deloria's prediction that "We Indians will show this country how to act human," will come a little closer to fulfillment. We hope so.

Opening lead — ten of spades.

The first blow struck by the defense — the opening lead — is often the most decisive play of the hand. More contracts are won or lost on the opening lead than at any other stage of the play.

However, even perfect leads must be properly pursued for them to prove effective in the subsequent play. Generally, this is not difficult, for once the opening lead is made and both defenders see 26 cards instead of 13, they are in good position to capitalize fully on their assets.

West found the killing lead in this hand — the ten of spades, covered by the queen — but, even so, East had to react properly to make the lead effective.

Had he taken the ace, South would have made the contract whatever was returned. But East diagnosed West's lead as a doubleton and he therefore refused the trick, at the same time signaling with the seven.

As a result South could no longer make the contract. It did not matter whether he tried a trump finesse or led the ace and another trump; in either case West would take the king and get a spade ruff to eventually put declarer down one.

It is not really difficult for East to read that the ten of spades represents a doubleton.

West can hardly have any other holding consistent with the bidding and play.

Thus, if West had the 10-5-2, he would lead the two, not the ten. West therefore cannot have three spades.

Nor can West have the singleton ten, for that would lead to the impossible conclusion that South had bid hearts three times and deliberately suppressed a holding of five spades to the jack.

West's ten lead therefore had to be a doubleton.

ABBY: legal—but improper

DEAR ABBY: Teen-agers have a very common problem. Will you help us, please?

I asked my very understanding grandfather why so many teen-agers hate their parents, and he said, "Probably because of the parents' snooping."

I think my grandfather is right. Lots of parents (especially mothers) open their children's mail. My grandfather says it is a federal offense to open another person's mail. Does this include teen-agers?

If kids have a legal right to such privacy, how can they enforce it?

fense to tamper, interfere with, or improperly obtain possession of mail addressed to another."

However, if a minor resides with his parent, the parent may (a) open the minor's mail without his consent, (b) destroy the mail of the minor without his permission, (c) instruct the postal authorities to send the minor's mail directly to the parent instead of to the minor, (d) instruct the postal authorities to withhold the mail from the minor.

In plain language Steve, parents DO have a legal right to open their children's mail.

But HAVING a right, and exercising it are two different things, and since children learn from example, the best way to teach children to respect the privacy of others is to respect theirs.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "FRIENDSHIP RUINED": What did you expect? The only person lower than a woman who would live it up with her best friend's husband while she was in the hospital having a baby, is the husband who would confess to "get it off his chest."

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

NU Receives $58,800 Grant

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln has received a $58,800 grant from the National Science Foundation that will allow two NU engineering professors to conduct research on the static and dynamic performance of reinforced concrete structural frameworks.

The grant is for a two-year period, with Profs. G. C. Ernst, civil engineering, and G. M. Smith, engineering mechanics, as principal investigators in charge of the research.

The research program will include the first comprehensive cyclic and dynamic testing of reinforced concrete frameworks of the type used in buildings and bridges. It will be the first investigation in this country in which full scale dimensions and loads will be used.

Nationally there has been a great deal of concern over the types of failures of structural frameworks caused by natural phenomena such as earthquakes, hurricanes and also the dynamic induced stresses caused by large assemblies of people.

As example, Professors Ernst and Smith cited the concern over the safety of additional seating, built several years ago at Memorial Stadium. People in the stands create vibrations and stresses on the supporting frames similar in type to those they will be testing to measure the strength and safety of the concrete frameworks.

This Week's Health Tip

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska Medical Association: Carbon monoxide is a silent killer produced every time a carbon-containing material such as gasoline burns.

Unless you always have at least one window open slightly, you are flirting with serious danger from carbon monoxide.

Remember that carbon monoxide is a colorless, odorless, tasteless gas emitted from your car exhaust. It is deadly in an enclosed space. Make certain today that your car's exhaust, muffler, and manifold are tight and free of leaks.

Keep your front air vents

closed in bumper-to-bumper traffic as they may draw in fumes from the car ahead.

Always remember that carbon monoxide poisoning can confuse you so that you cannot reach fresh air to relieve the symptoms and prevent serious injury or death.

NU Freshman Receives Grant

A freshman in the College of Engineering and Architecture at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln has been awarded a $500 scholarship by the Paxton and Vierling Steel Company of Omaha.

The recipient is Donald R. Voelte Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Voelte Sr. of Omaha.

Bradford, England (AP) — The owner of the first pub in Britain to ban cigarettes said Tuesday his profits have gone with the smoke.

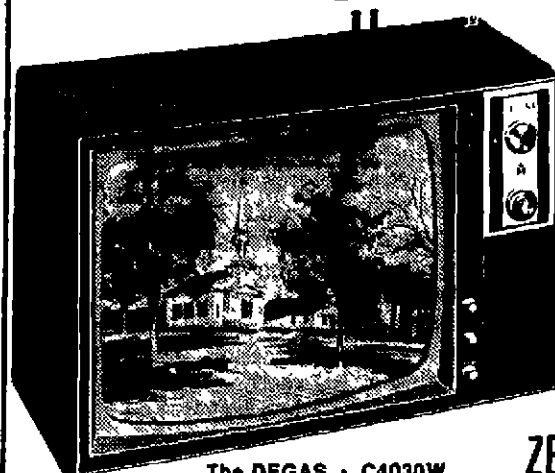

Takings in Jack Shower's tavern have slumped $125 a night. He says he has lost $6,250 a year turnover in cigarette sales.

But Showers, 70, is determined to soldier on.

POSTCARD by Stan

Warm evenings in the Plaza Mayor, the great square in the old part of Madrid. It is surrounded by balconied buildings of other centuries.

The lights are low. The arched entrances lead into dark, narrow, winding streets. Cobblestones that turn the ankle. Little bars spilling music and light and the smell of red wine into the night.

There are several restaurants — at this time of year the tables are set outside on the square.

They all serve lechón. Suckling pig. The drink is sangria, a punch of wine and lemon and oranges and a dash of Fundador brandy. It is served in a pitcher full of ice.

Prices are up. But Spain is still one of the reasonable countries.

stairs at the end of the Plaza is Cuchilleros.

It is famous for Botín at number 17. This is the restaurant in Ernest Hemingway's "The Sun Also Rises." And when the book was published, the sun rose on Botín's.

At the foot of the stairs, at Cuchilleros 1, is Las Cuevas de Luis Candelas. The waiters wear antique boots and wide belts with flintlock pistols stuck in them.

The leather jacketed man who calls your taxi carries a bell-mouth blunderbuss.

All of this commemorates Luis Candelas. The Spanish Robin Hood. He stole from the rich and gave to the poor. And he lived in the caves below the Plaza. (Let's hear it for Luis!)

Said the waiter: "Luis never killed a victim or a pursuing policeman. How is the pig?"

I said: "Deliciously piggy."

Lechón is cooked with the skin on. I have an idea pig is an important part of the Spanish economy. Down here they serve pig and pigskin. But in other restaurants, they sell plain pig.

The pigskin is made into wallets and sold to the tourists.

"Luis came to his end through love," said the waiter with a romantic sigh. "He was engaged to a poor girl of the barrio. She heard that Luis planned to marry the daughter of a rich man. So she informed the police."

"They took him here. In this very room."

The Plaza Mayor is paved with uneven stone. A great statue of a man on horseback stands in the center. The horse pawing the air grandly. The rider advancing stonily to the wars.

Around the edges of the Plaza, under porticoes, there are shops.

The outdoor restaurants are bordered with flower boxes of

I said: "How did Luis Live if he never shot anybody? Where did he get the money?"

The waiter said: "Ah, that fox! He lived by his wits. Why one day here—right in the Calle de Toledo—Luis came across an old couple being evicted for not paying rent."

"To arms! He had no time to plan a great robbery. So he went to a butcher shop. The butcher was rich. He served the King."

"Said Luis: 'Let me have a kilo of lard.' Do you want more pig?"

I said: "No, thanks. What happened then?"

The waiter said: "Luis smelled the lard. He said to the butcher: 'This is not fresh.' The butcher put his nose to the tub of lard. And Luis pushed his head into it. He seized the money and ran."

It's a grand old square. Later somebody told me: "You know they've built a parking garage under it, don't you?" I didn't. I could have hit him over the head with a tub of lard.

Inquiry Into Fuel Cost, Availability Provides Little Comfort To Irrigators

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The Nebraska Agricultural Council drew little comfort from its inquiry into the costs of fuels and the availability of fuels for use in running irrigation pumps.

Representatives of the Kansas Nebraska Gas company, Rural Electric Associations, Propane Gas Dealers Association and from the liquid petroleum industry painted a grim picture of short supplies, environmental problems and rising prices.

"The drive to clean up the air has led to the ban of coal containing sulphur which caused some power plants to switch to oil for fuel. Some West Coast plants have become dependent on Middle Eastern oil shipped in by tanker and are finding themselves in trouble because of a shortage of tankers and political problems in the oil producing countries.

Costs of producing and delivering natural gas is rising due to a combination of higher interest rates, higher wages, and sharply increased cost of materials," said Harlan Hansen, public relations representative for the gas companies.

Hansen did say that his company supported the concept of adding grain alcohol to motor fuels in order to increase the supply of fuel and to find a market for grain.

Library Facility Will Honor Lewis

The Salvation Army advisory board Wednesday voted to name the library in their new facility, to be constructed at 1600 No. 27th, the Kenneth E. Lewis Library in memory of former board chairman Kenneth Lewis, who died Nov. 2.

Maj. Ross Zarfas has also announced the assignment of new officers, Capt. and Mrs. Neil Dodge, of Aberdeen, S.D., to the Lincoln Army. They will arrive Tuesday with their daughter, Connie, a high school senior.

Lt. John Snyder, in Lincoln the past year, has been assigned as an assistant in Aberdeen.

Gary B. Shults, of the Continental Oil Co. and a member of the governor's Alcohol Committee said, "All sorts of fuel are in short supply and all sorts of costs related to the production of fuels are increasing.

In answer to a question on the supply of coal Shults said "There is enough coal in the ground but strip mining is very expensive and the environmentalists are opposed to both the practice of mining the coal and burning it in power plants particularly when it contains any sulphur."

Pat Wright, representing Northern Propane Gas at Columbus, explained that his product is a by-product of petroleum and oil. The amount of storage capacity serves to limit the amount that is available and the amount produced is related directly to the amount of petroleum products that are produced.

"The supply doesn't fluctuate during the different seasons as much as some other fuels and the prices vary less over a year's time," he said.

Ted Regier of Aurora, representing the natural gas users association reported that there were approximately 11,000 irrigation wells in the state that used natural gas. His organization has experienced a rise in the price of the fuel from 16c in 1955 to 45c per 1,000 cubic feet of gas. "In addition to paying for the gas our members have spent $3 million dollars to put in pipelines. We feel we are paying an unfair price for the fuel at the present time," he said.

Dick Wilkerson, general manager of the Nebraska Rural Electric Association said his organization could not support the state water plan which called for a rapid expansion of irrigation using pump systems. "Continued and expanded irrigation in our area if served by electricity will prove more and more detrimental in the costs of power and energy," he said.

Wilkerson said "The ratchet clause of current all requirements contract under which rural systems buy their power is responsible for the situation."

The ratchet system requires a power user to pay a minimum rate each month based on the maximum amount used in a month during the year. The high use of electric power during the irrigation season forces the rural systems to pay for electricity they don't use during the rest of the year.

Afternoon Blaze Destroys Barn, 350 Hay Bales

A barn on a farm owned by Mrs. Dorothy A. Jackson of Rt. 1 was destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon.

Firemen said the barn, located about a mile west and a quarter-mile north of Pioneer's Golf Course on West Van Dorn, was apparently ignited by some weeds that were being burned nearby.

No one was reported injured but the barn reportedly contained some 350 bales of hay.

Frank Johnson, son of the owner, said the structure was covered by insurance and declined to estimate the loss.

Tenant on the farm where the incident occurred was listed as Al Kammerer.

Units of the Southwest Rural Fire District responded to the fire but were unable to do other than contain the blaze to the structure.

The federal government has awarded grants totalling $171,000 to the University of Nebraska-Lincoln for operation of its Water Resources Research Institute.

Since its beginning in 1944, the research institute has become a focal point for interdisciplinary research, intra-university graduate education, continuing education and service to the state, according to Dr. Warren Viessman Jr., director.

It has supported 23 research projects, the results of which have served as guidelines for the development of water resources and have been applied by users ranging from individual farmers to local, state and federal agencies. The largest of the three grants is $100,000 to help finance the operations of the institute, and several of its research projects and training programs.

A $58,000 grant was earmarked for support of a research study of animal waste utilization for pollution abatement being conducted by Dr. Otto E. Cross, an associate professor of agricultural engineering at NU.

A $13,000 grant was scheduled for Dr. Alvin J. Surkan, an associate professor of computer science for research on a dynamic model for urban hydrologic systems.

According to the institute director, Nebraska is confronted with a variety of water resources problems, such as floods, droughts, erosion, non-uniform distribution of precipitation, water quality, deterioration, declining water tables, land drainage, water resources management, water rights and institutions for administering water resources programs.

"Solutions to many current problems are dependent upon the availability of reliable quantitative research results and personnel skilled in the use of modern analytic techniques. In recognition of this, the University of Nebraska is accelerating the development of research and education programs to help satisfy the need," Dr. Viessman said.

Hunting Psychology

It isn't at all unusual for someone to try and figure out what makes an otherwise intelligent man go hunting. Wives do it all the time.

But now a University of Utah psychologist, Dr. Jon Atzet has gotten in the act and claims that the deer hunter inherits his annual call of the wild from early day cavemen who had to hunt to survive.

Dr. Atzet believes there is a cultural link between the primitive spear carrier hunting for survival and modern-day sportsmen who bag their game at long distance with high-powered rifles.

In an article distributed by the Associated Press, Dr. Atzet said: "It's a chance for the male member of our culture to get out and see if he can do what his forefathers had to do to survive — to let his bread grow and get dirty and get his deer and survive."

The good doctor objects to attacks on the ethics of hunting, maintaining that killing — of deer in the wild, cattle in the feedlot or vegetables in the garden — is part of survival.

"If you provide a hunting industry, then the killing is socially sanctioned," he said.

Of course, for that to happen, hunting would have to become an industry. And according to Dr. Atzet, that's just what has happened.

"What we are looking at is a pretty good size industry — one that's intended to support itself in the long run," he claims. "We send hunters out into the field to harvest a crop that is pretty much set up for hunting."

If you look at it this way, then deer hunting is nothing but legalized slaughter. Not the sport that seems to attract thousands of hunters every year.

But the doctor goes further by stating that social competitiveness is probably the major factor that sends a man hunting.

"There is a fierce competitiveness in a hunting party in getting the biggest deer and the first deer. This is recognized by society. Stores offer prizes for the best antlers."

A few holes do exist in this assumption. First of all, most hunters this writer has run across in the field sport freshly-shaved chins while their hunting clothes do not show traces of any lengthy wear. In other words, they don't smell gamey (no pun intended).

Then in claiming that competitiveness is the major factor of competitiveness in today's society? Even jobs hang on competitiveness so competition is nothing new.

How many hunters relish the outdoors for itself and only use hunting as an excuse to get outside cities and leave their worries behind? And how many hunters actually like the taste of venison? And how many hunt for the sheer sport of it with no thoughts of competition in their minds? Probably quite a few.

"Hunting is a form of non-consequential competition. You can hunt without fear of losing your job or such. It's a great release. Your boss, your lawyer — whether you're a pauper or a professional are your equals," Dr. Atzet explains further.

Perhaps the hunting instinct is a throw-back to caveman days and those that take part in the sport are only covered by a sheer veneer of civilization over a barbaric trait. Each to his one belief. Only I'd be careful who I'd call a caveman. Some of those hunters might take exception.

—RAIDERS WIN CONFERENCE—

Wymore Southern Beats Hebron, 18-0

Wymore — Wymore-Southern avenged an earlier loss to Hebron here Wednesday night by scoring three-second half touchdowns to blank the Bears, 18-0, for the Southern Nebraska Conference football championship.

Southern, which had dropped a 16-6 verdict to the Bears less than three weeks ago, broke loose for two long touchdowns and a short one after being held to only 85 yards total offense in the first half.

The Raiders wasted little time in getting on the scoreboard after intermission, however. Junior halfback Scott Mason hit junior end Mark Chaplin with a 60-yard touchdown pass on the second play of the third quarter.

On their second offensive series in the third quarter, the twice-beaten Raiders marched 65 yards in 12 plays for their only sustained drive of the game.

Quarterback Terry Milligan went the final yard on a sneak. His 33-yard pass to Mason accounted for the biggest chunk of yardage in the drive. The drive also featured an eight-yard gain by Mike Chapman on a draw play, advancing the ball to the four.

While Chapman added a fourth-quarter insurance touchdown on an 80-yard run off tackle, Wymore was making Hebron its sixth shutout victim of the season.

The Raiders, whose other loss in an 8-2 season was an 8-6 setback to second-ranked Class B Auburn, allowed Hebron only four first downs and 44 yards in the first half.

The game marked the third straight year in which the Southern Nebraska Conference champion has traded wins in the regular season and its league playoff opponent. Last year, after Southern had won the regular season game, Hebron dumped the Raiders in the playoff.

Hebron failed to penetrate into Southern territory the entire second half. The Bears made their most serious scoring bid the second time they had the ball in the first quarter.

Hebron drove to the Raider six-yard line, but junior back Jamie Sasek was stopped on a fourth and two situation by Milligan and Mason.

Hebron finished the season with a 6-4 record.

Wymore-Southern 18-0
Hebron 0-12
Southern-Chaplin, 60 pass from Mason (run fail)
Southern-Milligan, 1 run (run fail)
Southern-Chapman, 80 run (pass fail)

Oklahoma Team Practices Passing

Norman, Okla. (U) — Second-ranked Oklahoma continued to work on its Kansas game plan Wednesday. The Sooners play host to the Jayhawks this Saturday in a regionally televised game.

The Sooners spent a busy day working on their passing game and the option-play of their wishbone attack. Pass protection and halfback blocking were stressed.

OU's defense concentrated on Kansas' option play and passing attack. Kansas uses two quarterbacks in its offense — senior Dan Heck and sophomore David Jaynes. The plan has combined for 86 completions out of 187 attempts for 1,002 yards and nine touchdowns.

Huskers' Ross Leaves Hospital

Nebraska freshman football coach Jim Ross injured in a sideline mishap during last Friday's NU 54-15 victory over Iowa State at Memorial Stadium, returned to his home Wednesday.

Ross had been hospitalized in Lincoln General Hospital with a fracture of the upper tibia and ruptured collateral ligament of the left knee he sustained when three players slammed into him early in the game.

Assistant freshman coach Jim Walden will assume Ross' duties at Friday's frosh game at Manhattan against Kansas State.

End Of Racing At Madison Appears Imminent

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — The end of horse racing at Madison Downs where racing has been conducted since the sport has been legalized in Nebraska appeared imminent here Wednesday and is expected to come Thursday when the State Racing Commission winds up its two-day meeting.

And that decision also is expected to trigger some of the liveliest debate here at a Commission meeting in years as the other tracks, particularly those at Lincoln, Columbus and South Sioux City, battle over the thirteen days that Madison had this year.

The State Fair Board, which controls racing at the State Fair Grounds in Lincoln, last week voted to ask for three additional days of racing for 1972.

All Nebraska tracks will present their requests for 1972 dates to the three-man commission of Chairman Harry Farnham of Omaha, Robert Logsdon of Lincoln and newly-appointed member Ken Jenkins of Grand Island Thursday.

Jenkins was appointed Tuesday by Gov. J. J. Exon to replace Robert Bergeren of Scottsbluff, who resigned unexpectedly.

The Commission huddled secretly over lunch Thursday with Madison head Butch Moyer, presumably to discuss the plight of the northeast Nebraska track.

Prior to the luncheon confab the Commission was reminded by an official of the Horsemen's Protective and Benevolent Association (HPBA) that that group had gone on record that no track should be granted racing dates that can't guarantee a minimum of $1,000.

In addition to Madison, Columbus and Atokad at South Sioux City also fall to that standard.

"Madison is a losing proposition for horsemen because of the size of the purse," Paul Kemling of Aurora, representing the Nebraska Breeders Association pointed out.

"The tracks had trouble keeping its head above water and the horsemen lost money. And the state doesn't get any money from the track either," he said.

Kemling offered a proposal that might allow racing to continue at Madison, but the proposal isn't expected to get favorable action.

"Maybe Madison could run on weekends during the Ak-Sar-Ben meeting, using horses that aren't eligible for Ak-Sar-Ben," he offered. "This also might serve as a training ground for new officials."

Kemling also asked that the Commission consider granting Monday racing dates to all tracks.

"It's the feeling of the breeders that we need Monday," he said. "It would be another payday for the horsemen even if it would be only a break-even day for the tracks."

Almost every track east of the Mississippi has Monday racing and we need a sixth-day work week."

In a meeting with the track managers the Breeders Association asked for the increase in the purse schedule for Nebraska-Bred races.

They asked that races for Nebraska-breds carry an additional $200 in purse money at outside tracks and an additional $500 at Ak-Sar-Ben over what the purse would be for a similar race in the open class.

The Commission took disciplinary action against dogs writing into its rules a regulation prohibiting dogs from race tracks. The old rule permitted dogs if they were kept on a leash.

Appaloosas Set For Show

Champion performance horses from almost 100 regional Appaloosa Horse Clubs will begin competition Thursday morning in the World Championship Appaloosa Performance Horse Show at the State Fairgrounds.

Eliminations are scheduled for 8 a.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday with finals slated for 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Thursday eliminations include junior and senior reining, first go-around in junior and senior cutting, English Please (Hunt and Saddle Seat), first go-around in calf roping and heading & healing, Nez Perce Stake Race and Camas Prairie Stump Race.

Awards will be presented to the World Champion and Reserve World Champion Appaloosa High Point Performance Horse for 1971.

Appearing on the Friday and Saturday night programs will be Shatka Bear-Step, hereditary chief of Mi Ashi Ton Gaxas, who has been synonymous with the Appaloosa, the treasured horse of his ancestors. He now resides in Scottsdale, Ariz., where he raises Appaloosa horses.

The World Championships, which were held at the Fairgrounds two years ago, will feature 15 performance classes, each with a $200 purse. It will be presented by the National Breed Association and Official Registry for Appaloosa Horses.

Don Walker, executive secretary of the Appaloosa Horse Club, Inc. of Moscow, Idaho, said competitors from throughout the United States, Canada and few foreign countries are expected for the show.

WBC Boss Backs Ramos

Mexico City (U) — Ramon Velazquez, president of the World Boxing Council, insisted Wednesday that Mando Ramos of Los Angeles must be recognized as world lightweight champion despite his disqualification in his title match with Pedro Carrasco of Spain last week.

However, Velazquez said that he will accept the decision of the majority of the voting members of the council. The decision, he said, should come out of a meeting Nov. 21 in Monterrey, Mexico, with some of the members of the Council.

Ramos was disqualified by referee Samuel Udobote of Nigeria because he allegedly hit below the belt. Until then Ramos had a definite lead over Carrasco and had floored him four times. The referee's decision was criticized by the European and Mexican press.

Velazquez said that he, Jim Destin, president of the U.S. Boxing Federation; Bob Turley, secretary of the California Boxing Commission, and Jose Sulaiman, secretary of the World Boxing Council, all agree that Ramos should be recognized as the new champion.

But he explained that Piero Pini, secretary of the European Boxing Union, and Gil Garcia, president of the union, claim that the referee's decision should be maintained but that Ramos should be given a rematch.

Bowling Speaker Set

The Women's International Bowling Congress and its diversified services to more than three million members will be discussed by Sue Hutchens, national field representative of WIBC, during an appearance as a guest of the Lincoln Women's Bowling Association at its open meeting Sunday at Hollywood Bowl at 1:30 p.m.

BANKS COUNTED OUT

... COMMITMENT SKIRTED

Chicago (U) — Owner Phil Wrigley of the Chicago Cubs, skirting commitment on Leo Durocher's status for 1972, said Wednesday "I'm too fond of Ernie Banks to make him manager of anything."

Wrigley's comment followed a report speculating that Banks, a standout Cub player since 1953, would be named managerial successor to the controversial Durocher.

The 75-year-old Wrigley, although complaining that "I wish all the sports writers would stop trying to pick out my personnel," admitted he has not resolved Durocher's future with the Cubs.

However, he was explicit in squashing the persistent rumor that the 40-year-old Banks will take over the Cub helm as the first black manager in the major leagues.

"Managing is a dirty job, it doesn't last long and it certainly isn't anything I would wish on Banks who is headed for baseball's Hall of Fame. Furthermore, I think Banks wouldn't take a managerial job."

Durocher's status has been in doubt despite an advertisement in Chicago newspapers Sept. 3 in which Wrigley gave his 65-year-old pilot a vote of confidence for remainder of the 1971 season.

However, the ad directed against the "dump Durocher clique," made no mention of Leo returning for 1972.

Durocher took over in 1966 and hoisted the Cubs from last place to two second place and three third place finishes.

Orioles Defeat Japanese Club

Hiroshima, Japan (U) — Don Buford blasted a two-run homer in the fifth inning to break a scoreless tie and drove in another run as the Baltimore Orioles defeated a combined Japan Central League team 4-2 Wednesday.

Boog Powell drove in another Oriole run in the eighth and Buford collected his third RBI in the ninth.

Baltimore, now 9-1-3 on their tour, was held to only five hits by the Japanese team while winning pitcher Mike Ceular allowed 11.

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Geneva — The Geneva Wildcats refused to fold, even after the loss of quarterback Dan Sorge, and stormed to a fourth quarter touchdown to claim a 15-12 football victory over Grand Island Central Catholic here Wednesday afternoon.

The playoff triumph gave coach Bruce Christensen's No. 8 rated Class C club its third Mid-Nebraska Conference championship in the past four years.

G.I.C.C., which won eight-straight fall before dropping its regular season finale, had been highly-rated in Class B most of the season.

After a scoreless first quarter, Central Catholic finally put together a sustained

march of 66 yards behind the running of Don Bockhahn and Len Guzinski.

Then quarterback Len Sorahan, with the Geneva defense pulled in to stop the run, pitched a seven-yard touchdown pass to Mike Borowski.

But when the extra-point kick hit the upright and bounced back the stage was set for Geneva's first comeback drive.

Sorge went to the air and connected with Jerry Engle, Everett Schengelberger and then Engle again for a trio of first downs to gain the G.I.C.C. eight.

Three plays later Sorge sneaked in from the one and Clint Kimbrough booted the extra-point to give Geneva a 7-6 edge just 46 seconds before halftime. Central Catholic took the kickoff to open the second half for a quick go-ahead TD.

Bockhahn swept the Wildcat flanks for two first downs — the first scamper covered 42 yards — and then caught a pass from Sorahan for the tally.

An attempted pass for a two-point conversion failed but G.I.C.C. was back in command 12-7.

Early in the final frame Sorge gave Geneva a first down when he dashed 13 yards to the Wildcat 35, but he sustained a back injury on the play.

In came seldom used junior signal-caller John Bandemer.

His crucial third down connection to Schengelberger gained 42 yards to the Central Catholic 23. Then it was a pass to Dennis Ribeiro. The ball was suddenly down to the seven.

Then on third down Bandemer tossed his TD pass to Schengelberger and Ribeiro added a two-point conversion run to produce the final tally.

Geneva 7-6
G.I.C.C. 0-13
G.I.C.C. — Borowski, 7 pass from Sorahan (kick failed)
G.I.C.C. — Sorahan, 1 run (Kimbrough kick)

Davenport, Dorchester Tie

... GAME FOR PIONEER CONFERENCE TITLE ENDS IN DEADLOCK

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Dorchester — Davenport and Dorchester failed to settle the Pioneer Conference championship by battling to an exciting 22-22 playoff tie here Wednesday night.

Coach Jack Guggenmos' Dorchester club, a 20-0 victor when the two teams met during the regular season, had to battle back in the fourth quarter to tally a touchdown and a crucial two-point conversion to gain the deadlock this time.

The tie kept the Dorchester slate clean from a loss, however, as the Longhorns completed a 9-0-1 campaign.

Coach Delvin Ortigas' Davenport Tigers No. 7 rated in Class D, suffered just the single defeat to Class C Dorchester. The Tigers thus finished with an 8-1-1 record.

Dorchester grabbed an early 8-0 lead after Ron Velder picked off a Tiger pass and returned it to the Davenport eight.

In two smashes, Velder was over for the TD and quarterback Lee Eret ran for the two points.

Davenport knotted the count early in the second stanza after Barry Urbauer ran to the Longhorn three from where Scott Albrecht carried it in. Then Martin Ficken passed to Dave White to produce the 8-8 tie.

Davenport quickly struck again after Jerry Keim blocked a Dorchester punt, with Ficken scoring both the touchdown and the two-point conversion.

Just before halftime Dorchester stormed to its second touchdown, with John Slama dashing the final 15 yards, but the two-point conversion run failed to leave Davenport in front, 16-14, at intermission.

Davenport extended its lead in the third period, with fourth and a foot, near midfield, Ficken faked the ball to Albrecht into the line and kept around right end, going all the way to the Dorchester five from where Albrecht scooted in to make it 22-14. But a placement conversion attempt failed.

That opened the door for Dorchester, and on the third play of the final frame Velder zig-zagged his way through the entire Davenport defense 47 yards to pay dirt.

Then came the crucial two-point conversion, with Slama bulling his way across to produce the final count.

Buc Skipper May Retire

San Juan P.R. (AP) — Danny Murtaugh, manager of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates, said Wednesday that he'll make up his mind about his future in about 10 days.

"No, I haven't made up my mind yet about returning next year as manager, but I think I'll have the answer by the 20th of this month."

The 54-year-old skipper, considering retiring because of a heart condition, has managed the Pirates 11 seasons and twice his teams won the World Series, in 1960 and against the Baltimore Orioles this year.

Asked if he decided not to manage, would he retire from baseball, Murtaugh said:

"No, absolutely not. I'll stay in this game. I'm sure the Pirates can find some place for me in the front office."

Murtaugh is here with his wife for a six-day vacation.

Bob Martin scored twice for David City, once on a two-yard jaunt and earlier on a 52-yard aerial from Mel Aldrich.

Big 8 Passing Lead Aim Of Kansas State

... MORRISON SPARKING KSU ATTACK

Kansas City, Mo. — Kansas State, with the hottest Big Eight Conference passing combination going, will have its designs on taking the Conference's passing lead and a giant step toward its fourth straight-team-throwing crown severely challenged this week.

The big Kansas State pair has been Demaris Morrison and Henry Childs. The last two games Morrison has thrown for 567 yards. On the other end of his pitches, more often than not, has been Childs. A healthy hunk of sophomore size and speed, he has corralled 13 for 234 yards, including seven for 90 and two touchdowns in the revitalizing comeback against Oklahoma State.

During the spree Morrison has driven the Cats' passing offense into second place in the league with a 163.3 per-game average. This compares with Nebraska's top reading of 172.7.

But for the Wildcats to spin

from behind and win their fourth straight, league passing crown, the passing mastery developed of late by Morrison will have to continue against the best pass defense in the Big Eight and the leading total defense in collegiate football, that thrown up week after week by Nebraska.

The Huskers, for the year, are allowing only 92.6 yards a game through the air, a mark surpassed on the season only once in the last 20 years by a conference team, and but 72.9 on the ground each time out. Totally, that amounts to 164.6.

Just as impressive is what the Black Shirts have allowed opponents to score. For the year the average is a mighty slim 5.2 points. In action against conference teams, the Huskers have given up a total of 20 after five games. Three-times shutouts have been recorded.

Offensively, despite Missouri's holding Oklahoma to the fewest yards since the opener for the Sooners, Oklahoma still leads handily in rushing offense (478.9), total offense (562.9), and scoring offense (43.6). The rushing and total offense figures are still well above record levels — in fact, 80 yards on the ground will let the Sooners crack the Big Eight and NCAA seasonal record.

WHA Claims Victory With NHL's Expansion

Edmonton, Alta. (AP) — Expansion of the National Hockey League for the 1972-73 season is "a great victory" for the World Hockey Association, Bill Hunter, executive director of the WHA, said Wednesday.

Het old a news conference that the NHL had "panicked by moving up its expansion plans."

"This is the greatest victory yet for our league," he said. "The expansion which the NHL said wouldn't come until 1974 shows their concern about the WHA."

He said he knew that NHL owners were not unanimous in approval of expansion despite a league announcement that this was the case.

"They were going to announce their plans in Florida a week or so ago. Then they were going to announce it Monday and they didn't. They finally got around to it Tuesday. The owners battled, don't think they didn't. This expansion is a public endorsement for our league."

The NHL said Tuesday it would expand to Long Island, N.Y., and Atlanta for the 1972-73 season.

The WHA hopes to rival the established NHL and already has awarded 10 franchises — including one in New York. Two more are expected to be announced before the end of December.

KSU's Gibson Praises NU

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State coach Vince Gibson has nothing but praise for his team's next opponent Saturday — first-ranked Nebraska.

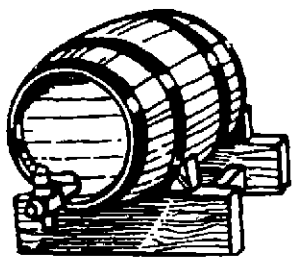

He emphasized that in five conference games Nebraska's first-team defense has given up only one touchdown.

Gibson said Wednesday the Nebraska defense is a "great asset to the offense by giving them the ball in good field position. Their secondary is great, and they don't give up the big play."

And he said they don't make mistakes offensively either. "When the defense is making turnovers and the offense is not," he said, "you're in pretty good shape."

Don Alexander, second-team middle guard for K-State who injured his knee in Tuesday's practice, will be replaced Saturday by Steve Eaton, second-team defensive tackle.

Nicklaus-Trevino Team Favored In World Cup

... EUROPEAN BALL SAID TO MAKE GAME EASY

Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. (UPI) — Claiming the European small ball "makes golf too easy," Jack Nicklaus toured the 19th World Cup course Wednesday with his U.S. teammate and television's "Great One."

"Somebody run down and pull the pin out," quipped Jackie Gleason as Nicklaus walked up to the tee at the 523-yard first hole of the PGA National Golf Club's East Course.

Earlier Nicklaus had complained that the smaller ball, which is optional in the international tournament, makes the game too easy but added, "Any time you've got the choice, it's silly to play the large ball."

Golf's "Golden Bear" also said he can hit the smaller ball, which weighs the same as the American sphere, 20 yards farther. A drive of 300 yards is not uncommon, he added.

Lee Trevino, the other U.S. entry in this prestige tournament was in the pro-am threesome with Nicklaus. Bob Hope had been paired with Trevino, but his flight was delayed and he didn't make the tee off.

"My partner's not here, but I won't need him," said Trevino, the PGA's top money winner this year and owner of the U.S., Canadian and British Open Titles.

"If it's Hope, I know you won't need him," said Gleason, a big bundle of color with red and white striped pants and a blue pork pie hat.

Nicklaus and Trevino are the heavy favorites, with two-man teams from 46 nations set to begin the first of 72 holes Thursday.

Gary Player, who is representing South Africa along with Harold Henning, was offering 8-1 odds the U.S. team would win it. Player also predicted "the highest scores ever" on the tough PGA course, which has been deluged with rain the last several days.

Other strong contenders include the defending champions, Bruce Devlin and David Graham of Australia, and the British team of Tony Jacklin and Peter Oosterhuis.

Roberto De Vicenzo is back to defend his international trophy awarded the individual posting the lowest score.

Trevino said the 7,096-yard layout will be trouble for some of the weaker golfers from the smaller countries.

"There is no way those little guys who are not so strong are going to be able to get to the green," he said. "I think it would be right to put those tees in the middle one day."

Iba Begins Preparations For Olympic Cage Team

Stillwater, Okla. (AP) — Sports fans know him as "Hank." The sign on his desk in Gallagher Hall says "H.P. Iba."

And the hundreds of athletes who played under him at Oklahoma State University for 35 years will always call him "Mr. Iba."

Whatever name you think of, the retired but not idle coach and athletic director looks and acts about the same as always. He works from Room 204 at Gallagher Hall even though he is retired.

Presently one of his biggest tests, after 51 years in athletics, is molding another U.S. Olympics cage squad that can continue its mastery of world competition. It will be his third time as Olympic basketball coach when the teams take the floor next year at Munich, Germany.

His 1964 Olympic team swept nine straight games in Tokyo and his 1968 squad repeated the performance in Mexico City.

Next year will be harder, Iba says. Competition from other countries is getting tougher and professional basketball is drawing off players as soon as they finish college. In past years, many remained in non-professional sports until they had a chance at the Olympics.

"I don't know right now where I'll get the talent to win again," Iba told a newsman. "Our problem is we have to compete against the pros."

Iba has been working for two years to put together another winning combination.

"We started two years ago with a development camp at the U.S. Air Force Academy," he said. "We had 44 boys then. This year we looked at 57 and next year we'll bring in 66 more."

Olympic material is recommended from many groups such as the NCAA, the AAU, NAIA, junior colleges and armed services. Some will be picked at-large.

The Munich games will open Aug. 26, 1972, and continue through Sept. 10. The American traveling squad will include 12 players, Iba, an assistant coach, the manager, his assistant and a trainer.

Bill Summers of Brownstown, Ind., is chairman of the Olympic Committee which will select the U.S. athletes. Iba's assistant coach will be named next April.

Boxer, Manager To Dissolve Pact

London (UPI) — Eddie Thomas, manager of World Lightweight Boxing Champion Ken Buchanan, said today his partnership with the fighter will end when their contract expires in December.

Thomas said: "I am no longer interested in managing Buchanan."

Thomas' decision ends a six year partnership which has proved one of the most successful, if somewhat stormy, in British boxing.

"I am tired of reading press reports about what Buchanan intends or does not intend to do. I know that if I signed him again there would be a lot of aggravation and I do not need or want it," Thomas said.

Trial Teacher Appraisal Plan Favorably Received By Educators

Star Staff Writer

In a day when the public and its representatives have become more concerned with what happens in the nation's classrooms, people inside the schools themselves are turning to new ways to help each other improve.

That's apparent in Lincoln, at least, in a new proposal for teacher appraisal that appears headed for a one-year trial throughout the Lincoln Public Schools.

If the proposal wins Board of Education approval, the schools will be tossing aside the traditional "checklist" approach to teacher "grading," and will substitute instead a more sophisticated teacher evaluation system that will help teachers appraise themselves and set targets for improvements in problem areas.

"We're coming into a new era," believes Carroll Sawin, assistant superintendent for personnel in the Lincoln School District.

Whether from the standpoint of teacher, principal or central office, Sawin said, "our public expects us to do a better job."

And one of the results, he said, is that the schools are attempting "to measure more accurately what we're trying to do."

In the personnel department, he added, "we're moving away from personality appraisal" and heading toward "job performance" as a means of evaluating what happens in the classroom.

So far, he said, the effort has been directed mainly at the classroom teacher. But he said the schools are about to "start looking at the same approach with administrators."

The "approach" is one which has been spawned in the management - by - objectives trend which has found its way in recent years from private industry to public schools.

In the Lincoln schools, for example, goal-setting has become a concern from the level of the superintendent's cabinet to the individual schools themselves.

Ronald Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction, recently handed school board members an outline of the procedures his curriculum-oriented division is following.

And the school system has been making a bigger effort to identify and assign to the appropriate account all costs of school operations.

The same approach is now finding its way into what teachers do day-to-day.

"We've matured as a staff," Sawin said. "We're more comfortable with job targets" - specific goals designed to help the teacher improve in those areas where he may have problems.

The new format to be tried this year is far different from the more traditional checklist, which called for principals to grade teachers on a scale of 1 to 5 for a host of items and then assign an "average" grade as an overall evaluation.

The new format will call for marks of O (outstanding), S (successful), U (unsuccessful) or N (not applicable) on each of nine areas of concern - teaching performance, pupil relations, management activities, contribution to total school program, parent-community relations, staff relations, personal characteristics, scholarship and professional responsibility.

The teacher's appraiser (usually the principal) marks an O, S, U or N beside each of the nine items, while the teacher himself may do so, too.

There is no overall "average" slot on the new form.

For those areas in which the teacher needs improvement, he and his appraiser will identify "one or more goals for professional improvement and appropriate job targets."

The new format also combines appraisal with professional growth activities as spelled out in state law. And ample space for "general statements" from both teacher and appraiser is supplied.

Both the teacher and his appraiser will bear responsibility for action to meet the goals and targets.

The new system was developed by Sawin, principals and a committee of Lincoln Education Association members.

Sawin said an optional evaluation system which was oriented almost totally to job targets won a favorable response from 80% of the teachers who participated last year.

"We got a vote of confidence," he said. "That spurred us on."

Major drawback, according to Sawin, is that the new approach will demand considerably more time of principals and teachers.

Evaluations come each year for probationary teachers, and every three years for tenured teachers unless their evaluations indicate they should be appraised more often.

Federal Charters Urged For Giant Corporations

Gigantic corporations should be chartered by the federal government, not by states, a former chief economist for the Federal Trade Commission said Wednesday during a Business and Economics Roundtable at the Nebraska Union.

OPPD Chief Says N-Plant Will Save Millions Yearly

Omaha (AP) — A director of the Omaha Public Power District told a legislative study committee Wednesday that the district will save about $10 million a year with the Fort Calhoun nuclear power plant.

William Metzger was among those testifying before the committee that will call representatives of the Nebraska Public Power District Thursday.

The committee is investigating the cost of constructing and operating nuclear generating units.

OPPD General Manager Lynn Monroe said the "brick and mortar" contract for the Fort Calhoun Plant was $12.2 million but current expenditures are $18.7 million and will increase.

Monroe said the original contract for mechanical work was about $22 million but claims total $34 million.
